Bureau Chooses Queen

LILBOURN -- Miss Regina Landers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Landers, route one, was chosen New Madrid County Farm Bureau queen last night. She was crowned by Miss Charlotte Eftink, route three, Portageville, retiring queen.

The queen's first alternate was Betty Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.K. Wilson, Lilbourn, and second alternate was Miss Ruth Ann Eftink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Eftink, route three, Portageville.

Walter Landers was reelected president at the annual meeting of the County Farm Bureau in the high school. There were 276 present. Other officers are Peter Myers, Canalou, vice-president; Irwin Lloyd, Lilbourn, secretary, and J.W. Widener, Portageville route, treasurer. Board members are Andrew Eftink, with Ted Kelley, Matthews, and R. T. McGee, Portageville rural, new members.

Two of the three members who attended a Freedom Forum session in Mexico, Mo., in June, Paula Gee, Lilbourn rural, and Ken Kell, Catron, spoke of their trip.

Vincent Crane, Jefferson City, Missouri Commodity director, spoke on the agricultural outlook.

The Baderville 4-H club's Kitchen Band provided entertainment.

Brazilian Seeks to Learn About Rural Electrification

By Jerry Obermark

Guidance and technical education of the people for development of the natural resources are principal needs of Brazil in the opinion of Antonio C. Moral, an electrical engineer from Sao Paulo studying rural electrification in the United States.

Moral and his wife spent two days in Sikeston studying the operations and maintenance of the Scott - New Madrid - Mississippi Electric Cooperative system. He was shown area farms and methods of irrigation, DeWint Zaricor, assistant manager of the Rural Electrification Administration Cooperative said.

"When we visited the Peter Myers farm in Canalou, he was amazed to see 800 or 900 acres managed by three men," Zaricor said. "In his country it would take at least 100 persons to farm the same amount of land."

The major cities of Brazil are supplied by different electrical companies, but only about one per cent of the rural dwellers have access to electricity.

"In this respect, Brazil is where we were in 1937," Zaricor said.

The REA began operations in the United States in 1935. It received loans for development through the U.S. department of agriculture and started in Southeast Missouri in 1937.

Moral is studying the financing of the system and reviewing the growth pattern and costs.

He will tour mid - western states in a two - month stay and will return to Washington, D.C., before going back to Sao Paulo. His tour started in the captiol two weeks ago.

Moral has contributed technical articles on the need for rural electrical service in his country to trade journals and general circulation magazines.

He and his wife left today for St. Louis, where they will tour the Wagner Electric Corporation plant. Moral's speciality is electrical transformers. At the St. Louis factory, he will see them being made, Zaricor said.

After one day in St. Louis, Moral and his wife will tour REA operations in Trenton. Then, they will fly to Texas.

His trip holds four main purposes:

First, he is trying to have the government here set up a technical school for development of a rural electrication system in Brazil. This would have to be done through a federal aid program.

The country has tremendous electric producing potential, but the people need to be trained to develop it, Moral said.

Special processes need to be employed to treat utility poles in Brazil. Life length in some areas for a utility pole is about one year. A proper solution could be developed for treating the poles to give them a life of at least 20 years, Moral said.

Another purpose for his visit, is to try to obtain shipments of used materials from REA, Zaricor said.

He also would like to attract industry to develop the natural resources. One tree grown in the northern section of Brazil will produce eight different usable products. The stands are tremendous, but it is going to waste, because it is not being used, Moral said.

In another section of the country, roads are paved with a magnetic iron ore. The deposit is so rich that flying in the area is dangerous. But it, too, isn't being utilized, he continued.

His main reason in coming is to learn all he can about the REA system. He is a leading authority on the subject and has a library of materials on rural electrification. He will discuss his finding in the United States with the president of his country on his return and hopes to encourage rural electrical development.

Life expectancy is short in the underdeveloped areas, Moral continued. In some sections, where Indians live, 800 of an average of 1,000 babies die before the age of one, he said.

Moral's preconceived ideas about the American people have changed since his visit, he said. From the American movies he had the idea that most American men went through about three wives in a lifetime, he said.

He was pleased to find close families here and surprised to see so many churches.

There is a more prevalent concern for educating American children here, he said. "And something else, in my country any boy can buy tequila, beer or anything, here they cannot." He preferred the liquor laws practiced here.

Newspapers flash front page news about killings and tragedies, but the good things done are minimized, he related.

Motorbike Puts Doctor in Bed

Dr. Stephen Parks, pathologist at the Missouri Delta Community hospital, is a patient there now.

He suffered a twisted left knee and torn ligaments in his leg in a motorcycle accident at 2:47 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. Parks was riding his Honda on North Main, and accelerated too much while attempting to turn on Hunter Street. He lost control, struck a pole or sign, and was thrown from the vehicle. He hurried his turn to avoid traffic.

The doctor's condition today is satisfactory.

"It's similar to a football injury,...painful, but not a matter of life or limb. And I'm certainly not going to get rid of my Honda," Dr. Parks said.

The doctor admits to being an inexperienced motorbike rider, but enjoys riding with his daughter. He was wearing a helmet when the accident occurred.

Eye and Leg Hurt In Two Accidents

Two emergency patients were treated Thursday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

John Robert Allen was changing a tire when the jack handle flew up hit him in the right eye, and Dirle Glen Ritchie caught his left leg between a plow and power take off.

George D. Wood, who heads the World Bank, began his career as an office boy in a New York bond house and attended school at night after work.

Some sections of Afghanistan are marked by an extreme range of temperature. Kabul can be 50 degrees at sunrise and 100 degrees by noon.

Bank Alarm Brings Police In 30 Seconds

Four police cars converged on the Bank of Sikeston at 9:31 a.m. today, after the intrusion alarm sounded by accident at the station. The officers signed off at the bank 30 seconds after receiving the call, the radio operator said.

The cause of the alarm is not known, William Werneck, cashier, said today. It could have been set off by an employe, high humidity, work on the line, or by weak batteries. There is no way of telling what set the alarm, he said.

In other activity, William L. Jackson, Dunn Hotel, was charged with driving while intoxicated at 1:30 a.m. today on New Madrid Street.

Four motorists were charged today with speeding: Hazel C. Greer, 634 Branum; Bobby Henderson, 639 East Gladys; Claude B. Turner, 106 East Gladys, and Lula E. Bell, 248 East Gladys.

Arthur Dickerson, 74, a patient at Shuffit's nursing home no. 3, walked away at 5 a.m. today. He was found later and returned to the nursing home.

Qulin Cyclist Strikes Truck

A 15-year old Qulin boy was injured while driving a Honda motorcycle yesterday. He struck a 1963 Ford pickup truck.

The accident occurred at 4 p.m. on a gravel road, one and one-half miles west of Oglesville in Butler county. The youth was on the wrong side of the road, the patrol reported. The truck was driven by Lucy Hicks, 63, also of Qulin.

He was treated at the Poplar Bluff hospital.

At 3:30 p.m. yesterday on highway 61, three miles north of Benton, a 1967 Rambler, driven by Franklin Weaver, 26, Plattsville, Ala., drove into the highway from a field. He was struck by a 1963 Plymouth, driven by Burton Brown, 32, Sikeston.

The Sikeston driver came over a hill and struck the Weaver car.

Neither driver was injured.

At midnight, Leon Taylor, 36, Bossier City, La., driving south on Interstate 55, four miles south of Sikeston, was reported by the highway patrol dozing while driving a 1964 International tractor trailer.

The vehicle went off the road and overturned. The driver was not injured.

Foreign Aid Slashed Half Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, laboring through a marathon 15-hour session, voted early today to slash President Johnson's foreign aid requests by a half billion dollars to $2.8 billion.

Even after a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition pushed through floor cuts of $344 million— and the House accepted earlier committee cuts of $219 million for a total of $563 million less than Johnson asked— the Democratic leadership was able to get the reduced version through by only an eight-vote margin.

The final count, recorded at 3:36 a.m., was 202 to 194. Many members had long since fled the chamber.

Even with the extensive pruning, the House-passed measure still contains nearly $200 million more than the Senate approved last week.

The differences, mostly in the military assistance section of the legislation, now must be resolved by a two-house conference committee.

Just before passing the measure, the House overturned an earlier 145-141 vote and cut an additional $33 million in technical assistance funds. The Republican move won the second time around, 234 to 163.

Included among the major cuts were $150 million from the development loan program, $72 million from the alliance for progress and $25 million from the President's contingency fund.

Another $60 million for support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was chopped out after members were told they already had authorized the money in a separate bill passed earlier.

Despite the deep cuts, administration forces weren't totally without success.

Staved off were bids to pare $120 million from the support assistance program, and an additional $70 million from the Alliance for Progress, the program conceived by President John F. Kennedy to aid Latin American countries.

But the Democratic leadership was turned back in an attempt to restore a second-year authorization for the Alliance for Progress, eliminated Wednesday by an amendment.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-SC., of the Armed Services Committee sponsored the cut in NATO funds, approved 148 to 78.

Mother of Six Gives Birth to Quadruplets

ST. LOUIS (AP)— A 34-year-old mother of six children gave birth early today to quadruplet boys in DePaul Hospital.

Dr. Nicholas A. Correnti, the attending physician, said the mother, Mrs. Richard Kahrenkrog of St. Louis County, and her sons were in good condition.

The first child was delivered, Correnti said, at 1:03 a.m., and weighed 5 pounds, 2 ounces. The second arrived at 1:42 a.m. weighing 4 pounds, 7 ounces; the third at 1:45 weighed 4 pounds, 3 ounces, and the fourth at 1:47 weighed 5 pounds, 1 ounce.

The Fahrenkrogs' other children— three boys and three girls— range from one to nine years of age. The father is an electrical engineer.

Correnti said, "The father predicted that they would all be boys, but we thought there would be at least one or two girls. We tried to call Lloyds of London and make a bet on his hunch, but we waited too long."

The father, "overjoyed," was reported by C. . renti as calmly watching television in the waiting room during the births.

Sniper Kills Nazi Leader

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi party was shot and killed today by a sniper, Arlington police said.

Police said Rockwell was in a parking lot across the street from the Nazi party headquarters in this Washington suburb when he was shot.

They said the sniper, who fired from the roof of a building, escaped.

Police said they were looking for a man dressed in a trench coat.

Police said the victim was struck in the chest in the 6000 block of Wilson Boulevard.

Arlington police officer John E. Mitchell said policemen who rushed to the scene reported the victim was Rockwell, 47, well known to most of the Arlington police force.

Rockwell apparently was killed instantly by the sniper's bullet.

Arlington police were combing the mixed commercial and residential area for the unknown killer.

An ambulance called to the scene remained for 30 minutes while the victim's body lay on the ground following the noon shooting.

Rockwell frequently appeared around the country leading counter-demonstrations during civil rights marches.

He often was accompanied at such demonstrations by members of his party dressed in uniforms patterned after those of German Storm Troopers of the Hitler era.

Rockwell also was a frequent speaker before college audiences. His appearances usually brought out pickets and hecklers and often produced controversy over whether he should be allowed to appear.

Judge Fines 15 Motorists For Exceeding Speed Limit

Clifford W. Denbow, Puxico, was fined $56 on a charge of driving while intoxicated, $81 on a charge of resisting arrest, and $56 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving Thursday night in city court. Judge James Sickal presided.

Elmer L. Hoosier, 846 Linn, was fined $106 on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Herbert Ahart, 504 West Murray Lane, was fined $100 on a charge of assault and battery.

Linda Kay Francis, 722 Delmar, was fined $17 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Charles E. Stallings, 209 Broadway, was fined $56 on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Robert W. Waldroup, Charleston, S.C., was fined $56 on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and $12 on a charge of public intoxication.

Bobby Jimerson, New Madrid, and Robert Farris, Jr., 842 East Kathleen, were each fined $12 on charges of public intoxication.

Thelma Joe Peterson, 214 Alabama, was fined $15 on a charge of peace disturbance.

Wilson Wright, 1408 Osage, was fined $25 on a charge of assault and battery.

James Donald Box, 308 Lillian, was fined $31 on a charge of peace disturbance.

Lyman Fred Petty, Sikeston, was fined $17 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

The following persons were fined on charges of speeding: Gary Kinsey, 1811 Oklahoma, $22; Harvey Huse, 814 Wayne, $20; Aubrey Michael Jr., Benton, $26; Carl W. Dye, route four, Sikeston, $20; Larry Kellett, 839 Mary, $21.

Joy Guthrie, 303 Missouri, $24; Billy J. Baker, route four, Sikeston, $19; Elmer D. Russell, 111 Ruth, $20; Herbert D. Couch, 850 Agnes, $22; Ronald H. Cobb, 810 East Hunter, $22; Linda S. Geisler, 722 Delmar, $21; she also was fined $7 on a charge of no city auto license.

Dara S. Grant, 607 Cleveland, fined $21 on a speeding charge and $7 on a charge of no city auto license.

Other speeders fined are: Francinea Marshall, 317 Kramer, fined $19; Martha L. Howell, 635 Branum, fined $19, and Lanny D. Presley, Sikeston, fined $21.

MRS. HANNAH REEVES (left), Canalou, greets her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Camden, Tenn., who came to visit after a separation of 52 years.

Sisters Reunite After 52-Year Separation

By CAROL MILLER

CANALOU -- "I wouldn't have known her if we'd met on the street," said Mrs. Hannah Reeves, of her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Camden, Tenn., when Mrs. Crowell came for a visit.

The reason? They hadn't seen each other for 52 years. The last time the two were together was when Mrs. Reeves and her husband, Clead, left Camden for Canalou in July of 1915.

Most of the Reeves family lived near Canalou, and Reeves was out of work. When his brother wrote that there was plenty of work in Canalou, he and his wife decided to move. He found work in the stave mill and later turned to farming.

Their oldest son, Don, was only three weeks old when the Reeves left Tennessee.

At first the two sisters a cousin called her brother in corresponded, but near the end of World War I, they lost contact. Mrs. Reeves said that her letters were returned uncalled for so she stopped writing.

Unknown to Mrs. Reeves, Mrs. Crowell had moved and later married Ben Crowell in Waverly, Tenn. After that she lived in several Tennessee communities while Mrs. Reeves stayed in Canalou except for two years she lived on South Kingshighway in Sikeston.

Mrs. Reeves, 76, heard about her sister, Mrs. Crowell, 72, occasionally from people passing through Canalou or from friends who also had relatives in Tennessee.

For years there was silence. Mrs. Reeves did not believe that her sister was dead but she could not be sure. Last week Poplar Bluff, B. H. Sims and said that Mrs. Crowell was coming for a visit.

"She later wrote B. H. when she would be there, but she came early and surprised him even more," said Mrs. Reeves.

"Then my sister-in-law called me and said that Hattie would be over," Mrs. Reeves said. "She's my only living sister.

We were a family of six -- besides the two of us there were two other sisters and two brothers.

Mrs. Crowell plans to stay in Canalou until Sunday and then return to her brother's home in Poplar Bluff where she will remain until Tuesday.

"We aren't planning anything particular other than that, "Mrs. Reeves said. "I aim to just sit around and talk to her."

Mrs. Reeves says that she might return Mrs. Crowell's visit if one of her children decides to travel to Tennessee but she does not like to travel by herself.

She has five chances to make that visit with one of her children --Mrs. Rena Poe, 444 Smith Street; Mrs. Bertie Hoskins, North City, Ill.; Raymond Reeves, Benton; Don Reeves, Alexandria, Ind.; and Mrs. Mary Louise Vaughn, Canalou.

Mrs. Crowell wants to come back before another 52 years passes if her health is good. The main reason that the reunion has not taken place earlier is because of her ill health and she believed Mrs. Reeves might be dead.

"We always got along as children even when I teased her and called her little sis," laughed Mrs. Reeves.

"I JUST AIM to sit around and talk to her," said Mrs. Hannah Reeves (center). Mrs. Reeves is enjoying the conversation of her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, who she thought might be dead, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Louise Vaughn, Canalou.

LongPooh-Poohs Eagleton's Entry Into Senate Race

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., poohpoohed the possibility of Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton opposing Long in next year's primary elections, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat said today.

The newspaper said Long commented in a telephone interview that he will seek another term in the Senate, "on my record and the record of the Democratic party."

Long added, "As far as I know Tom is running for lieutenant governor, and I'm supporting him for that office."

But Eagleton, testing political sentiment in southwest Missouri Thursday, said:

"If I receive the same kind of support in the next two or three weeks that I have been getting, I will run."

He referred to "adverse publicity which Senator Long has received in recent months," and said that was a factor in his decision to consider the race.

However, Eagleton said he would not engage in "any castigation of Senator Long."

Caruthersville Bridge Snagged

ST. LOUIS (AP)— An informal conference has apparently failed to resolve differences which threaten to stall construction of a proposed $14 million Mississippi River bridge near Caruthersville, Mo.

Representatives of barge interests, highway department officials from Missouri and Tennessee, residents of the Caruthersville area and federal officials met Thursday in St. Louis.

A spokesman for the Mississippi River Valley Association said little was accomplished. Discussions are expected to continue.

The meeting was called by MVA after an official said a lack of communication was hampering attempts to resolve differences.

The principal issue is over the length of the bridge spans. Barge interests have requested longer spans to provide navigation room while going under the bridge. Highway engineers point out that longer spans would mean a more expensive bridge — $1.2 million more.

The four-lane bridge would be located seven miles downstream from Caruthersville at Boothspoint, Tenn., and would link Caruthersville and Interstate 55 in Missouri with Dyersburg, Tenn.

A trip from Caruthersville to Dyersburg now entails a drive to Memphis, Tenn., or Cairo, Ill., where the nearest bridges are located, or a ferry trip.

The executive vice president of the MVA, E. Michael Cassady, said a protruding bank on the Tennessee shore just below the proposed bridge site will make navigation difficult. Cassady said the longer span is needed to give towboat pilots room to maneuver around the Tennessee bank.

Executives Endorse Income Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred thirteen executives of major banks, transportation and industrial corporations endorse the idea of an income tax increase.

Their telegram to the House Ways and Means Committee Thursday did not specify any tax level and said signers were free to disagree with particulars of President Johnson's proposals.

Johnson has asked for a 10 per cent surcharge on existing individual and corporate income taxes.

The businessmen's statement also insisted on reduced civilian and military spending "to the maximum degree that is consistent with the nation's security and economic soundness."

Rains Flood Homes Near Nation's Capital

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Floodwaters caused by torrential rains forced the evacuation of several families in the Washington, D.C., suburb of Alexandria, Va., today and caused major traffic tieups in the area.

The northern Virginia suburbs of Washington were drenched with from 7 to 8 inches of rain in 48 hours. Four Mile Run reached a depth of 17 feet in Alexandria, overflowing its banks by 3 feet.

The heavy rains caused major traffic tieups on Interstate 95 also known as Shirley Highway, just south of Washington, and on other highways in North Arlington.

Heavy and prolonged rains have driven many rivers and streams over their banks from Georgia to the Virginias.

The rain moved northward into southern New England today, tapering off or ending in most areas farther south.

The New York City area and parts of New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania had 1 inch or more of rain in 6 hours.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Encouraged by almost ideal weather there appears to be a revival of interest in fairs along with a waning appetite for summer television programs, usually frothy and light and frequently repeats.

People aren't spending the time in front of the boob tubes they once did.

Interest began to subside once before but it was revived temporarily by increased dosage of color television. By now most viewers have become well aware that color alone won't save a poor television show.

Most gray haired people, who grew up in the 1930s, still regard the state fair with awe, either as an out-of-reach form of entertainment or a once in a lifetime event.

The late Phil Stong captured much of this magic in his book "State Fair", which twice has been made into a moving picture.

The state fair evoked wide-eyed wonder and excitement. It was a curious blend of bucolic festivities and bright carnival lights, a delight for people still close to the farm and unsated by televised entertainment.

Happily the state fair has survived and even prospered. The Missouri State Fair at Sedalia now in progress is attracting excellent patronage.

The 114th annual Ohio State Fair in Columbus opened this week admist $1.5 million worth of fairground improvements.

Iowa expects a half million visitors at the 10-day state fair which closes Sunday, pushing attendance to the level of 30 years ago.

Benefitting from a revival of interest in outdoor spectator entertainment was this year's edition of the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo. The weather was just what the Jaycees ordered.

Less reliance on television may be a good omen for the Community Concert series in Sikeston.

State fair managers have found that by catering to the city folk a bit more they can again draw the crowds of yesteryear.

Bob Hope, Perry Como, Hugh Downs and score of other top entertainers are as familiar a sight to fairgoers as are quarter horses and Hereford cows -- or for that matter the not so gently spiked mince meat that Actor Donald Meek savored in the first "State Fair" movie.

In this sense television has proved a boon to fairs as the presence of Actor Robert Conrad and Country Music Singer Molly Bee proved at the Sikeston rodeo.

The DuQuoin state fair across the Mississippi river in Illinois has an enviable reputation for attracting talent that would be a credit to Los Vegas, Broadway or Miami Beach.

Many county fairs have disappeared along with the butter churn and the windmill.

Some still abound. Interestingly enough they have a nostalgic appeal to the city dweller.

The National Conference for New Politics will open a seven-day meeting in Chicago on Tuesday (Aug. 29) to plan strategy for the 1968 elections. The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be the keynote speaker on Aug. 31.

SO LONG as the Johnson administration treats the war in Viet Nam as a kind of huge police action, it will continue to expose itself to the kind of criticism that could scarcely be tolerated in a declared war. That fact becomes more apparent as a blanket movement of the New Left prepares a program for next year's elections.

Michael J. Wood, field coordinator for the National Conference for New Politics (NCNP), on July 8 said that "Johnson in 1968 is the real issue that will bring 'the movement' together in Chicago and in the campaign." The Chicago reference was to a meeting of some 2,000 peace, civil rights, and new left student organization leaders.

Invitations to the meeting at the end of August were issued to a widely varied band of organizations on the left side of the political spectrum. The common denominator seems to be distaste for the war in Viet Nam. Wood, former staff member of the National Student Association who disclosed the subsidies from the Central Intelligence Agency, said President Johnson "symbolizes the corruption and immorality of the American policy in Viet Nam."

MOST OF THOSE INVOLVED in the Chicago conference will be young people, although advance proposals have linked the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., the 38-year-old keynoter, and Dr. Benjamin Spock, the 64-year-old pediatrician, as possible candidates on a third party ticket in 1968. Dr. King on April 25 said he would not accept a third party nomination, but Dr. Spock on July 17 said that he would run if asked.

Wood said on July 8 that the "old left" organizations like the Communist Party would not be invited to Chicago because they had become "too conservative." The New left seems to have little taste for ideology.

Writing in another contest, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover observes: "To equate the New Left with a political party or a tightly disciplined organization is to miss its true identify. It is not an organization. It does not have a constitution, bylaws, or an official membership.

"Rather the New Left is a MOOD, a PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE, a WELTANSCHAUUNG, a way of looking at SELF, COUNTRY, and the UNIVERSE."

CO-CHAIRMEN of the NCNP are State Rep. Julian Bond of Georgia, twice refused his seat in the George House because of his opposition to the Viet Nam war, and Simon Casady, who was ousted as president of the California Democratic Council in 1966 after bitterly criticizing President Johnson.

The New Left has suggested that a third party might run favorite son candidates -- like Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., in New York-- to attempt to take away key state electoral votes next year from President Johnson. The third party idea is contemplated also in a 2,400-word memorandum being circulated by Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., vice chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Among "dump Johnson" proposals by Rauh are a draft of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) for the Presidential nomination and a fight in the Democratic Convention for an anti-war platform plank. Among some Democrats, Viet Nam policy is almost as unpopular as it is with the New Left.

At last, standards for tires that permit all of us to know what we're buying!

Oh, you've known all along? Un-huh, sure you have - but what's the difference between a four-ply and a six-ply tire? Why are different pressures recommended for different driving conditions: Are you sure you've never worried about your point of contact with the road - the four tires underneath you? And, are you "dead certain" you understand what the tire salesman told you?

If not, better find out - or you may be "dead certain" of a blowout or something worse happening to you.

The job of knowing what's riding on your rims - besides yourself - has been made easier because the Federal Trade Commission has put out a new "Guide for Tire Advertising and Labeling." It became effective in February, 1967. Among other things, the guide:

Requires labels on tires that give you essential information about inflation pressures for various car weights. This may prevent you from buying a tire that's too weak to withstand the weight of your fully loaded vehicle.

Requires a listing of recommended load distribution. Overloading your tires, of course, can result in nasty, even fatal, consequences.

Although the labels and information will help, nothing will replace your own care and maintenance of tires. Your vehicle's slim grip on the road, the size of four hands, deserves the very best of care. Here are some tips.

Tire manufacturers say the number one rule for tire safety is matching tire inflation to the load. Over-inflated tires wear seriously in the center; under-inflated tires buckle in the middle and wear on the edges. Either way, the amount of rubber you have in contact with the road is markedly decreased, increasing the chances of a skid.

Frequent inspection of your tires, checking for wear and proper inflation, is rule number two. Don't neglect wheel alignment and wheel balance. Improper alignment or balance can set up a dangerous wobble, increasing tire wear.

Taking care of your tires will increase their life - and help to preserve yours.

Nothing is of greater importance than wearing shoes that fit properly, yet it is said that a big percentage of those worn in this country are not the correct size and shape for the feet they are covering. Be sure to have your feet measured -- accurately -- when you make a purchase.

Two Jewish mothers who had lived in the same block in Brooklyn when their children were growing up, but hadn't seen each other in years, happened to meet at a bridge luncheon in a swank hotel in Manhattan. After a tearful embrace, they retired to a corner to chat.

"And how are your two boys, William and Bernard?" the one woman inquired of the other.

"William is an attorney, and a full partner in an important New York law firm," the second woman responded with pride. "And it's Doctor Bernard, if you please; with so many patients that even his mother needs an appointment to see her own son in the afternoon! . . . And your son, Herman, how is he?"

The first mother's eyes dropped, but only for a moment. "Herman is a homosexual," she said.

"That's wonderful!" exclaimed her friend. "And where's his office?"

VITAL ACTIVITIES FOR FREEDOM

In addition to the light duties of enlisting and processing Youth Freedom Speakers in their area, the Board of Counselors for a YFS Chapter, composed of gifted men and women deeply interested in public affairs, can use their formal organization to supplement and perpetuate other freedom activities. It has been proved that working for freedom generates its own steam. Nearly all YFS Counselors will want to expand their pro-freedom activities.

A written or telephone petition of two-thirds of the members of the Board of Counselors can call an activity to the attention of the Executive Committee. This committee, upon finding that the activity is non-partisan, non-sectarian and vitally worthwhile, may decide that the YFS Chapter should participate.

The Counselors will be community-minded people, and if a project is locally non-controversial the Executive Committee may decide in its favor. National and state affairs are more critical. In participating in them, the Board may concern itself with highly important national affairs in the pattern of the Herbert Hoover Commission's work in planning a more efficient administration of governmental matters.

Participation in activities outside the normal YFS activities will actually enhance the goals and ideals of the YFS movement. Youth Freedom Speakers will become better known locally, and Freedom Speakers and what they speak for will gain in public esteem. The stature of Youth Freedom Speakers in the community and across the state and nation will rise. The ideals for which they strive will become widely known, and the cause of freedom will be advanced.

Lady Senator Deplores Females' Failure To Organize Women-Power and Take Leadership.

It may be a man's world, but Senator Margaret Chase Smith does very well proving to the contrary. It would be ungentlemanly of this column to describe her as a veteran Senator. But she is. And an effective one, too.

The lady from Maine, for example, is on the Senate Committee for Armed Services, Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee and, naturally, on the Appropriations Committee.

The other day I asked her if a woman can become President of the U.S. Here is her reply just as she wrote it for this column:

By Margaret Chase Smith
United States Senator from Maine

Washington, D.C.: -- "Where is the proper place of a woman?" is a question I have often been asked. It has been asked so many times in so many ways and by so many types of people that, of necessity, my answer has had to transcend the normal and understandable prejudice that a woman might have.

My answer is short and simple -- woman's proper place is everywhere. Individually, it is where the particular woman is happiest and best fitted. This may seem to be an oversimplification, but it is a conclusion of mine that has been repeatedly reassured by my experiences in meeting people all over the world.

I think that it is a well-accepted fact that the final responsibility for wars is that of the people themselves -- not of the leaders of nations. If we are ever to achieve permanent peace, it will stem from the will of the people themselves, rather than the genius of their leaders.

What do these observations have to do with the answer to what is the proper place of women? Simply this: America, the peace leader of the world, has granted the greatest opportunity to the women -- and America's peace leadership stems directly from the influence and participation of American women in shaping the decisions of this country.

The traditional belligerency of most nations is in inverse ratio to the degree of freedom and recognition that the particular nation grants to women. Wherever you find the woman's voice granted even an approach to parity with that of the man's you will find a more peaceful nation.

If there is any one proper role for women today it is that of alert and responsible citizens in the fullest sense of the word. Citizenship is without sex. It makes no distinction between the rights and responsibilities of men and women -- in America. Since the granting of suffrage to women, the only differential between men and women as citizens has been the availability and acceptance of leadership.

The question is where can women best serve. The answer is -- everywhere: (1) in the home as wives and mothers; (2) in organized civic, business and professional groups; (3) in industry and business, both management and labor; and (4) in government and politics.

Perhaps the most lasting and basic influence of women is in the Home. This might appear too obvious for mention. But it is often that we overlook the obvious. The fight for decent conditions in communities, for improvement in food, housing, school, health and recreational facilities must be led by the women of the Home -- the wives and the mothers.

Much, if not most, of the past leadership of women in this country has come through civic organizations. The basic ingredient for this successful performance record has been the banding of women together in organized groups to give greater voice and more specific objectives to the interests and efforts of individual women.

Women have provided leadership in industry and business. This has been heavily on the Management side for there is a dearth of women leaders in the ranks of labor. Labor unions need the balanced judgement of more women labor leaders.

Why is it that women have made such little progress in the field of politics which, ironically enough, was the very arena of their emanicipation -- the granting of suffrage? The answer lies greatly with the women themselves. In the first place, the meteoric rise of women in the business and professional fields stems greatly from the plain fact that women had the desire for participation and success in these fields. They had sufficient determination to translate that desire into results.

To a great extent, men have encouraged rather than opposed the participation of women in business and professions. Initially, women served their apprenticeship in secretarial jobs. The secretarial duties expanded into executive duties, and before the men realized it, they had come to rely so much upon their women assistants that they could not do without them and had to accept them in the executive field rather than let them go.

The shadings of development and promotion cannot be as subtle in politics for there is nothing subtle about being a candidate for political office. The old prejudice of men against women is given full warning for resistance. Immediately when a woman candidate announces, the male cry is that "public office" is no place for a woman or "the State is not quite ready for a woman in that office." When asked "Why?" the answer is invariably that "she can't hold her own with the men" or "she can't neglect her home duties for her public office duties."

Performances disprove the negative phrase of "no place for a woman." There are many examples of women officeholders who have more than held their own with men. All women in the Congress are outstanding members of most important Congressional Committees. There are plenty of examples of women public officials who have successfully maintained their homes and reared their children. A man legislator's division of his professional time as a lawyer oddly enough is never challenged.

Whether or not there is a future in politics for women depends upon the women themselves. If they have the sufficient desire and determination not only to hold public office but to organize politically and vote in blocks and elect qualified women candidates, then there is most definitely a future in politics for women. The inescapable fact is that they hold the control of the public offices with their majority voting power.

Will they exercise that power? I think they will if they are made to realize that they hold the power. Organized women's power has been forcefully proved, if the incentive is there.

Basically, the incentive and the attraction of more women in higher public office should stem from the fundamental fact that women are the governors of the home. They legislate the rules of the home; they execute and enforce the rules of the home and they interpret the rules of the home. The importance of their role as governors of the home is that the home is the most fundamental form of government. Our community governments are no more than a federation of individual home governments.

There has been too little of the home in the government and too much government in the home. The most obvious and natural way to reverse this trend is to put more of the home governors in the government -- and that means women.

That is why there is a definite and inescapable future in politics for women. It is only a question of time - only a matter of how long the men oppose women holding public office and, more important, how long the women themselves are guilty of such political inertia as not to overcome the opposition of the men.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- There has been a lot of oratory lately about whether the taxpyaers are spending too much or too little to help the big cities. The House made its attitude clear by refusing to spend $40 million over three years to exterminate rats and the diseases they spread.

In this connection, it is worth examining what congress has appropriated to prevent farm diseases which can also be passed on to people. These are beneficial programs which should be continued but should also be balanced by equal aid for the cities.

Because the old men who run congress come chiefly from rural areas, however, the battle against farm diseases gets appropriations and the proposals to fight city diseases do not.

Most of the powerful committee chairmen come from rural towns and do not understand big-city needs. Of the 16 senate committees, 13 are headed by senators from small towns. The agriculture committee, which takes a benevolent attitude toward rural problems, has 77-year-old Sen. Allen Ellender of Houma, La., as its chairman. The public welfare committee, which is supposed to concern itself with city problems, is headed by 73-year-old Sen. Lister Hill of Montgomery, Ala.

Of the 20 house chairmen, 16 come from small towns. The agriculture committee is chaired by 68-year-old Rep. W.R. Poage of Waco, Tex., and the public welfare committee is run by 66-year-old Rep. Carl Perkins of Hindman, Ky.

The money must come from the senate appropriations committee, whose chairman is 90-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden of Phoenix, Ariz., and the house appropriations committee, which is headed by 68-year-old Rep. George Manon of Lubbock, Tex.

FARM VS. SLUMS

Here how these aging, rural-minded leaders are spending the taxpayers' money to protect their own constituencies:

Bang's disease, which causes abortion in cows and hogs, can be passed on to people as undulant fever. The federal government pays a farmer up to $50 bonus to butcher a cow if it contracts bang's disease. He also collects the regular market price for the meat. In most states, cattle herds must be tested each year; the cows are either certified as bang's - free or they are slaughtered. The program costs the taxpayers $21.5 million a year, plus another $250,000 for research. This is important to the nation's health but no more important, say, than an annual inspection program to certify apartment houses as rat-free.

Weed control costs the taxpayers $26.9 million doled out to the states, state universities and research stations, another $2.7 million spent for experimentation. Still another $3.2 million goes to eliminate witchweed, a parasitic growth that destroys corn crops in some southern states. Water hyacinth control costs the taxpayers an additional $6.7 million a year to keep this weed out of southern rivers. Water hyacinths choke the channels and waterways of the south to a point that fish are unable to live and motorboats get their propellers fouled The grand total is close to $39 million, considerably more than the federal government spends to eliminate the weed of juvenile delinquency in the big cities.

Bovine tuberculosis, if transmitted to human beings, can cuase hunchbacks and other malformations. All cattle in the country must be tested once a year for TB, though the chief cost is borne by the cattle owners. However, the taxpayers put up $3.4 million each year for surveys and testing. The same amount would go a long way toward testing the nation's slum children for sickness.

The farm extension service draws $76.3 million annually from the treasury to help farm families with their production and marketing problems, home economics and family living, and the 4-H movement for farm youth. For example, the 4-H clubs -- "Head, hand, heart, and health" -- have been teaching better citizenship to farm boys and girls for a long time. Similar programs have been needed in the big cities. The home economics training, available to rural housewives, should also have been offered to slum women.

Yet another $2.3 million is spent by the government on improving the breeding strains of cattle, hogs, sheep and goats. Like the other farm programs, most of the cost is paid by city and suburban taxpayers. But the congressmen from the country, whose seniority has given them control of congress, appropriate the money for their constituents and neglect the teeming cities.

COLD WAR AT HOME

A great bureaucratic battle has been racing behind the scenes ever since President Johnson tried to merge the labor and commerce departments.

There were whisperings that still other shake-ups would follow. Suddenly, rival agencies began raiding one another's territory and stealing one another's functions.

The commerce department, through its alliances on Capitol Hill, successfully defended its borders against the labor department. But labor struck out in other directions. It started flanking movements to capture the job corps away from the office of economic opportunity and to grab the manpower - training functions from the department of health, education and welfare. Under fire from the anti - antipoverty guns, OEO is now fighting desperately to defend its territorial integrity against half a dozen departments.

The two newest bureaucratic kingdoms -- the department of housing and urban development and the department of transportation -- already have started battling over the urban mass transportation function (and the appropriations that go with them). Several other agencies have also revived ancient animosities and petty rivalries. Out of it is almost certain to come more reorganization.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Letters we'd like to get but rarely do:

"Recently my associates and I acquired and modernized the famous resort, Glumville-by-the-Sea. In going over the records we noted that you and your wife were the first honeymooners to register at the opening of the resort just 25 years ago this month. To celebrate this historic anniversary we'd like you to be our guests for two weeks. Everything will be on us, naturally. Just bring along your wife and a bathing suit. If you don't have the same wife, bring any wife of your choice."

"You may have thought it was a joke to send to our art gallery the pictures which your daughter painted in kindergarten. However, the child has genius in her fingertips. She is what we class as a postcubist, preimpressionist, transcendental original modern primitive of the first water. Artists of that type are, as you may conjecture, extremely rare. We sold her first 12 paintings for $6,000. Have you any more? We strongly recommend that you keep that kid chained in kindergarten for at least five more years."

"As the fund to build a concrete wishing well on the campus of our beloved Alma Mater has already been oversubscribed, I am returning your check for $1.35. But it is heartwarming, indeed, to list you among the hundreds of loyal alumni who responded so faithfully to our appeal. As a token of gratitude we are enclosing you free tickets to all our home football games this year."

"As one father to another, I know that my daughter must have talked your son into the elopement. Now that it's done, however, why don't we make the best of it? I'd consider it a privilege if you let me pay the bills for their last year in college, and also take your boy into my firm when he graduates. Incidentally, if you're not completely happy in your own job, I have a $25,000 executive post empty in my organization which I'd be glad to offer--."

"By the way, Joe, remember Daphne, that gal in our high school class who jilted you and later married the guy we voted most likely to succeed? Yesterday I saw her peddling can openers door to door trying to raise enough dough to bail her husband out of jail, where he's locked up as a chronic drunk. Two of their three kids are in reform school, and the third one just got a dishonorable discharge from--."

"It appears that my dumb nephew got the sales tags mixed up and the coat your wife bought is made of chinchilla not rabbit fur. Of course, legally she is entitled to keep it, but if you are open to a reasonable offer, I'll be glad to--."

Wilma Belk Marries Kenneth O. Bartlett

CHARLESTON -- Miss Wilma Jean Belk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bly V. Belk, became the bride of Kenneth O'Neal Bartlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Bartlett, Sunday, at 2 p.m. at New Bethel Baptist church. The Rev. Homer Stallings officiated at the double ring ceremony.

White and yellow gladioli formed a background for the wedding, and baskets of yellow daisies were on the piano and organ. The couple knelt on white satin cushions for the benediction.

Mrs. Marilyn Glenn served as organist and accompanied Buddy Duke, who sand "I Love You Truly" and for the benediction, "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Betty Shoaf, Ilmo, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Diane Lenger, Cape Girardeau, and Miss Julia Barlett, sister of the bridegroom, of Charleston.

They wore yellow floor-length dresses of peau de soie with empire waistlines. The bodices and short, bell sleeves were lace. Their headdresses were pillboxes of yellow peau de soie and net. They carried bouquet of yellow daisies.

The bride made her wedding gown and veil. The floor-length dress was quite peau de soie, featuring an empire waistline and bodice with long sleeves of peau de soie covered with lace. A train of peau de soie covered with lace was attached at the shoulders. Her fingertip veil was attached to a pillbox of peau de soie covered with lace. She carried a white orchid on a white Bible, a gift from the groom.

Earl Caid of Charleston was best man and groomsmen were Sonny Burcks and David Belk of Charleston.

Mrs. Belk, mother of the bride, wore a light blue afternoon dress with three-quarter length sleeves, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Bartlett, the groom's mother, wore a deep rose print two-piece costume suit with black patent leather accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The bride was graduated from Charleston high school in 1963 and Office Training School in 1964. She has been employed at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau for over three years.

Bartlett is a graduate of Annisten high school, class of 1963, and is employed in Maryland Heights. The couple live in a new mobile home in Prince Charles Park at St. Charles.

A reception was held in the church educational building. Misses Phyllis Evans and Linda O'Neal served cake and punch. Miss Paula Noisworthy officiated at the guest book. Ushers were James Belk, brother of the bride, and John Moxley, brother-in-law of the bride, from Fayette.

Brenda Kay Stewart Pledges Vows With John Ellis Cathey

BENTON -- Miss Brenda Kay Stewart and John Ellis Cathey of Charleston were married at 6 p.m. Saturday in St. Denis church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart of Benton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cathey, 207 Locust, Charleston.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Donovan officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Sister M. Angelica, the girls choir and the congregation provided wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Stewart wore a street-length empire style gown of lace and peau de soie. The neckline and bell-shaped sleeves were scalloped.

She wore a small veil and carried a bouquet of posies.

Miss Sharon Dennis of Benton was maid of honor. Miss Jane Stewart of Benton, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid. They wore mint green dotted swiss and whipped cream street-length dresses. Lace accented the sleeves and hemline. Cabbage clusters of green held their nose-tip veils.

Tommy Butler of Charleston was best man. Groomsman was Dennis Butler, Charleston.

The bride's mother wore a peach colored dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception and buffet luncheon was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was covered with a white cloth. Cake, punch and green mints were served.

For a short wedding trip, the new Mrs. Cathey changed to an empire styled green, orange and white sleeveless dress. She wore white accessories.

The couple lives at 610 Cypress, Charleston. Mrs. Cathey is employed by the Sikeston Daily Standard. Her husband is an employe of the highway department.

If you would have a happy family life, remember two things: in matters of principle, stand like a rock; in matters of taste, swim with the current.

Edgar J. St. Clair

St. Clair Will Conduct Revival At Parma

PARMA -- The First Baptist church is planning a revival meeting Monday through Sept. 8. Services will begin at 8 p.m. each evening.

The Rev. Edgar J. St. Clair, pastor of the Lindenwood Baptist church, St. Louis, will be the evangelist for the 12-day meeting. The Rev. Mr. St. Clair is well known in this area, having been pastor of the Second (Air Base) Baptist Church, Malden, and of the First Baptist church, Campbell. He is a graduate of Arkansas State University, Jonesboro, and Southern Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

Roger Campbell, Oran, will be the song leader during the series of meetings. Campbell also is well known in this area. He and his wife are natives of Parma.

A special feature of the revival, according to the pastor, the Rev. Gayford Lowrance, will be a recognition of some of the different organizations of the church at various times during the meeting. The leaders of these organizations will be asked to give a brief testimony on the functions of their particular group in its relationship to the total church program.

The organizations and the leaders that will be recognized are: the Sunday School, Orville Coffey, superintendent; the Training Union, Mrs. Mary Harchous, director; the Women's Missionary Union, Mrs. Chlora Gilmer, vice president; Baptist Men's work, Doyle Crow, president; the Girls Auxiliary to the WMU, Mrs. Mary Jo Goforth, leader; the Sunbeam Band, Mrs. Clara Bagby, leader. Present plans also include a youth night emphasis for Sept. 2.

PLANTS AND THEIR SURVIVAL

A plant strives to survive much as do animals and people. Many have means by which to protect themselves. The rose has protective thorns, the thistle has sharp penetrating prickles and the cactus has strong, sharp spines. Other plants have chemical weapons such as sumac, nettle and poison ivy.

It is said that without the thorns on the Cherokee rose it would have long ago disappeared because they taste so good to the grazing animals — the discouragement of the thorns has saved them.

Our floral arrangements last longer because they are gathered just at the right time to insure freshness. For that special occasion, brighten your home with our flowers.

Cards Claim Pitching Duel As Hughes Has Four-Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fans of the St. Louis Cardinals find it almost unbelieveable that their team has built what appears to be an insurmountable lead in the National League pennant chase.

In fact, it's no longer a race or a chase except for second place. The Cards lead runner up Cincinnati by 11½ games following a 2-0 shutout of San Francisco Thursday night and a 4-3, ten inning loss by the Reds to the Dodgers.

Only two and one - half games seperate Cincinnati, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

Thursday night was typical: The Cards Dick Hughes and the Giants Gaylor Perry almost matched pitch for pitch through eight scoreless innings.

Perry limited the Cards to two hits, but was in occasional trouble because of seven walks.

Then came the ninth. Tim McCarer singled, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Bob Tolan's pinch single. Hughes, followed with another single to drive in Julian Javier who got aboard on an intentional walk.

Perry gave up a total of five hits in suffering his fifth straight loss to the Cards. Hughes was touched for four hits in posting his 13th victory. He has lost only four.

The Cards move down the coast for a twi - night doubleheader with the Dodgers in Los Angeles. Al Jackson and Larry Jaster will open for St. Louis, Bill Singer and Jim Brewer for the Dodgers.

Billy McCool hesitated and the Cincinnati Reds were lost.

McCool, working in relief in the 10th inning against Los Angeles Thursday night, waited a moment too long before deciding what to do with Jim Lefebvre's sacrifice bunt and the Reds wound up on the short end of a 4-3 score.

Gary Nolan was working on a three-hitter and leading 3-0 going into the ninth inning against the Dodgers. But three straight hits by Lefebvre, Al Ferrara and Wes Parker followed by two errors tied the score for Los Angeles.

An inning later, Lou Johnson opened with a double. Lefebvre bunted and McCool fielded the ball, looked towards third, hesitated, and threw to first. But Lefebvre beat the play.

An intentional walk to Ferrara loaded the bases and after Parker popped out, Bob Bailey singled Johnson home with the winning run.

In the only other National League games played Thursday, Houston edged Atlanta 5-4 in 10 innings. Pittsburgh's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

The Reds nicked Dodger starter Don Sutton for a pair of first inning runs and added another in the third. With Nolan breezing, the margin looked safe, and until the ninth, it was.

But Lefebvre opened with a single and Ferrara doubled. Parker's hit brought one run across and Lee Mays high throw on the relay allowed another to score. Then Tony Perez booted a grounder as Parker carried the tying run across.

Doug Rader drove in three runs with three hits and a sacrifice fly for Houston but the hero was Sonny Jackson, whose 10th-inning single scored Ron Brand with the winning run.

Brand had been hit by a Jay Ritchie pitch with two out and raced to third on Julio Gotay's double. Ramon Hernandez relieved for the Braves and Jackson singled the winning run home.

Japan In League Finals

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)— The Japanese ate rice, drank green tea and played it cozy. the kids from the South Side of Chicago ate steak and said, "we'll lick 'em, no doubt about it.'

This was how it was after West Tokyo, Japan, beat Pennsylvania's Newtown - Eegmont, and North Roseland of Chicago dumped Linares, Mexico, Thursday to enter the 21st annual Little League World Series championship game Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Tokyo team scored three runs in the first inning on three walks, a wild pitch and a single off N-E's 151-pound Neil Powers, who hit a home run for his team's only score in the 4-1 game Thursday.

Chicago topped Linares 4-3 in a seven-inning overtime game.

St. Louis Cardinals May Not Be Without Johnson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Army spokesman says quarterback Charlie Johnson may be able to play for the St. Louis Cardinals. Now the Cardinals have to figure out what to do with Johnson.

Johnson himself said his biggest problem, even if he could play, would be his timing.

"After a long layoff I could lose a lot of finesse and timing," Johnson said at Ft. Sill, Okla. The main thing to do to stay in St. Louis in good condition.

If Johnson can,t stay in good, condition and if his timing is off, then Coach Charley Winner might end up benching Johnson in favor of second-year quarterback Jim Hart.

The Washington Star said Thursday Johnson, 28, was found physically unfit to lead troops in combat. The newspaper said Johnson will be assigned to the National Space Administration's research center in Virginia. The Star said he would work civilian hours and should be available for all the Cardinals' games.

However, an Army spokesman at Ft. Sill denied that Johnson was found physically unsuitable. But he did say Johnson would be eligible for week-end passes during his nine-week stay at Ft. Sill. Johnson would be allowed to travel 500 miles from Ft. Sill on the passes. St. Louis is 450 air miles from the installation.

The spokesman added that when St. Louis plays outside the 500-mile limit, Johnson could probably get special permission to play with the team.

Johnson, a seven-year National Football League veteran, was called up for active duty Aug. 11 as a lieutenant.

William Bidwill, part owner of the Cardinals, said Johnson would probably get in touch with club officials to discuss the situation.

"We have discussed the possibility that this might happen," Bidwill said, "but right now I have no word about the situation."

In the Swan Lake zone only one Canada goose a day can be taken through October and two the rest of the season.

Football Rules Meetings Set For Cape, Dexter

Dexter and Cape Girardeau have been designated by the Missouri State High School Activities Association as sites for 1967 football rules interpretation meetings.

The meetings will be conducted by Ben Bidwell of Poplar Bluff.

The program of rules meetings is one phase of a program of the MSHSAA to improve officiating.

Football officials are required to attend one of the 21 statewide meetings in order to renew their license.

Both meetings are scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. with Dexter's set for August 31 and Cape's Sept. 5.

The Cape meeting will be held at the Southeast Missouri State College gymnasium. The high school Gym at Dexter will be the meeting place.

Cards-Steelers Clash At Nashville Saturday

NASHVILLE,--- With their first pre-season victory tucked safely away, and with some fine performances at home to go along with it, the Football Cardinals will make their third start here Saturday night against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Kickoff at Vanderbilt University's Dudley Field is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Head Coach Charley Winner said he was pleased with the team's performance after the 9-5 victory over the Colts before 34,054 fans at Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

"I thought Jim Hart made fine progress at quarterback," the coach commented. "We moved the ball pretty well most of the time, being stopped by some unfortunate penalties and mistakes, but our ball control was good.

"Our pass protection was outstanding. With one of the best defenses in the league to handle, our line kept Jim Hart from being knocked down even once.

"And the defense was excellent. It had a great goal line stand in the fourth quarter, of course, but it also kept Baltimore, which has a high-scoring reputation, from scoring a touchdown.

The Cardinals also pulled the unusual maneuver of giving up a deliberate safety in exchange for field position. With less that five minutes to play and the Cards ahead, 9-3, Baltimore had a first down on the Big Red eight. The Cardinals took the ball away on the one and, after three plays produced only five yards, Joe Randall went back to the end zone to punt.

He dropped to a knee, however, giving the Colts two points and the Cardinals a chance for a free kick from their own 20, gaining 14 yards and a non-rushed kick in exchange for the two points.

The strategy paid off, too, when Larry Wilson tackled pass-catching Jim Detwiler and the ball bounced into the arms of Dave Meggysey, giving the Cardinals possession with only 48 seconds to play.

The always-tough Steelers have dropped both their pre-season games, 31-20 to Green Bay and 20-17 to New Orleans, but will have their fine young quarterback, Bill Nelsen, on display, along with hard-running Earl Gros, acquired from Philadelphia in an off-season trade.

A year ago, the Big Red and the Steelers split their two games, with Pittsburgh gaining a 31-9 verdict and the Cardinals winning, 6-3. The home team won on both occasions.

With only a short time to work for the Saturday encounter, the Big Red probably will go with a similar lineup to the one that faced the Colts. With mandatory cut-down to 49 players coming on Monday, however, it appears that almost everyone will get a chance to see action.

After the Saturday game, the Cardinals will return to Lake Forest for their last week of training camp, climaxing with the annual Soldier Field game against the Bears, Sept. 1. The club will return to St. Louis over the Labor Day weekend to prepare for its final pre-season test, against the Detroit Lions on Sept. 8 for the St. Louis Symphony Society. The regular season opens at home against the New York Giants on Sept. 17.

Commissioner To Take Action

NEW YORK (AP)— Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert, promising "appropriate action at a later date," has stepped into the squabble between the Kansas City Athletics and their volatile owner, Charles O. Finley.

Eckert acknowledged Thursday that he had received a request from the Major League Players Association that he hold a hearing on the dispute which has resulted in the firing of Alvin Dark as Athletics' manager and the release of first baseman Ken Harrelson.

Eckert said, "I am gathering appropriate data on the subject and will take further appropriate action at a later date."

The letter was sent by Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association.

The Athletics, in the meantime, returned home to Kansas City Thursday and were met at the airport by about 1,000 fans, many carrying signs criticizing Finley and backing the players.

The confrontation arose last week when Finley suspended pitcher Lew Krausse for a drinking incident on a plane. The players released a statement criticizing Finley and, in the aftermath, Dark was fired and Harrelson was released.

Krausse was later reinstated and Finley's demand that the players retract their statement was refused.

Missourians Speak out for Ethics Rules

WASHINGTON (AP)— Three Missourians were among seven House members who addressed the new House Ethics Committee Wednesday to urge adoption of rules on disclosure of income and assets of congressmen and candidates, campaign spending and use of federal funds.

It was the first of two days of hearings.

All seven urged the committee to recommend that it be given power to monitor the rules.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D.Mo., proposed that congressmen and their wives and minor children as well as candidates and staff members file annual statements of income and holdings. He said the Ethics Committee should keep these secret unless it brings public charges against the member.

Bolling urged that candidates be required to report all primary and election campaign expenditures in their behalf, and that persons spending money without written authorization be subject to criminal penalties.

Bolling would require annual statements of all expenditures of federal funds by officers, members and employes of the House, and a statement showing that each staff member does the job for which he was hired.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., said each member should disclose any business in which he or an employe holds a financial interest or serves as director or adviser and identify any financial interests held by the member or his wife exceeding a certain minimum value, such as $5,000.

Curtis also asked an independent audit of congressional books.

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., asked the committee to draft a broad code covering nepotism, conflict of interest and campaign finance.

Cool, Wet Weather Will Continue into September

PORTAGEVILLE-- The trend for below normal temperatures and above normal rainfall that has provided most of the summer is expected to persist through the middle of September.

Centers of high pressure systems moving southward out of Canada will be following a path across the Northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Great Lakes. Tracks of several expected low pressure disturbances will cross Missouri.

While this combination favors opportunities for showers, amounts of rain will depend upon timing. If one cool spell follows closely upon another, chances are good for light and spotty showers since moisture content of the air will be limited. Should warm, moist southerly winds return to the Bootheel between cool outbreaks more general showers and thunderstorms are expected with potential for heavy downpours. The five-day outlook will provide an excellent key to precipitation probabilities for farmers planning field work through mid-September.

Below normal temperatures will continue to slow development of crops that are already well behind schedule this season. Susceptibility of both cotton and soybeans to bollworms will be prolonged. Spray schedules should be linked to weather trends to avoid wash-off by rains or excess drift by winds. Keep in mind that winds tend to increase with the approach of cold fronts. Northerly winds in the cool air behind the front will generally be too brisk for good contact either by ground rig or aerial application for at least a day or two.

Corn harvest is about ready to start in some sections of the Bootheel and the pace will increase during the period through mid-September. Here, again, farmers will want to take maximum advantage of dry periods between rains to avoid delay due to wet soils or high grain moisture. Low relative humidity and brisk winds in the flow following passage of cold fronts will accelerate drying.

Most cotton won't be ready for harvest during this period. Some early-planted cotton that survived the cool, wet spring may start the harvest season off, however. In any event, bottom defoliation is likely to be employed on this crop. Cotton defoliation recommendations published in the University of Missouri Guide series point out that rain within 4 to 6 hours after application of chemicals does not reduce effectiveness. However, leaf drop is slowed when the daily minimum temperature drops below 60 degrees. Defoliation is less complete, too, under cool weather conditions.

ESSA Weather Bureau records based upon data collected at Sikeston from 1931 to 1960 suggest that chances for nighttime temperatures falling below 60 degrees are less than 50% until the 11th of September. However, for Septembers with below normal temperatures, a 50-50 chance occurs about the 7th of the month. Temperatures forecasts can help the farmer make the most effective use of defoliants. The five day outlook can help you to choose the period most likely to meet temperature and rainfall requirements for most efficient defoliation. This will be a difficult problem with late maturing cotton this season. Prospects for adequate rainfall and cool temperatures are encouraging as far as setting soybeans is concerned. Many fields showed deficient moisture in soils during the second week of August. Timing and extent of rains will be of interest to farmers contemplating irrigation during the next few weeks. If plants are showing serious stress, however, don't rely too heavily upon scattered shower situations to solve your problem. Extension Directors usually begin alerting farmers to prepare for pasture and alfalfa seeding about this time of year. With uncertainty about soil moisture conditions and with late harvest likely to cut into normal schedules you might want to take advantage of dry weather to take up slack where possible. Normal rainfall for the period mid-August through mid-September for the Bootheel as a whole is 3.30 inches. Normals for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau, 3.73 inches; Dexter, 3.59 inches; Morehouse, 3.28 inches; Parma, 3.33 inches; Sikeston, 3.36 inches; Caruthersville, 3.04 inches; Doniphan, 3.57 inches; New Madrid, 3.26 inches; and Poplar Bluff, 3.29 inches.

Short term averages for other cities are: Advance, 2.99 inches; Bloomfield, 2.87 inches; Clearwater Dam, 2.92 inches; Kennett, 2.91 inches; Portageville, 2.94 inches; Qulin, 2.34 inches; Bernie, 2.78 inches; Charleston, 2.67 inches; Deering, 2.35 inches; Malden, 2.42 inches.

Cape Doctor Brothers Called

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The stepped-up call to service in the war in Vietnam will take two brother Cape Girardeau doctors, the third and fourth from this immediate area directed into the armed services.

Dr. Raymond A. Ritter Jr. and Dr. Carl F. Ritter have received their orders. The former will arrive Sunday in Munich, Germany, to serve as an army orthopedic surgeon.

Dr. Carl F. Ritter, who has been serving his internship at Parkland Hospital in Dallas, has been ordered to report to Luke Air Force Base near Phoenix, Ariz.

Both are captains and are graduates of the Washington University school of medicine in St. Louis. Their father is a Cape Girardeau physician and surgeon.

The other two doctors called are J. Marshall Jung of Illmo, and Wendall K. Stewart of Cape Girardeau. They have not yet reported for duty.

Dr. Stewart is a neuropsychiatrist and Dr. Jung a general practicioner, the only doctor in Illmo. Both will enter the Navy. Both have established practices.

Cape Officers Use Chemical Tool to Subdue

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Law enforcement officers in Cape Girardeau began carrying a device which may eventually replace the nightstick.

The new weapon is called "Chemical Mace." It is in six-inch black containers carried in holsters alongside pistols. The aerosol bombs are capable of 50 one-second bursts accurate up to 20 feet.

According to Lt. Col. K. K. Johnson, highway patrol assistant superintendent, "It is ideal for bringing unruly prisoners quickly under control and without injury."

Highway patrolmen throughout the state, including about 60 men in Southeast Missouri's Troop E area, have been equipped with the aerosol bombs.

The chemical is sprayed in a stream toward the victim. When it reaches the skin a vapor forms, reacting with oils and fatty compounds that affect nerve endings in contact with the skin. The immediate reaction is loss of balance and a stunned victim.

It makes the person helpless for 15 to 20 minutes with no ill effects.

Boundaries Set For ASC Electrons In New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- W. R. Phillips Jr., chairman of the New Madrid County agricultural stabilization and conservation committee, designated the boundaries of each community within the county where elections of ASC community committees will be held Sept. 19. The elections will be by the meeting method and will begin at 8 p.m.

Boundaries of the communities where elctions will be held are townships of the county -- Anderson, Big Prairie, Como, Hough, LaFont, LeSieur, Lewis, New Madrid, Portage, St. John and West.

The chairman reminded farmers that the elctions will choose three committeemen and two alternates for each community. The chairman, vice chairman, and third regular member of the elected ASC committee will also serve as delegates to the county convention to be held soon thereafter, where farmers will be elected to fill vacancies on the ASC county committee. The alternate committeemen will serve as alternate delegates to the convention.

Farmers eligible to cast ballots in the community election will be all those who are eligible to participate in one or more of the national farm programs which the committeemen help to administer locally. The farmer may be an owner, tenant, or sharecropper. Persons not of legal voting age who are in charge of the farming operations on an entire farm are also eligible to vote in the elections. Eligibility to vote -- or to hold office as a committeeman -- is not restricted by reason of race, color, creed, or national origin.

Major activities administered under the supervision of ASC committees in New Madrid County include Agricultural Conservation Program, Feed Grains (acreage diversion), Wheat Certificate Program, Upland Cotton (acreage diversion), and Price-Support Loans and Purchases.

Paper Mill to Begin Building At Wickliffe, Ky.

WICKLIFFE, Ky. -- Initial phase of construction of the $80 million Westvaco paper and pulp mill is scheduled to begin Monday.

A company spokesman said that equipment was being moved into the site by McDade Construction Co., Fulton, Ky.

Dirt excavation and filling will be the first order of business. The huge paper mill is scheduled for completion in early 1970. More than 1,000 construction workers are expected to be employed at peak of construction.

WHY NOT SAY IT?

Everyone was pleased with the playing of the blind young man who had been engaged for the position of organist at the large church on the corner. His playing thrilled them, for he was a splendid musician. Because he was blind, he could not see his audience; and he could not observe their reaction to his playing.

As the people listened, enchanted, they whispered about the beauty of his harmonies and the uplifting influence of his symphonies.

At first he played as one sure of himself. There was no hesitation in his touch. The great organ pealed forth splendid paeans of praise and cadences of majestic sweetness and power. Triumph sang in every note.

But as the young man played Sunday after Sunday to this great unseen audience, the former triumphant strains of voluntaries and recessionals gradually gave place to more delicate, sorrowful improvisations and plaintive minor fugues.

Then one Sunday it was announced after the service that the young man would be replaced by another musician.

A lady who had thoroughly enjoyed all of his music went to him and said very earnestly, "I am sorry you will not play for us longer. Many times I have had the urge to tell you what inspiration I have received through your playing. I do thank you for it."

DuQuoin State Fair Will Open Saturday

DU QUOIN, Ill. — If early activity is any indication, the 45th annual Du Quoin State Fair, which opens Saturday and runs through Labor Day, is certain to be "bigger and better" than ever before, just as its originator, W. R. Hayes, predicted many years ago.

With his 31-year-old grandson, W. R. (Bill) Hayes II, now heading the operation, the exposition has retained all of the popular features of former fairs, has added a few new attractions and may be experimenting this year with even more in order to make next year's product greater yet.

Principal feature is the world-famed Hambletonian, the Kentucky Derby of harness racing, which involves the finest three-year-old trotters in the tradition-rich classic. A comparatively large field of 15 or more may be entered in the $125,000-plus race scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 30.

While the Hambletonian highlights five days of Grand Circuit harness racing at Du Quoin, several other important — and rich — events are set for the second and fourth days of the Monday - through - Friday schedule.

United States Auto Club-sponsored championship auto races are key daytime attractions for the Labor Day weekend with twin 50-mile midget races set for Saturday, a 100-mile late-model stock car feature Sunday, and a 100-mile championship car event Labor Day.

Providing entertainment on the Fair's various night stage shows will be such stars as Louis Armstrong, Eddy Arnold, the Modernaires, Hines, Hines and Dad, the Tokyo Happy Coats, Johnny Cash, Little Jimmy Dickens and many others.

Grand Ole Opry stars lead off Saturday night when Cash and his troupe are featured along with Conway Twitty and Little Jimmy Dickens. The Sunday night show includes Billy Grammer, former Benton resident, LeRoy Van Dyke, Porter Wagoner and the Wagon Masters and Stonewall Jackson among its cast.

Supplementing the grandstand shows are livestock, farm and home contests with more than $65,000 in prize money available exhibits ranging from the practical telephone and farm implement variety to a swimming pool, concessions stands of all types, and the gigantic Olson Shows' midway which has been a beehive since Tuesday.

Teen A Go Go, a popular teenage spot, also is set for another 10-night stand starting Saturday and will be in operation Sunday afternoon (Aug. 27) as well when 10 combos will compete in a battle of the bands.

"We're ready and feel we have assembled the makings of one of the finest expositions ever staged here," said Fair President Bill Hayes. "Response from the public has been good also and now we're just hoping for favorable weather."

And, admission at the main gate and parking is free throughout the operation.

THE WISE AND PRUDENT businessman should be a realist. Since every businessman must experience both success and failure, pleasure and displeasure, good luck and bad, he had better recognize both sets of possibilities in his estimates of the future. Since the world contains both good and evil, it is willful ignorance to adopt a position that denies the presence of either.

Election Observers Take Heat off LBJ

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has bowed to pressure but found a way to take some of the load off his own shoulders after listening to 24 days of new criticism about the way things are going in South Vietnam.

Johnson, with an instinct for the middle road, Wednesday night named a 20-man delegation of prominent citizens to go to Vietnam and observe the election. They will not be supervisors. They will not make a formal report.

But they apparently will be free to say what they think individually when they return here after the election Sept. 3. Since they probably won't all agree, the chances of a continued dispute here look pretty good.

The new load of criticism began to hit Johnson July 31. There had been increasing growling about Johnson's handling of the war, particularly by Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

On July 31 he introduced a resolution — the Senate hasn't acted on it yet and perhaps never will — that would greatly reduce a President's power in foreign affairs.

It would require joint approval by Congress and the President to seal any national commitment abroad. This already is required if the President wants to make a treaty. But a President can do a lot of things abroad without a treaty.

So the Fulbright idea would tie a President's hands far more than ever before.

Then on Aug. 10, 21 House Republicans called on its Foreign Affairs Committee to modify the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, which both houses approved in 1964. It pretty much gives the President a blank check on how he wants to stop Communist aggression in Vietnam.

On that same day 57 House Democrats called on Johnson to warn the ruling military regime in South Vietnam that unless it allows a fair presidential election there this country may do some rethinking about helping South Vietnam.

This followed reports from Saigon that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, running for vice president on the same ticket with Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, now head of state and running for president, had said the military junta was already making plans to retain power after the election no matter who won.

And that same day, Aug. 10, the other 10 presidential candidates opposing Thieu announced they would refuse to campaign unless assured by Thieu and Ky there would be an end to "harassment."

This was enough for some of the Senators growing ever more unhappy about the war. So on Aug. 11 a bunch of them — led by New York's two Senators, Robert F. Kennedy, Democrat, and Jacob K. Javits, Republican — began calling the upcoming elections a fraud, a farce, and a charade.

But that same day, the Thieu-Ky government invited Congress to send observers to Vietnam to insure the elections were free and open to scrutiny by all.

The Senate didn't want any part of that and rejected the invitation. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he saw no reason why Congress should involve itself. And Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said just about the same thing.

Five days later, Aug. 16, Johnson tried to soothe the senatorial fears by saying he already had told Thieu and Ky it was vital to keep the elections on the up and up and he said they promised to support the election outcome.

But that didn't soothe Javits who the next day proposed, although the Senate wasn't willing to send anyone to Vietnam to see how things really were, that the elections be postponed a month to give the civilian candidates a "real chance." But this suggestion was ignored on all sides.

Johnson held a news conference Aug. 18 and, in effect, suggested "patience, please" and then challenged Congress to repeal the Gulf of Tonkin resolution if it didn't like what he was doing.

Ky, taking extraordinary action, sent Congress itself a letter Tuesday pledging he and Thieu would abide by the election outcome, no matter who won.

And late Wednesday Johnson announced he was sending the delegation of citizens, including some senators, to Vietnam as observers. Now if the elections turn out sour, nobody can say Johnson was hiding anything.

This ought to silence his critics for a while but, as nobody knows better than Johnson, probably not for long.

Ruling Exempts Police Reports

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)— A ruling by the St. Louis County Counselor's Office that police reports must be considered privileged information may affect news reporting and lawyers.

The Counselor's office ruled that the reports are work products instead of public documents. County Police Superintendent Raymond W. Hensley requested the opinion several months ago.

The author of the opinion, John F. Nangle, a special assistant county counselor, said a 1964 Missouri Supreme Court decision exempted police reports from the requirements of a statute enacted by the legislature in 1961.

The law provides that: "except as otherwise provided by law, all state, county and municipal records kept pursuant to statute or ordinance shall at all reasonable times be open for personal inspection by any citizen of Missouri, and those in charge of the records cannot refuse the privilege to any citizen."

Hensley said Wednesday he would probably set guidelines for the press and the general public regarding inspection of police reports.

CREDIT AND INTEREST RATES

Homer J. Livingston
Chairman of the Board
The First National Bank of Chicago

The demand for credit, like the money markets and the over-all economy, will continue to be greatly influenced by the U. S. military effort in Vietnam. Defense related expenditures have increased almost $25 billion in the past two years, a rise of nearly 50 per cent. Most of this enormous increase in the federal buying of goods and services occurred at a time when the economic resources of the nation — labor, plant, and equipment — were virtually fully employed. The impact of this development is familiar to all. As many anticipated, certain imbalances resulted, including an excessive rate of inventory accumulation and a substantial rise in capital spending, both of which have been undergoing some correction in the past one half year or so. In similar fashion, credit demands soared, and interest rates, which reached a peak last August-September, traced a generally downward trend until recently with the exception of yields on long-term obligations.

These adjustments in the private sector of the economy, although they have been largely obscured by the persistent rise in government expenditures, have been aided by the reversal in credit policy which the monetary authorities on November 22 described as "a modest but overt step toward ease." As a consequence of the resulting increase in the reserves made available to the banking system, bank loans and investments since then have expanded at an estimated seasonally adjusted annual rate of about 14 per cent.

The yield on long-term obligations was the notable exception to the declining pattern of rates. This reflects in large measure the continued record volume of new corporate bond issues as managements have sought to rebuild liquidty which had declined for almost six years. The recent growth in corporate time deposits and the strong demand for U. S. Treasury bills, as evidenced by the relatively low yields, indicate that corporate liquidity is being rebuilt.

Consumer credit demands may increase. Also, the continued rise in federal government outlays, together with the persistent growth in expenditures by state and local governments, points to a substantial demand for funds from the public sector. As the present structure of long-term rates is considerably above the statutory 4 1/4 per cent interest ceiling on federal government bonds, the increase in federal debt will have to be financed by short- and intermediate-term obligations.

This aggregate demand for funds is likely to tax the supply available despite the blow of corporate cash, substantial additions to personal savings, and some further expansion in bank credit. As a consequence, short-term interest rates are likely to be under growing upward pressure in the next six months. The present strong and sizable demand for long-term money makes unlikely any significant easing in long-term rates during this period.

Kennett Trooper To Jackson

KENNETT - State Trooper Bill Adams will transfer to Jackson Sept. 1 and will be replaced here by Trooper Jackie B. Crawford, it was announced today by Highway Patrol Sgt. Wayne C. Brooks.

Adams has been stationed in Kennett since March of 1963, shortly after joining the patrol.

SBA Will Open Portageville Office

KENNETT - The Small Business Administration is establishing a temporary office at Portageville, and assigning a loan officer from the St. Louis regional office to explain and receive applications for the emergency assistance program available through the SBA to small businesses suffering economic distress as a result of damages to farm crops in the Missouri Delta area.

The office at the City Hall will open Monday and operate through Wednesday. Office hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the three-day period. Future operations will depend upon the needs and interest expressed by small businesses in the seven county area of Butler, Dunklin, Scott, Mississippi, Pemiscot, New Madrid and Stoddard counties.

Arrangements for the temporary SBA office to serve the Delta Area were made by the Portageville office of the Missouri Farmers Association. MFA requested that the office be set up to eliminate inconveniences and misunderstandings being experienced by people going into the St. Louis office of SBA.

All counties in the Missouri Delta Area have been designated as being in an emergency area by the United States Department of Agriculture. This emergency designation makes cotton ginners and other agriculturally orientated businesses that have sustained substantial economic injury as a result of damages to crops in the area eligible for emergency (disaster) loans from SBA.

The basic requirements for an emergency SBA loan are to be in an area designated as an emergency area, and to be able to show a reasonable probability of repayment. A loan will not be declined simply for lack of collateral. Moreover, SBA will give consideration to the character of the applicant and to evidence showing a reasonable prospect that the loan will be repaid. The maximum maturity is 20 years. The interest rate on SBA's share of a loan made jointly with a bank, or on a direct SBA loan, is 3 per cent. A loan cannot be made just to substitute for an existing loan.

Persons in the Missouri Delta Area interested in the program in any way are urged to meet with the SBA loan officer at Portageville.

IF THE FOUR-DAY work week becomes a reality, people will find out how little they knew about the week-end guest menance!

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

The Rev. James Breeden is one of those clergymen quietly and intelligently dedicated to the dignity of man.

After graduating from Dartmouth College, he received a Rockefeller scholarship for seminary work and decided to enter the Episcopal ministry. During his training, he worked in an East Harlem parish and participated in "Project Crossroads Africa." Following ordination, he became advisor on race to the bishop and canon of St. Paul's Cathedral in Boston. After holding a similar position in the National Council of Churches, Mr. Breeden began his present work—as director of the Commission on Church and Race for the Massachusetts Council.

James Breeden's career reflects his "concern for things in society that were left undone." His participation in civil rights causes began early and continues today—although at times he has been arrested and jailed for his activities. He links integration to his faith: "Integration is—integrity of a society. Our real integrity is based on God. Integrity includes the wholeness of the community and the wholeness of our relationship with God."

Contrary to popular belief, the horseless carriage's arch rival—the horse—led the way for America's roads. At Bellefontaine, Ohio, 1892, city officials substituted 10 ft. strips of concrete at hitching rails to replace macadam that was torn up by pawing horses. This very first strip of concrete paving lasted until 1950. Yet it wasn't until 1909 that the first concrete mile was built. Early road building equipment including chisel plows, scrapers, fresnos, wagons, graders and steam rollers are among the 30,000 historical items that are on display at the Harold Warp Pioneer Village in south central Nebraska.

SEA-LEVEL CANAL is the key proposal in the package agreement with Panama announced by President Johnson. Site was not disclosed. A survey of possible routes being conducted by the Pacific Interoceanic Canal Study Association is expected to be completed by 1970. Interest most recently has centered on three possible Panamanian routes. Canals through Colombia and Nicaragua also have been considered.

INDIAN CHIEF whose profile millions of Americans carried in their pockets for a half-century is dead at the age of 102. Chief John Big Tree of the Seneca Indian Tribe died on the Onandaga, N.Y. reservation. In 1913, artist John Frazer used the chief as the model for the well known Indian head, or buffalo, nickel, which was minted until 1938. The chief is shown at left in a 1963 photo.

LITTLE WORKHORSE, the new A-37 ground support plane built by Cessna Aircraft Company of Wichita, Kan., will begin duty in Vietnam this fall. It is a lightweight, twin-engine subsonic aircraft with two side-by-side pilot positions. The little plane has a take-off weight of 12,000 lbs., which includes bombs and rockets on eight wing pylons, and a nose-mounted 7.62 mm "minigun" which can fire up to 6,000 rounds per minute. Flight range is over 1,400 miles, at speeds up to 480 m.p.h.

SKIING TO EXPO 67 will be a long haul for these five blonde, sun-tanned Floridians, who will begin the 2,500-mile trip along the East Coast Aug. 1. Starting at St. Petersburg, they will ski down the west coast of Florida, across the state through Lake Okeechobee, and up the East Coast to New York City, going from there up the Hudson River to Montreal. Towing the group will be a 40-foot houseboat, capable of speeds from 30 to 40 m.p.h. From left, the skiers are Cathy Austin, 12; her sister Linda, 15; Pat Markus, 27; Alice Roberts, 21, and Mary Fraas, 23.

Togs for Tadpole Collectors

THE RIGHT CLOTHES do build a man's confidence. Camper shorts (left) have more buckles and belt loops and man-sized pockets than you would think possible on one pint-sized pair of pants. In a permanent press blend of Fortrel and cotton twill, the pants are teamed with a mock turtle tee-top of two-color stripes. Tank top pullover in all cotton knit (right) is worn over color matched swimtrunks of acetate, cotton and rubber. These are Donmoor designs.

STATUE of the Angel Moroni tops the Hill Cumorah, where the pageant is held. According to Mormon belief, the angel guided Joseph Smith to the "golden plates" on the hill, which told the story of the ancient civilization.

THE PAGEANT depicts the rise and fall of an ancient American civilization and the resurrection of Christ on this continent, according to the "Book of Mormon." Scenes include human sacrifice by an ancient people before their conversion to Christianity, as shown above.

Religious Pageant Stage Set

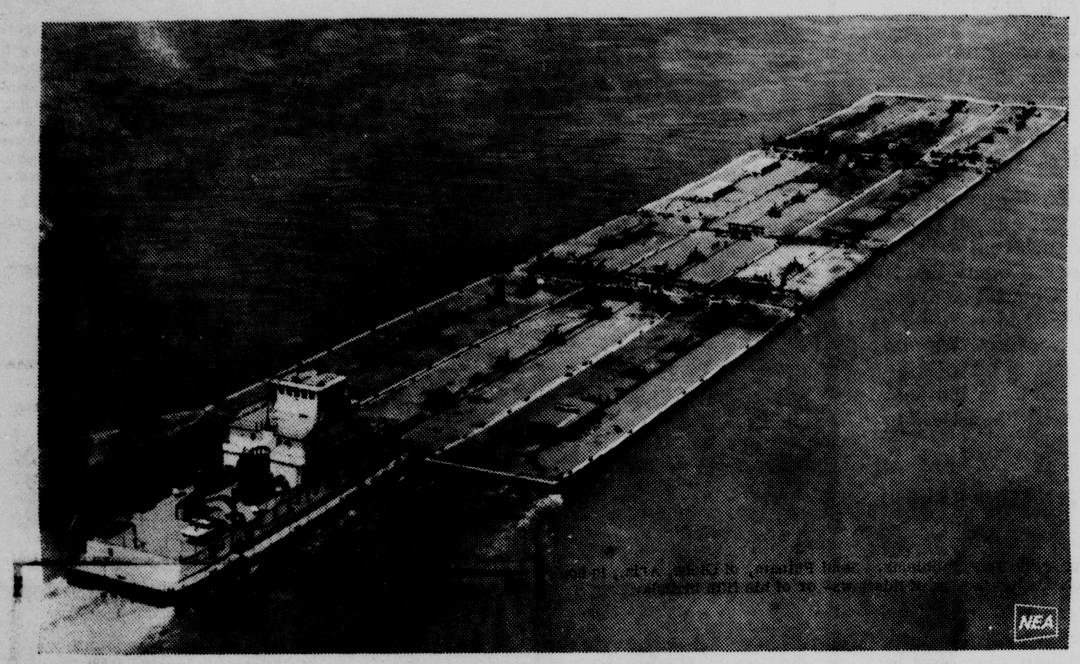
Look Cool in Shades Designed for Summer

SUMMER IS SUNSHADE TIME. A delightful shape for a delightful face, the bold oval frame (above) becomes outstanding because of the light tinted lenses which highlight the eyes in a most complimentary manner. The slim lines of the large rectangle frame (below) have the convenience of a clear panoramic view and unbreakable lens. These are Riviera designs.

A Moving Picture?

This Even Surprised The Girl Watchers!

No, this sign doesn't have legs, but its bearers certainly do. Traffic in Minneapolis was disrupted recently when startled drivers saw this huge 7-foot square sign being carried by four mini-skirted office girls to the International Milling grain elevator. The girls, secretaries at International's headquarters, were doing their part to help promote their company's new corporate symbol.



ONE OF THE LARGEST liquid cargoes in river history is shown being pushed up the Mississippi River on a trip from Natchez, Miss., to Louisville, Ky., recently, hauling 277,413 barrels of crude oil for Ashland Oil & Refining Company. Decks of the 12 jumbo barges lashed together total the size of three football fields. The tug pushing it may look small, but it generates 5,000 h.p.

ROMEO AND JULIET take on a youthful look with Olivia Hussey, 15, and Leonard Whiting, 16, playing the star-crossed lovers in a forthcoming film. If it's authenticity director Franco Zerfirelli was seeking in casting the two, he's still a year late on Miss Hussey. Shakespeare's play, in describing Juliet, says ". . . she hath not seen the change of 14 years."

YOU CAN'T PLAY WITH GUS, someone had to tell two-year-old Karina Williams at the Port of Miami, Fla., after she peeked at the 3½-ton rhino in his shipping crate and wanted to climb in and play. Gus is en route to his new home, Lion Country Safari, a $3.3 million wild game preserve opening in Royal Palm Beach, Fla., in July. Over 150 wild animals will roam freely over the 640-acre simulated veldt.

FIRST MOVIE, first scene for Barbra Streisand is photographed as filming of "Funny Girl," the Broadway musical she made famous, begins in Jersey City, N.J. Having achieved fame in the stage and recording fields, the young singer is now venturing into the movies with a three-picture contract.

BACKSTAGE after her theatrical debut in Chicago, Princess Lee Radziwill, sister of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, and her leading man, John Ericson, ease the tension after performing in "Philadelphia Story" before a jet-set audience that one reviewer termed "the kind you might find at a lynching or a coronation."

HE'S MORE HONEST since using the drug LSD, claims Beatle Paul McCartney, who said experiments with the drug four times in the past year also made him "a more tolerant member of society."

Old Hands, New Purpose

Skills acquired over a lifetime, often wasted among the old, have been awakened to a new purpose in a Jewish rest home at Atlanta, Ga. Women residents spend Friday of each week baking "chollah," a braided bread eaten by Jewish families at dinner on the Sabbath.

JAMBOREE of the Boy Scouts of America, to be held Aug. 1-9 at Farragut State Park in Idaho, will be the subject of a postal card issued Aug. 4. Estimates of attendance at the 12th annual Jamboree, first to be held in the United States, range from 14,000 to 20,000. The design of the six-cent air mail card is based on the Jamboree patch which shows the fleur-de-lis emblem of Scouting and Borah Peak, highest point in Idaho.

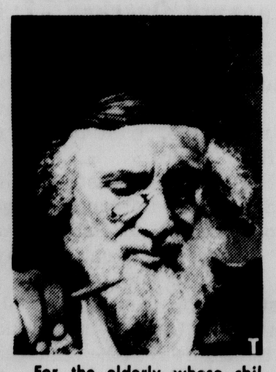
A RIDE IN A PADDY WAGON climaxed the San Francisco visit of Royal Ballet stars Margot Fonteyn, center, and Rudolf Nureyev, right, on the way to a police station with unidentified companion following a raid on a marijuana party in a Haight-Asbury hippy pad.



For the elderly whose children were killed in the recent Middle East crisis, the United Jewish Appeal provides help. If you want to help these old people, a contribution may be mailed to UJA at 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y 10019.

Success of the weekly baking is evident in the enthusiasm with which it is done. The sense of dependency and futility which so many rest home residents feel is eased by the feeling of usefulness among the ladies, who prepare the bread for their families outside. The bakers include Mrs. Kate Weinberg, 102, who bakes for her "boy," who is in his 80's. Some do the work at the table while sitting in wheel chairs. "Come Friday they're ready and anxious," says George Landsman, director of program and development. "It's like being at home again, baking on Fridays," chortles one of the ladies, while another says nothing, just sings and smiles as she braids the dough.

Scott County HealthCenter

1966 Annual Report

ENVIRONMENTAL SANITATION

Environmental sanitation is sometimes called community house-keeping. You, as an individual, can protect your family's health by proper cleaning, good plumbing, refrigeration of your food, etc. while on your property; but once you step outside your door, you alone, can do very little to keep health hazards from attacking.

Our complex society prevents us, as individuals, to independently insure the safety of our water supply, milk supply, food, lodging, or any other of a number of public health related items. As individuals, we neither have the time or money to independently pursue such activities. Yet, if our society is to exist, the quality of our foods, water, and other health services must be insured to preserve our own survival.

Since we can not do this as individuals, we have learned that we can do it as a group -- a community -- and we accomplish it by using tax pennies to establish a health department. For all practical purposes, we hire trained individuals to do this job for us.

These hired experts have found that such controls can be achieved through an instrument known as regulations. In the development of regulations, government must apply indicated scientific findings toward the solution of practical problems. In evaluating the scientific approach to the problem, scientists are thorough, and, therefore, provide ideal answers toward the solution of a specific problem.

Yet government, much as it would like to endorse all the ideal measures, must seek practical methods to problems, in order to permit society to live in reasonable comfort and reasonable security, and still attain reasonable compliance.

This transition of the scientific ideal to reasonable accomplishment becomes known as a regulation. For all practical purposes, regulations then become standards acceptable by society. Regulations, then, are nothing more than a bridge between science and government.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

You will glorify God by your obedience in acknowledging the gospel of Christ, and by the generosity of your contribution. (II Corinthians 9:13, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord God, who hast given us so much of Thy love and grace, who hast bestowed abundantly Thy gifts to meet our needs, teach us to be cheerful and generous givers of self and substance. In the spirit of Jesus Christ. Amen.

"Sell the man who sells me." Extremely conscious of color and style co-ordination, these young men buy carefully and thoughtfully. Experts believe the addition of wife and family rechannels the young man's interest in fashion to other things... today's college man would have to be convinced.

Salvation Army Finds Following In Hippieland

NEW YORK (AP) — Offering free coffee and sympathetic understanding, the Salvation Army has invaded the stronghold of the hippie and the teeny-bopper from a Greenwich Village cafe called The Answer.

"They think the army's a real groove and a beautiful thing," says Ed Herzberg, a 23-year-old soldier to the hippies who helps run the storefront cafe on MacDougal Street near Bleecker Street.

Since it opened three weeks ago, The Answer has become a popular gathering place for young people— generally between 14 and 22— and its narrow interior fills quickly each night.

An oversize brooding portrait of Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, looks down from one wall and flower generation graffiti are painted on the opposite side.

For entertainment there is a hi-fi set and sometimes singers use the tiny stage at the back of the room. There are chess sets, books, and always a friendly soldier to listen.

"We make no bones about the fact that we're Christians. Christ is the answer," Capt. Brian J. F. Gueroa, 24, who runs The Answer. But, he added, "it's a subtle ministry. There's no hard sell."

Viewpoints Clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hugh Carey said during a House debate on birth control and foreign aid that he doesn't oppose family planning— it was impossible, he said, to have his 14 children "without the most exquisite planning."

Every time a baby is born in India, the New York Democrat added, it is evidence of God's hope for the human race.

"I hope this doesn't mean," said Rep. Charles S. Joelson, D.N.J., "that each time a baby is killed in Vietnam this shows God's despair for mankind."

Ann Landers

When Parents Fail, Teachers Are Called

Dear Ann Landers: When does "minding one's own business" cease to be a virtue and begin to be an act of cowardice?

This morning I heard a young-ster crying in front of my house. I looked out to see a little neighbor child surrounded by four jeering children. The boy was wearing a diaper over his trousers and had a cardboard sign around his neck which read, "I am seven years old and I still wet my bed."

I was furious and went outside and began to remove the sign and the diaper. My husband stopped me and said, "It is none of your business."

I know the child's mother. She is a divorcee and as nutty as a fruitcake. Her oldest boy plays centerfield with his thumb in his mouth. A middle child, a girl, has a nervous eye tick and stutters. Now this little fellow is being tortured because he wets the bed.

Should I try to help these kids by talking to them? Or should I plead with the deranged mother to get some help for herself and her children? -- NO NAME PLEASE

Dear N. N. P.: Pleading with deranged people is useless. Your best bet is to have a talk with the teachers in whose classes these unfortunate children will be next fall. Surely they will recognize evidence of a tragic home life. Your information and interest should encourage the teachers to investigate and see that appropriate steps are taken to save these kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter wants to go steady. I see nothing wrong with it since the boy is a very nice lad and comes from a good family.

My husband is against it. He says it is ridiculous to allow a 13-year-old girl to accept a boy's friendship ring and go only with him. I understand from friends that going steady does not mean what it did in our day. They claim it is the "in" thing and that most kids outgrow it.

We have been having some fairly heated discussion on this subject since my husband and I are divided. The line-up is not two against two. Our 17-year-old son sides with his father. What do you say? -- PARK RIDGE

Dear Park: I just tipped the balance. It's 3 to 2, and I'm with your husband and your son. Not only am I against 13-year-olds going steady, I am against 13-year-olds going. Period.

What's your big hurry to get this little chick grown up? I don't know what your friends mean when they say going steady doesn't mean what it did in our day. The basic idea is the same -- "everybody else, hands off." This is a poor approach even for 16- and 17-year-olds. If you came to me for support, Madame, you rattled the wrong cage.

Confidential to Hate The Stuff: Leave it alone, Stupid. Of course he wants to drink with him. What does he have to lose? He's already a drunk. Furthermore, booze is one of the best known devices to break down a girl's resistance.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35¢ in coin.

Mrs. A. L. Waller entertained with a theatre party Saturday afternoon for her grandson, Ray Putnam, of Globe, Ariz., in honor of his fifth birthday.

Mrs. G. A. Wasson and daughters, Miss Grace and Miss Mary Jane Wasson, of Bonne Terre, Mo., moved to Sikeston last week and are now residing in the Derris Duplex on Harris street. Miss Grace Wasson will be one of the teachers in the South Grade school, while Miss Mary Jane will be a member of the senior class.

Funeral services for Robert Joel Edwards, 65 years old, a retired employ of the Missouri Pacific railroad, were conducted yesterday afternoon at the Christian Church.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brown, jr., of Charter Oak are parents of a daughter born August 23.

If You Were the Judge

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

Ball Club Owner Not Responsible for Fights

During a crucial baseball game, Dugan ducked as a pitch orbited past his head. The next pitch was equally threatening.

"If he hits me," Dugan warned the umpire, "he'd better kill me. 'Cause if he doesn't, I'm gonna kill him!"

When the next offering sent Dugan sprawling into the dirt, he grabbed his bat and flung it at the apologizing pitcher-- and the melee was on. When it was over, Dugan sued the owner of the opposing ball club for a broken nose, compliments of the opposing catcher.

"Since his catcher clobbered me," Dugan told the judge, "he should be held responsible."

"Nothing doing," was the owner's answer. "I hired him to be a baseball player and not a pugilist. If he gets into a fight, it's his problem and not mine."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the ball club owner pay?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that an employer is responsible for the acts of his employees only while they are acting within the scope of their employment; that fighting is not part of a baseball player's job.

(Based upon a 1958 Tennessee Court of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

A husband is responsible for his wife's necessaries, which include food, shelter, clothing and other items such as radios, false teeth and even perhaps caviar if the husband happens to be wealthy.

Care for Cuban Exiles Costly

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — U.S. taxpayers are paying more than $1 million each week to help a seemingly endless stream of Cuban refugees start life anew in this country.

Total expenditures in the program have climbed to hundreds of millions of dollars, officials say.

A Cuban Refugee Center spokesman called it "one of the finest investments in humanitarianism." He said the migration is the most extended in U.S. history.

The number of Cuban exiles who have reached the United States since Fidel Castro's takeover in 1959 is estimated at nearly 400,000. About half live in Miami, the rest are scattered throughout the United States.

Some 80,000 Cubans have arrived by daily airlift established Dec. 1, 1965. Two planeloads of refugees come each weekday. Each flight costs U.S. taxpayers $850.

And thousands of Cubans have sneaked out of their country by boat and headed across "death corridor," as exiles call the waters between the Communist island and Florida. The Coast Guard reported it has rescued 13,450 refugees in these straits. The number rescued ranged from nine in 1959 to 5,730 in 1965.

This year's appropriations for the refugee center, operated by the Health, Education and Welfare Department, total $51 million. This compares with $1 million daily the Soviet Union reportedly spends to maintain the regime from which the refugees flee. Since its establishment in 1961, refugee center expenditures are estimated at $300 million. In addition, the refugee situation has meant expenditure of other millions by the Coast Guard, Immigration Service, customs, law-enforcement bodies and other agencies. Maintenance of a State Department Cuban affairs office here costs $60,000 annually.

URBAN PLANNING is the subject of the design on a five-cent stamp to be issued in Washington, D. C., Oct. 2, during a meeting of urban experts concerned with all phases of city life in the year 2017. The vertical stamp depicts a bird's-eye view of a planned city. The city area is white, black and light blue, and surrounding area is dark blue.

THE IRON HAND of "Mr. Robot" holds the mail every day for Mrs. E. H. Setter of St. Petersburg, Fla. The barrel-bodied body with the stove-pipe arms and the ventilator head is also colorfully painted.

Industrial Giant Henry Kaiser Dies

HONOLULU (AP)— Henry J. Kaiser— founder of a billion-dollar industrial empire spread over 40 countries— died in his sleep Thursday. He was 85.

Kaiser was at his oceanfront estate about 10 miles from Honolulu when he was stricken by a circulatory and heart condition.

At his side were his wife Alyce, whom he married after the death of his first wife in 1951; his son Edgar and Edgar's wife.

Kaiser was born May 9, 1882, at Sprout Brook, N.Y., one of four children of German immigrants. He started his career as a $1.50-a-week clerk in a Utica, N.Y., dry goods store after leaving school at 13 to help support his family.

Kaiser never longed for the "good old days." While celebrating his last birthday, the founder of the $2.7-billion complex said, "Yesterday is past . . . I always want to live this day to the fullest and to plunge into tomorrow's job."

There was almost nothing Kaiser did not have a hand in: giant dams such as Hoover, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Shasta; famed Liberty ships of World War II; the familiar Jeep; the Kaiser health centers; cement; aluminum; steel; chemicals; aircraft and missile components and electronic equipment; radio and television stations; hotels; and the latest, a new community of Hawaii-Kai in Honolulu with projected population of 60,000.

Pink Kaiser cement trucks carry a slogan, "Find a need and fill it."

This Kaiser did— in Kaiser pink. He chose a coral-purple color as a Hawaiian trademark, putting it on speedboats, catamarans, outrigger canoes, jeeps and even his clothing.

"Pink makes you feel good," he said.

About the only venture in which Kaiser didn't achieve the success he sought was in making cars. For 10 years, 750,000 Kaisers, Kaiser-Frazers and Henry Js rolled off the assembly lines. But competition was too stiff. Kaiser withdrew to concentrate on the Jeep— utility vehicles of all times.

Henry Kaiser's success began in Lake Placid, N.Y., where he worked for nothing in a photographic shop on condition that if he doubled business he would get a half interest. The business tripled, he became a partner at 22, bought it out a year later and added three stores in Florida and Nassau.

But the West held dreams of which his life was to be made.

He moved to Spokane, Wash., in 1906 and went to work at a hardware firm for $7 a week. In 1912 he began managing road-paving contracts.

In 1914, at the age of 32, Henry J. Kaiser Co. Ltd., was formed at Vancouver, B.C., and the first job was two miles of road paving in the Canadian city.

Kaiser made his entry into California by jumping off a train which slowed down at Redding to drop off the mail. He won a bid for a 30-mile road between Red Bluff and Redding and in 1921 set up headquarters in one room in Oakland.

Headquarters is still in Oakland— but in the 28-story Kaiser Center.

A 200-mile, 500-bridge highway project in Cuba in 1927 pointed the way for bigger things. The young contractor visualized the joint venture concept which evolved into partnerships and associations of contractors for giant projects.

One such combine called Six Companies, Inc., with Henry Kaiser as executive committee chairman, built Hoover Dam on a bid of $48,890,000 and finished it in four years, two years ahead of schedule.

Shasta Dam marked the beginning of Kaiser's industrial activity. His group lost the $36 million construction contract by $263,000. Although he had no plant, he submitted a bid on cement at 29 cents a barrel under that of a cement combine. He won the $7.7 million contract, built a cement plant at Permanente, Calif., and launched Kaiser Cement and Gypsum Corp.

At the peak, Kaiser and his associates operated 58 shipways at seven yards.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

The current National Educational Television network (NET) 60-minute show of H. L. Hunt resulted from several hours of shooting during a six-day period about December 1, 1965. Charles M. Conner, 7575 Bellaire Boulevard, Houston, Tex., had scripted and was co-directing the show with James Bauer of Houston University. The discussions shown between Hunt and office personnel were daily routine, not staged nor rehearsed in any way. The same was true of footage made at the Hunt home, except raising the Flag and placing the car in which Hunt began driving downtown.

Hunt would enlarge on answers he made 21 months ago, but has no desire to withdraw any statements. James Fleming replaced able and constructive Conner as interviewer. Specialists Littell and Baker, who were not present when the show was made and could not be questioned, freely gave their opinion of Hunt.

Constructively,
H. L. Hunt

Viet Candidate Says Enough Troops on Hand

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese civilian candidate declared today that enough U.S. troops are fighting the war and no more should be sent. He said better use should be made of South Vietnamese troops.

The statement was made at a news conference called by Dr. Phan Khac Suu, speaker of South Vietnam's Constituent Assembly and one of the few presidential candidates with a wide spread following, and his running mate, Dr. Phan Quang Dan.

The news conference was called specifically for the foreign press. English-speaking Dan fielded the questions, with Suu nodding agreement at his side.

"There are enough troops here, but we must make better use of them, particularly the South Vietnamese troops," Dan said.

"Too many American and allied troops have overpowered the South Vietnamese army. They are tempted to just sit on the sidewalk and watch you fight the war."

There are some 457,000 American troops in South Vietnam and the number is expected to reach half a million within a few months.

Noting that there are about a million South Vietnamese and allied soldiers in the country, Dan said: "There is no need to escalate the shooting war. Let's escalate everything else, the social war, and let the Vietnamese assume the main burden as they must."

Dan also warned of an "atmosphere of suspicion" that the military candidates— Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu for president and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for vice president— would rig the elections.

Dan said, however, that so far the election campaign has been the freest ever held in South Vietnam.

Saigon officials have announced that more than 600 persons from 41 nations will be on hand to observe the election Sept. 3 in which the voters will choose a Senate as well as a president and vice iresident.

There are 528 foreign news correspondents accredited to South Vietnam, and 80 others plan to be on hand for the balloting.

President Johnson is sending 20 prominent Americans here next week as observers and 48 are coming from other countries.

South Vietnam's militant Buddhists are planning demonstrations against Thieu and Ky if they win as they are expected to do, Vietnamese intelligence sources reported Thursday.

Consultant to Study Juvenile Facilities

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)- Raymond L. Manella, consultant in the division of juvenile delinquency with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will begin an inspection and study of juvenile custodial facilities in Missouri the first week in September and report his findings to the governor's citizens committee on crime and delinquency.

The study will begin with the facilities operated by the state at Boonville and Chillicothe and will also include other juvenile facilities operated by counties and municipalities.

The appointment was announced Thursday by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, chairman of the governor's committee.

Manella has experience in Juvenile work in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland in addition to serving the federal government as a consultant in the field.

Council Gets Dexter Audit

DEXTER -- Two representatives of the auditing firm of Day-Spitzmiller and Sisk were present at the Monday night session of the city council to present its audit of the city's records to the aldermen and Mayor Willis Conner.

A brief rundown of the various sections of the audit was made and the auditing committee, composed of Lehman Godwin, Joe Weber and Sherman Boone was asked to meet with the firm concerning next year's audit and possible changes in form.

The fee for the audit, $985, was allotted for payment.

Mrs. Frances Strickland, president of the park board, appeared before the council with a bill for $31,634, for work on the swimming pool, which was granted by the board and payment authorized.

A house in Hickory Hills that has been foreclosed by FHA, had a water bill for 12 months that was "over two years old and needs to be removed from the books", according to Mayor Willis Conner. The bill was abated by the council.

A plumbing license was granted to Clinton Wooldridge during the session.

Blacktopping on Poplar Street between Stoddard and Vine was approved by the council and passed by ordinance.

A new policeman, Lonnie Mason, was approved by the board. Mason is formerly from Frisco, Mayor Conner reported.

Two bids were opened for the printing of water books for the city for two years with the low bid of $410.50 being submitted by Quality Printing Company which was accepted by the council.

Unmowed lots in the city were called to the board's attention, with the City attorney, Paul McGhee, directed to write letters to the property owners requesting that they be mowed.

Tax bills for further street work were approved by ordinance and payment of $13,264.45 to Delta Aspalt for paving was approved.

Fourth To Get Color TV

BERLIN (AP) — Color television came today to West Germany— the fourth country in the world to have it, the first in continental Europe.

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt pressed a button at the opening ceremony of the 25th Great German Radio Exhibition and, presto, there was color.

On hundreds of television sets in the many exhibition displays and hundreds of others in store windows around West Berlin and West Germany, Brandt's face went from video gray to suntanned flesh color.

A wave of pink-custumed ballerinas then twirled across the screens in a Strauss waltz.

The color quality was excellent and the separation sharp, a tribute to the West German color system, which has borrowed and learned from the American system.

West Germany thus joined the United States, Japan and Great Britain in the color television club. Other West European countries soon are to follow.

DON'T YOU READ BEFORE YOU BUY?

Because, no matter what the purchase, don't you want to get the facts? What does it cost? Where's it made? What's the best brand? How much will I need? How long will it last? And whom should I see? Like yourself, most of your customers look to print advertising for answers, when they're really ready to buy. They look to newspapers and magazines, to booklets and brochures. Because print advertising lets people read and re-read, study and clip, save and show, linger and compare—as much and as many times as they wish. That's the beauty of print. When people look for your product in print, will it be there? Your competitor's will. Print makes sense, because print makes sales.

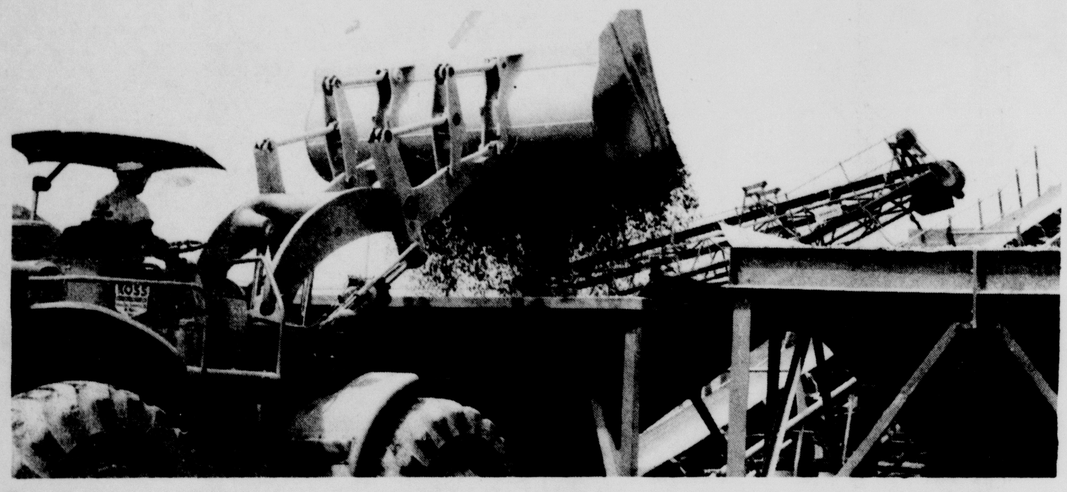
Giant Mixing Bowl Gushes Concrete for I-55

A chat pile surrounded by a mobile concrete mixing base unit near Marston. The materials are used in paving Interstate 55.



Gravel pours endlessly from a huge pile into a hopper to be sent on a conveyor belt to a bin. It becomes part of Interstate 55.

By Leo Schade

MARSTON --- Every highway paving job must have a base operation to make, move and spread concrete.

The success of the highway paving job on Interstate 55, by the Koss Construction Company, Springfield, from New Madrid south near Steele, depends on such a base.

Trucks operate from it both north and south.

The operation involves thousands of pounds of equipment, which can be dismantled and moved to another point after pavement has been laid in an area of 10 or more miles.

North of Marston two-lane pavement is being laid south to a point below Conran on the south-bound lane.

When this is completed, the north lane will be paved to the connecting link north of Marston near the rest stop projects.

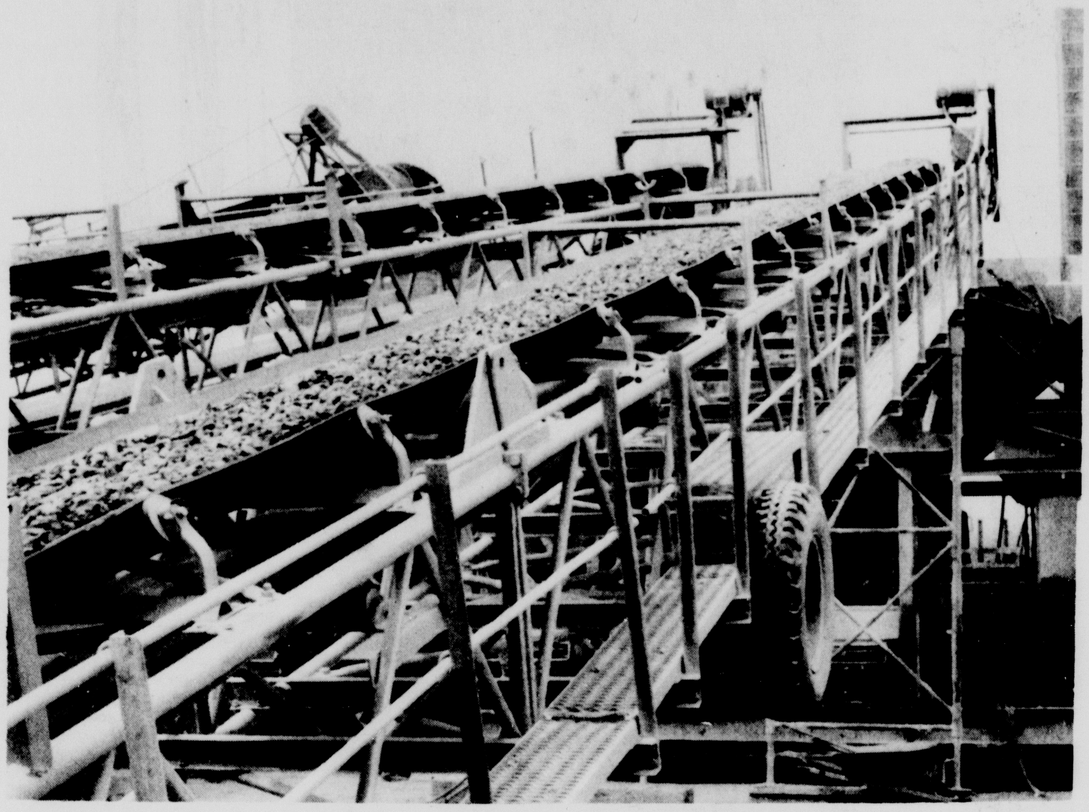
A highway crew laying pavement at the rest stops should be completed this week.

Inspector of a huge paving unit is Jerry Young, New Madrid, Clarence Graves, Springfield, is in charge of loading mixers and sending trucks to paving sites. Each carrying five yards of concrete.

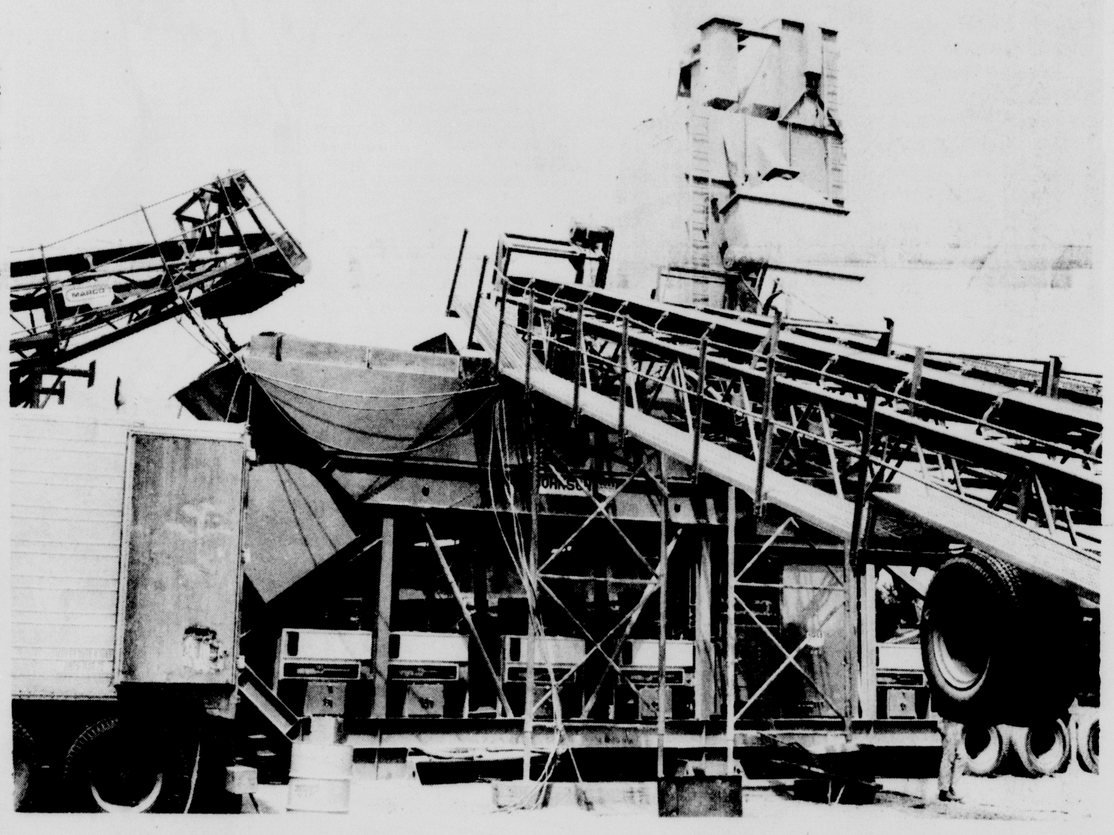
In one day the base plant can put out enough concrete to lay from two to three thousand feet of 20-foot pavement.

The concrete making stockpile soon will disappear. When all paving is completed in this area the mobile unit will be dismantled and taken to the intersection of route K and highway 162, one-fourth mile east of Portageville. From that base it will complete the paving contract three miles south of Portageville.

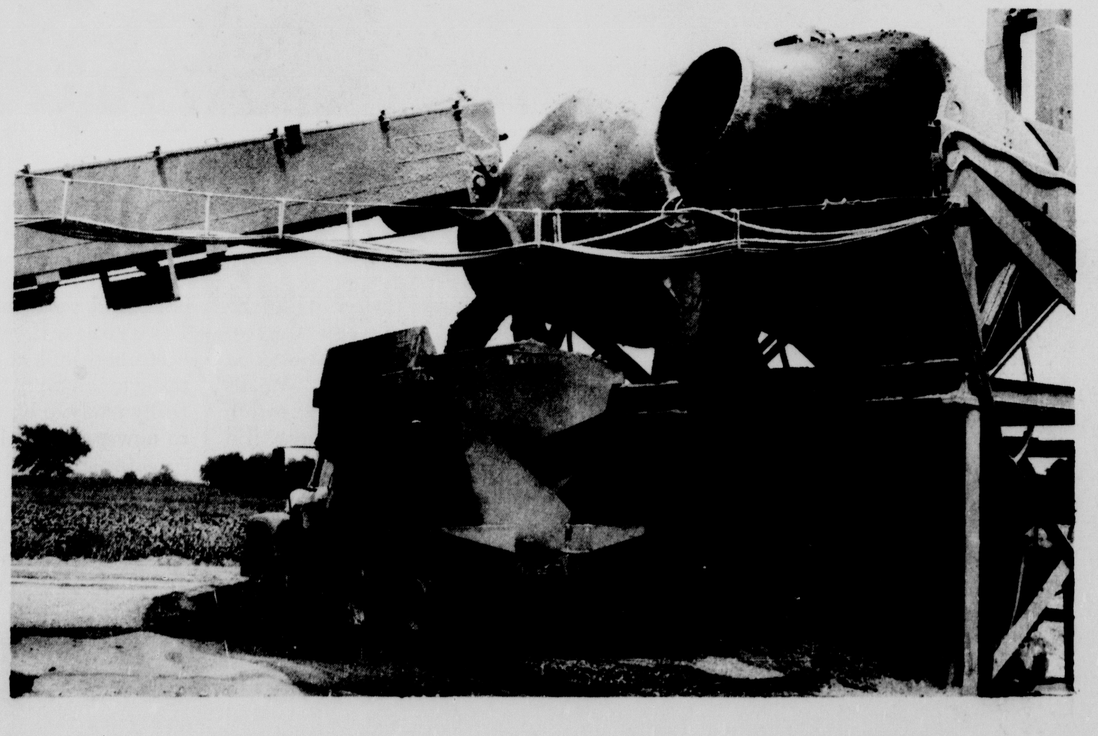
The present operation may be finished in two weeks if weather permits.



. CONVEYOR BELT sends a stream of gravel to mixing bins. Two conveyors are used for gravel. A third carries sand and cement into the bins all for paving Interstate 55.



Gravel, sand and cement are fed into separate bins, weighed and placed in hoppers and made ready for mixing into concrete for Interstate 55.



A TRUCK is loaded with five yards of concrete to be taken out for paving Interstate 55. A second mixer will be ready to unload into a second truck about to pull in line.

Red Chinese Who Praise Mao Today May Curse Him Tomorrow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States has a big stake in the outcome of Red China's upheaval, experts agree. When it comes to choosing sides, the specialists are frustrated. There seems nothing to do but wait, watch and wonder.

A poll of men who have spent much of their lives studying China produces a chilling mystery despite a large measure of agreement on some points. China, the specialists say, has not yet felt the full, painful impact of its titanic inner struggle and probably will not for another year or two. The danger will become more acute when the hangover sets in. Much will depend upon who has the upper hand.

The upheaval has virtually destroyed the Chinese Communist party structure as it existed some years ago. It has jolted the government structure, severely damaged the educational system, badly hurt industrial and agricultural production prospects, damaged China's foreign trade and foreign exchange position, and interfered with the progress of science probably in all fields except nuclear weapon technology. A year of incessant turmoil also has radically changed the pattern of global politics. China has increasingly isolated herself within a ring of apprehension.

These views were brought out in discussions with scholars at the 27th Congress of Orientalists at the University of Michigan this month. They agree in general that it is dangerous to predict about China. There may never be a clear line between victor and vanquished in the great proletarian cultural revolution. Indeed, it is difficult for students to speak in clearly defined terms of one side or the other winning the struggle.

On the surface, it would seem to be a gigantic struggle between two distinct factions: one headed by Defense Minister Lin Piao with the support and blessing of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the other headed by President Liu Shao-chi, backed by sivnificant elements in the party and government bureaucracies.

That is the surface. Underneath it seems much more: a struggle to determine China's future for years to come. It is a struggle for a whole generation whence must come leaders to fashion that future.

Prospects for the United States could be unpleasant either way.

Those in China fighting the excesses of the cultural revolution are regarded as moderates who might simmer China down and turn her toward construction. But scholars agree China probably would still call herself Communist. At the same time it could mean a sort of reconciliation with Moscow, however fragile. That would give communism the opportunity once more to claim a united world front, which Americans hardly would welcome.

On the other hand, dangers inherent in a clear-cut Mao-Lin victory also would be unpleasant, perhaps even more so. The Maoists seem intent upon a future of constant revolution, "people's war" and forcible expansion of their ideology. The pressures could lead to dismemberment of China—perhaps a breakaway by non-Chinese northern areas.

A standoff, too, would present some peril. One possibility which arouses worry among the specialists is that a regime struggling to retain its power might seek diversions. This could mean pressure on neighbors or even inventing an attack on China by a "foreign devil" from the direction of Southeast Asia as a means of unifying the country. Many seem to think, however, that China, despite its fledgling nuclear arsenal, would be careful about challenging the might of the United States.

The specialists displayed shock and amazement at the extent to which the Red Chinese demonstrated what could be done with the human mind among a people noted for individuality and intelligence. The chanting by rote and the fanatical excesses in the name of "Chairman Mao's thinking" are done by people under 30 brought up under total domination by an authoritarian regime and isolated from the outside world. The specialists wonder how long the fever pitch can last. Perhaps some of those adoring Mao today may curse their idol tomorrow.

Middle East Will Never Be Same Again

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — You can't visit Israel after her great military triumph without feeling that the Middle East will never be the same again.

The impression comes not alone from the devastating blow this nation of 2½ million struck against the Arab enemies, but also from the vital, determined society evolving in this 19-year-old country.

A new generation born on Israeli soil is coming forward to take the place of tired immigrants. These are the Sabras, named after the fruit of the cactus, apparently to denote a tough, prickly exterior and a warm, soft heart. They are eager and confident and this is the only home they know.

Gen. Moshe Dayan, defense minister, and Labor Minister Yigal Allon are the only Sabras in the present Israeli Cabinet. Both look like possibilities for the post of premier.

The top army officers and many of the soldiers are Sabras. They are prominent in Israel's advanced scientific community, in industry, the trade union movement, the theater and the arts.

More than 40 per cent of Israel's population was born in the country.

This is a different kind of Jew, robust, toughened on the Israeli kibbutzim and trained to defend his homeland with modern weapons. When the fighting is over he returns to his desk, his farm or his machine to build Israel.

Although they refuse at present even to consider peace with Israel, the Arab countries, by the magnitude of their defeat and the strategic advantages they have surrendered, must eventually negotiate or fight again.

The Israelis view their victory as an opportunity to achieve some measure of the security they have lacked on their frontiers with four Arab states.

There is no intention here to keep Israeli troops permanently entrenched in the sandbanks along the Suez Canal. But there is also no intention to return to the prewar situation in which Israel was excluded from use of the canal, in violation of international agreements, according to the Israeli view.

In its conquest of Jerusalem, Israel is adamant. The city has been unified, Israel has promised that the holy places will be protected and respected under the supervision of the churches involved, and there is no intention to restore the barbed wire and bunkers which once separated Arab and Jew.

Israelis express no doubt that they can live at peace with the 70,000 Arabs in the city despite a one-day strike by merchants recently and the distribution of pamphlets urging noncooperation with Israeli authorities. The city already is operating as a unit, they say, and the army and police are prepared to keep it that way.

Two Teenagers Cast in Romeo, Juliet Roles

ROME (AP) — Romeo recently turned 17 and speaks cockney. Juliet is 15 and addicted to mini-skirts and the Beatles. Both are somewhat frightened about the future.

Shakespearian directors have long been intrigued with casting the star-crossed lovers as the teen-agers they were supposed to have been. They had been dissuaded by the fact that such youthful performers would doubtless lack the skill to polish the lustre of the language.

Now comes Franco Zeffirelli, the audacious Florentine to whom nothing seems impossible—the man who directed the Burtons in "Taming of the Shrew."

He abandoned the modern tradition of playing "Romeo and Juliet" with adult and sometimes middle-aged leads. He returned to the original conception—and as it was done in the musicalized version in "West Side Story"—of two teen-agers caught in an adult world of hate and strife. The new Romeo and Juliet were enjoying a few days' rest while the Montagues and Capulets battled under the Roman sun at Cinecitta studios.

I found Romeo, Leonard Whiting of London, at a luxurious villa where several of the British actors are staying near the studio. He was wearing a full-length Arab robe, a gift from Zeffirelli.

Whiting is a slender 5 feet 8, with a straight, thin nose and limp-lidded blue eyes. His dark-brown hair is a bit shorter than hippie-length.

"I did 'The Tempest' and one of the tragedies when I was in school," he said, "but otherwise I didn't have much contact with Shakespeare. I think kids get Shakespeare too early and they feel it is being shoved down their throats. I didn't like Shakespeare much before, but I'm beginning to like it now. I find it's not outdated. It's life."

Whiting started acting at 12 as the Artful Dodger in the London run of "Oliver!" He later played Jimmy the Dip in Disney's "The Legend of Young Dick Turpin." He was appearing in Laurence Olivier's "Love for Love" for the National Theater when he heard of auditions for "Romeo and Juliet."

What happens next?

"I guess I'll go back to my same life in London," he said. "I live with my parents (father is a store manager, mother a factory worker) and I'll continue to. I don't know what I can do after playing Romeo. I'm too young for most parts."

Juliet — English-Argentine Olivia Hussey — was staying at a stylish new Rome hotel after returning from costume fittings in Florence. She has a tiny, sad face and dark-brown hair that streams to her waist.

She is even more experienced than her co-star, having appeared for two years in the London play, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" (starring Vanessa Redgrave) and in two films, including "The Battle of the Villa Fiorita" with Maureen O'Hara and Rossano Brazzi.

"Oh, we had some Shakespeare in school — 'Macbeth,' 'Much Ado about Nothing' — but I always missed the classes," she said. Olivia too is getting accustomed to the poetic dialogue. She is also trying to adjust to all the attention she has been accorded. One of her recent experiences was being photographed by Lord Snowden.

Veterans' Benefits Greater Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill greatly increasing a long list of benefits for veterans, including those who have served in Vietnam, has been sent President Johnson by the Senate.

The bill's final provisions, said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., its floor manager, go far beyond the administration's budget requests. But he said he is confident the President will sign it.

— Pension increases for two million veterans and their widows amounting to 5.4 per cent for most recipients, with hikes up to 8.5 per cent to widows in the lowest income categories.

— Vietnam veterans would receive the same levels of benefits as veterans of other conflicts.

— Educational allowances for veterans qualifying under the "Cold War" G. I. Bill would be raised and several categories of training would be added.

Because of a delay in bringing up the bill, the soonest it could go into effect is Oct. 1. Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he believes the delay was caused by the administration's desire to save some $25 million, about the cost of one month's benefits.

Under the bill veterans can complete their high school education at the full benefit rate. It also would bring on-the-job, on-the-farm and flight training under the law for the first time.

After Tallulah Bankhead saw the movie based on Tennessee Williams' Orpheus Descending, she told Williams, "Darling, how awful for you. They've absolutely ruined your perfectly dreadful play."

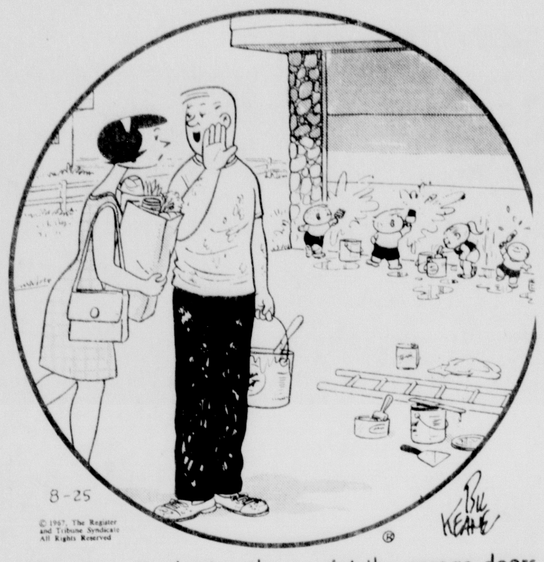
THE FAMILY CIRCUS — By Bil Keane



"It's okay. I'm letting them paint the garage doors —with WATER!"

SUDDENLY IT WAS LAST SUMMER

For the children, the gloom began to build. The realization that school was almost upon them came as a shock. The last time they'd looked at the calendar it was June, with unlimited time stretching before them. And now, in what seemed like the blink of an eye, the season was over.

There were all sorts of projects left undone. The tree house was still without a roof. The front fender of the bicycle still rubbed against the tire. The plan for an all-day canoe trip remained unaccomplished. It had seemed that there was plenty of time for such things. No hurry. Tomorrow would do. If not tomorrow, then the day after. But now all this was changed. There was nothing to do but cram as much into the waning days of vacation as possible. But not matter how fast the children ran, the hours sped faster and the rendezvous with unwelcome knowledge loomed closer. And once it becomes necessary to count the days of leisure, their purpose is largely spoiled.

The phenomenon occurs every year as August ends and September begins--this feeling that summer has slipped away. Even an adult, accustomed to measuring vacations by rigidly established rules of the calendar, could share a little in the regret at how short the long days of summer always are.

Bureau Chooses Queen

LILBOURN -- Miss Regina Landers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Landers, route one, was chosen New Madrid County Farm Bureau queen last night. She was crowned by Miss Charlotte Eftink, route three, Portageville, retiring queen.

The queen's first alternate was Betty Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.K. Wilson, Lilbourn, and second alternate was Miss Ruth Ann Eftink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Eftink, route three, Portageville.

Brazilian Seeks to Learn About Rural Electrification

By Jerry Obermark

Guidance and technical education of the people for development of the natural resources are principal needs of Brazil in the opinion of Antonio C. Moral, an electrical engineer from Sao Paulo studying rural electrification in the United States.

Moral and his wife spent two days in Sikeston studying the operations and maintenance of the Scott - New Madrid - Mississippi Electric Cooperative system. He was shown area farms and methods of irrigation, DeWint Zaricor, assistant manager of the Rural Electrification Administration Cooperative said.

"When we visited the Peter Myers farm in Canalou, he was amazed to see 800 or 900 acres managed by three men," Zaricor said. "In his country it would take at least 100 persons to farm the same amount of land."

The major cities of Brazil are supplied by different electrical companies, but only about one per cent of the rural dwellers have access to electricity.

"In this respect, Brazil is where we were in 1937," Zaricor said.

The REA began operations in the United States in 1935. It received loans for development through the U.S. department of agriculture and started in Southeast Missouri in 1937.

Moral is studying the financing of the system and reviewing the growth pattern and costs.

He will tour mid - western states in a two - month stay and will return to Washington, D.C., before going back to Sao Paulo. His tour started in the captiol two weeks ago.

Moral has contributed technical articles on the need for rural electrical service in his country to trade journals and general circulation magazines.

He and his wife left today for St. Louis, where they will tour the Wagner Electric Corporation plant. Moral's speciality is electrical transformers. At the St. Louis factory, he will see them being made, Zaricor said.

After one day in St. Louis, Moral and his wife will tour REA operations in Trenton. Then, they will fly to Texas.

His trip holds four main purposes:

First, he is trying to have the government here set up a technical school for development of a rural electrication system in Brazil. This would have to be done through a federal aid program.

The country has tremendous electric producing potential, but the people need to be trained to develop it, Moral said.

Special processes need to be employed to treat utility poles in Brazil. Life length in some areas for a utility pole is about one year. A proper solution could be developed for treating the poles to give them a life of at least 20 years, Moral said.

Another purpose for his visit, is to try to obtain shipments of used materials from REA, Zaricor said.

He also would like to attract industry to develop the natural resources. One tree grown in the northern section of Brazil will produce eight different usable products. The stands are tremendous, but it is going to waste, because it is not being used, Moral said.

In another section of the country, roads are paved with a magnetic iron ore. The deposit is so rich that flying in the area is dangerous. But it, too, isn't being utilized, he continued.

His main reason in coming is to learn all he can about the REA system. He is a leading authority on the subject and has a library of materials on rural electrification. He will discuss his finding in the United States with the president of his country on his return and hopes to encourage rural electrical development.

Life expectancy is short in the underdeveloped areas, Moral continued. In some sections, where Indians live, 800 of an average of 1,000 babies die before the age of one, he said.

Moral's preconceived ideas about the American people have changed since his visit, he said. From the American movies he had the idea that most American men went through about three wives in a lifetime, he said.

He was pleased to find close families here and surprised to see so many churches.

There is a more prevalent concern for educating American children here, he said. "And something else, in my country any boy can buy tequila, beer or anything, here they cannot." He preferred the liquor laws practiced here.

Newspapers flash front page news about killings and tragedies, but the good things done are minimized, he related.

Sniper Kills Nazi Leader

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi party was shot and killed today by a sniper, Arlington police said.

Police said Rockwell was in a parking lot across the street from the Nazi party headquarters in this Washington suburb when he was shot.

They said the sniper, who fired from the roof of a building, escaped.

Police said they were looking for a man dressed in a trench coat.

Police said the victim was struck in the chest in the 6000 block of Wilson Boulevard.

Arlington police officer John E. Mitchell said policemen who rushed to the scene reported the victim was Rockwell, 47, well known to most of the Arlington police force.

Rockwell apparently was killed instantly by the sniper's bullet.

Arlington police were combing the mixed commercial and residential area for the unknown killer.

An ambulance called to the scene remained for 30 minutes while the victim's body lay on the ground following the noon shooting.

Rockwell frequently appeared around the country leading counter-demonstrations during civil rights marches.

He often was accompanied at such demonstrations by members of his party dressed in uniforms patterned after those of German Storm Troopers of the Hitler era.

Rockwell also was a frequent speaker before college audiences. His appearances usually brought out pickets and hecklers and often produced controversy over whether he should be allowed to appear.

Dara S. Grant, 607 Cleveland, fined $21 on a speeding charge and $7 on a charge of no city auto license.

Other speeders fined are: Francinea Marshall, 317 Kramer, fined $19; Martha L. Howell, 635 Branum, fined $19, and Lanny D. Presley, Sikeston, fined $21.

MRS. HANNAH REEVES (left), Canalou, greets her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Camden, Tenn., who came to visit after a separation of 52 years.

Sisters Reunite After 52-Year Separation

By CAROL MILLER

CANALOU -- "I wouldn't have known her if we'd met on the street," said Mrs. Hannah Reeves, of her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Camden, Tenn., when Mrs. Crowell came for a visit.

The reason? They hadn't seen each other for 52 years. The last time the two were together was when Mrs. Reeves and her husband, Clead, left Camden for Canalou in July of 1915.

Most of the Reeves family lived near Canalou, and Reeves was out of work. When his brother wrote that there was plenty of work in Canalou, he and his wife decided to move. He found work in the stave mill and later turned to farming.

Their oldest son, Don, was only three weeks old when the Reeves left Tennessee.

At first the two sisters corresponded, but near the end of World War I, they lost contact. Mrs. Reeves said that her letters were returned uncalled for so she stopped writing.

Unknown to Mrs. Reeves, Mrs. Crowell had moved and later married Ben Crowell in Waverly, Tenn. After that she lived in several Tennessee communities while Mrs. Reeves stayed in Canalou except for two years she lived on South Kingshighway in Sikeston.

Mrs. Reeves, 76, heard about her sister, Mrs. Crowell, 72, occasionally from people passing through Canalou or from friends who also had relatives in Tennessee.

For years there was silence. Mrs. Reeves did not believe that her sister was dead but she could not be sure. Last week a cousin called her brother in Poplar Bluff, B. H. Sims and said that Mrs. Crowell was coming for a visit.

"She later wrote B. H. when she would be there, but she came early and surprised him even more," said Mrs. Reeves.

"Then my sister-in-law called me and said that Hattie would be over," Mrs. Reeves said. "She's my only living sister.

We were a family of six -- besides the two of us there were two other sisters and two brothers.

Mrs. Crowell plans to stay in Canalou until Sunday and then return to her brother's home in Poplar Bluff where she will remain until Tuesday.

"We aren't planning anything particular other than that, "Mrs. Reeves said. "I aim to just sit around and talk to and called her little sis," laughed Mrs. Reeves.

Mrs. Reeves says that she might return Mrs. Crowell's visit if one of her children decides to travel to Tennessee but she does not like to travel by herself.

She has five chances to make that visit with one of her children --Mrs. Rena Poe, 444 Smith Street; Mrs. Bertie Hoskins, North City, Ill.; Raymond Reeves, Benton; Don Reeves, Alexandria, Ind.; and Mrs. Mary Louise Vaughn, Canalou.

Mrs. Crowell wants to come back before another 52 years passes if her health is good. The main reason that the reunion has not taken place earlier is because of her ill health and she believed Mrs. Reeves might be dead.

"We always got along as children even when I teased her

"I JUST AIM to sit around and talk to her," said Mrs. Hannah Reeves (center). Mrs. Reeves is enjoying the conversation of her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, who she thought might be dead, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Louise Vaughn, Canalou.

Motorbike Puts Doctor in Bed

Dr. Stephen Parks, pathologist at the Missouri Delta Community hospital, is a patient there now.

He suffered a twisted left knee and torn ligaments in his leg in a motorcycle accident at 2:47 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. Parks was riding his Honda on North Main, and accelerated too much while attempting to turn on Hunter Street. He lost control, struck a pole or sign, and was thrown from the vehicle. He hurried his turn to avoid traffic.

The doctor's condition today is satisfactory.

"It's similar to a football injury,...painful, but not a matter of life or limb. And I'm certainly not going to get rid of my Honda," Dr. Parks said.

The doctor admits to being an inexperienced motorbike rider, but enjoys riding with his daughter. He was wearing a helmet when the accident occurred.

Eye and Leg Hurt In Two Accidents

Two emergency patients were treated Thursday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

John Robert Allen was changing a tire when the jack handle flew up hit him in the right eye, and Dirle Glen Ritchie caught his left leg between a plow and power take off.

George D. Wood, who heads the World Bank, began his career as an office boy in a New York bond house and attended school at night after work.

Some sections of Afghanistan are marked by an extreme range of temperature. Kabul can be 50 degrees at sunrise and 100 degrees by noon.

Bank Alarm Brings Police In 30 Seconds

Four police cars converged on the Bank of Sikeston at 9:31 a.m. today, after the intrusion alarm sounded by accident at the station. The officers signed off at the bank 30 seconds after receiving the call, the radio operator said.

The cause of the alarm is not known, William Werneck, cashier, said today. It could have been set off by an employe, high humidity, work on the line, or by weak batteries. There is no way of telling what set the alarm, he said.

In other activity, William L. Jackson, Dunn Hotel, was charged with driving while intoxicated at 1:30 a.m. today on New Madrid Street.

Four motorists were charged today with speeding: Hazel C. Greer, 634 Branum; Bobby Henderson, 639 East Gladys; Claude B. Turner, 106 East Gladys, and Lula E. Bell, 248 East Gladys.

Arthur Dickerson, 74, a patient at Shuffit's nursing home no. 3, walked away at 5 a.m. today. He was found later and returned to the nursing home.

Qulin Cyclist Strikes Truck

A 15-year old Qulin boy was injured while driving a Honda motorcycle yesterday. He struck a 1963 Ford pickup truck.

The accident occurred at 4 p.m. on a gravel road, one and one-half miles west of Oglesville in Butler county. The youth was on the wrong side of the road, the patrol reported. The truck was driven by Lucy Hicks, 63, also of Qulin.

He was treated at the Poplar Bluff hospital.

At 3:30 p.m. yesterday on highway 61, three miles north of Benton, a 1967 Rambler, driven by Franklin Weaver, 26, Plattsville, Ala., drove into the highway from a field. He was struck by a 1963 Plymouth, driven by Burton Brown, 32, Sikeston.

The Sikeston driver came over a hill and struck the Weaver car.

Neither driver was injured.

At midnight, Leon Taylor, 36, Bossier City, La., driving south on Interstate 55, four miles south of Sikeston, was reported by the highway patrol dozing while driving a 1964 International tractor trailer.

The vehicle went off the road and overturned. The driver was not injured.

Foreign Aid Slashed Half Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, laboring through a marathon 15-hour session, voted early today to slash President Johnson's foreign aid requests by a half billion dollars to $2.8 billion.

Even after a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition pushed through floor cuts of $344 million— and the House accepted earlier committee cuts of $219 million for a total of $563 million less than Johnson asked— the Democratic leadership was able to get the reduced version through by only an eight-vote margin.

The final count, recorded at 3:36 a.m., was 202 to 194. Many members had long since fled the chamber.

Even with the extensive pruning, the House-passed measure still contains nearly $200 million more than the Senate approved last week.

The differences, mostly in the military assistance section of the legislation, now must be resolved by a two-house conference committee.

Just before passing the measure, the House overturned an earlier 145-141 vote and cut an additional $33 million in technical assistance funds. The Republican move won the second time around, 234 to 163.

Included among the major cuts were $150 million from the development loan program, $72 million from the alliance for progress and $25 million from the President's contingency fund.

Another $60 million for support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was chopped out after members were told they already had authorized the money in a separate bill passed earlier.

Despite the deep cuts, administration forces weren't totally without success.

Staved off were bids to pare $120 million from the support assistance program, and an additional $70 million from the Alliance for Progress, the program conceived by President John F. Kennedy to aid Latin American countries.

But the Democratic leadership was turned back in an attempt to restore a second-year authorization for the Alliance for Progress, eliminated Wednesday by an amendment.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D.SC., of the Armed Services Committee sponsored the cut in NATO funds, approved 148 to 78.

Mother of Six Gives Birth to Quadruplets

ST. LOUIS (AP)— A 34-year-old mother of six children gave birth early today to quadruplet boys in DePaul Hospital.

Dr. Nicholas A. Correnti, the attending physician, said the mother, Mrs. Richard Kahrenkrog of St. Louis County, and her sons were in good condition.

The first child was delivered, Correnti said, at 1:03 a.m., and weighed 5 pounds, 2 ounces. The second arrived at 1:42 a.m. weighing 4 pounds, 7 ounces; the third at 1:45 weighed 4 pounds, 3 ounces, and the fourth at 1:47 weighed 5 pounds, 1 ounce.

The Fahrenkrogs' other children— three boys and three girls— range from one to nine years of age. The father is an electrical engineer.

Correnti said, "The father predicted that they would all be boys, but we thought there would be at least one or two girls. We tried to call Lloyds of London and make a bet on his hunch, but we waited too long."

The father, "overjoyed," was reported by C. renti as calmly watching television in the waiting room during the births.

LongPooh-Poohs Eagleton's Entry Into Senate Race

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., poohpoohed the possibility of Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton opposing Long in next year's primary elections, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat said today.

The newspaper said Long commented in a telephone interview that he will seek another term in the Senate, "on my record and the record of the Democratic party."

Long added, "As far as I know Tom is running for lieutenant governor, and I'm supporting him for that office."

But Eagleton, testing political sentiment in southwest Missouri Thursday, said:

"If I receive the same kind of support in the next two or three weeks that I have been getting, I will run."

He referred to "adverse publicity which Senator Long has received in recent months," and said that was a factor in his decision to consider the race.

However, Eagleton said he would not engage in "any castigation of Senator Long."

Caruthersville Bridge Snagged

ST. LOUIS (AP)— An informal conference has apparently failed to resolve differences which threaten to stall construction of a proposed $14 million Mississippi River bridge near Caruthersville, Mo.

Representatives of barge interests, highway department officials from Missouri and Tennessee, residents of the Caruthersville area and federal officials met Thursday in St. Louis.

A spokesman for the Mississippi River Valley Association said little was accomplished. Discussions are expected to continue.

The meeting was called by MVA after an official said a lack of communication was hampering attempts to resolve differences.

The principal issue is over the length of the bridge spans. Barge interests have requested longer spans to provide navigation room while going under the bridge. Highway engineers point out that longer spans would mean a more expensive bridge — $1.2 million more.

The four-lane bridge would be located seven miles downstream from Caruthersville at Boothspoint, Tenn., and would link Caruthersville and Interstate 55 in Missouri with Dyersburg, Tenn.

A trip from Caruthersville to Dyersburg now entails a drive to Memphis, Tenn., or Cairo, Ill. where the nearest bridges are located, or a ferry trip.

The executive vice president of the MVA, E. Michael Cassady, said a protruding bank on the Tennessee shore just below the proposed bridge site will make navigation difficult. Cassady said the longer span is needed to give towboat pilots room to maneuver around the Tennessee bank.

Executives Endorse Income Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred thirteen executives of major banks, transportation and industrial corporations endorse the idea of an income tax increase.

Their telegram to the House Ways and Means Committee Thursday did not specify any tax level and said signers were free to disagree with particulars of President Johnson's proposals.

Johnson has asked for a 10 per cent surcharge on existing individual and corporate income taxes.

The businessmen's statement also insisted on reduced civilian and military spending "to the maximum degree that is consistent with the nation's security and economic soundness."

Rains Flood Homes Near Nation's Capital

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Floodwaters caused by torrential rains forced the evacuation of several families in the Washington, D.C., suburb of Alexandria, Va., today and caused major traffic tieups in the area.

The northern Virginia suburbs of Washington were drenched with from 7 to 8 inches of rain in 48 hours. Four Mile Run reached a depth of 17 feet in Alexandria, overflowing its banks by 3 feet.

The heavy rains caused major traffic tieups on Interstate 95 also known as Shirley Highway, just south of Washington, and on other highways in North Arlington.

Heavy and prolonged rains have driven many rivers and streams over their banks from Georgia to the Virginias.

The rain moved northward into southern New England today, tapering off or ending in most areas farther south.

The New York City area and parts of New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania had 1 inch or more of rain in 6 hours.

Arthur Dickerson, 74, a patient at Shuffit's nursing home no. 3, walked away at 5 a.m. today. He was found later and returned to the nursing home.

Qulin Cyclist Strikes Truck

A 15-year old Qulin boy was injured while driving a Honda motorcycle yesterday. He struck a 1963 Ford pickup truck.

The accident occurred at 4 p.m. on a gravel road, one and one-half miles west of Oglesville in Butler county. The youth was on the wrong side of the road, the patrol reported. The truck was driven by Lucy Hicks, 63, also of Qulin.

He was treated at the Poplar Bluff hospital.

At 3:30 p.m. yesterday on highway 61, three miles north of Benton, a 1967 Rambler, driven by Franklin Weaver, 26, Plattsville, Ala., drove into the highway from a field. He was struck by a 1963 Plymouth, driven by Burton Brown, 32, Sikeston.

The Sikeston driver came over a hill and struck the Weaver car.

Neither driver was injured.

At midnight, Leon Taylor, 36, Bossier City, La., driving south on Interstate 55, four miles south of Sikeston, was reported by the highway patrol dozing while driving a 1964 International tractor trailer.

The vehicle went off the road and overturned. The driver was not injured.

Foreign Aid Slashed Half Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, laboring through a marathon 15-hour session, voted early today to slash President Johnson's foreign aid requests by a half billion dollars to $2.8 billion.

Even after a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition pushed through floor cuts of $344 million— and the House accepted earlier committee cuts of $219 million for a total of $563 million less than Johnson asked— the Democratic leadership was able to get the reduced version through by only an eight-vote margin.

The final count, recorded at 3:36 a.m., was 202 to 194. Many members had long since fled the chamber.

Even with the extensive pruning, the House-passed measure still contains nearly $200 million more than the Senate approved last week.

The differences, mostly in the military assistance section of the legislation, now must be resolved by a two-house conference committee.

Just before passing the measure, the House overturned an earlier 145-141 vote and cut an additional $33 million in technical assistance funds. The Republican move won the second time around, 234 to 163.

Included among the major cuts were $150 million from the development loan program, $72 million from the alliance for progress and $25 million from the President's contingency fund.

Another $60 million for support of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was chopped out after members were told they already had authorized the money in a separate bill passed earlier.

Despite the deep cuts, administration forces weren't totally without success.

Staved off were bids to pare $120 million from the support assistance program, and an additional $70 million from the Alliance for Progress, the program conceived by President John F. Kennedy to aid Latin American countries.

But the Democratic leadership was turned back in an attempt to restore a second-year authorization for the Alliance for Progress, eliminated Wednesday by an amendment.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-SC., of the Armed Services Committee sponsored the cut in NATO funds, approved 148 to 78.

Mother of Six Gives Birth to Quadruplets

ST. LOUIS (AP)— A 34-year-old mother of six children gave birth early today to quadruplet boys in DePaul Hospital.

Dr. Nicholas A. Correnti, the attending physician, said the mother, Mrs. Richard Kahrenkrog of St. Louis County, and her sons were in good condition.

The first child was delivered, Correnti said, at 1:03 a.m., and weighed 5 pounds, 2 ounces. The second arrived at 1:42 a.m. weighing 4 pounds, 7 ounces; the third at 1:45 weighed 4 pounds, 3 ounces, and the fourth at 1:47 weighed 5 pounds, 1 ounce.

The Fahrenkrogs' other children— three boys and three girls— range from one to nine years of age. The father is an electrical engineer.

Correnti said, "The father predicted that they would all be boys, but we thought there would be at least one or two girls. We tried to call Lloyds of London and make a bet on his hunch, but we waited too long."

The father, "overjoyed," was reported by C. . renti as calmly watching television in the waiting room during the births.

Sniper Kills Nazi Leader

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi party was shot and killed today by a sniper, Arlington police said.

Police said Rockwell was in a parking lot across the street from the Nazi party headquarters in this Washington suburb when he was shot.

They said the sniper, who fired from the roof of a building, escaped.

Police said they were looking for a man dressed in a trenchcoat.

Police said the victim was struck in the chest in the 6000 block of Wilson Boulevard.

Arlington police officer John E. Mitchell said policemen who rushed to the scene reported the victim was Rockwell, 47, well known to most of the Arlington police force.

Rockwell apparently was killed instantly by the sniper's bullet.

Arlington police were combing the mixed commercial and residential area for the unknown killer.

An ambulance called to the scene remained for 30 minutes while the victim's body lay on the ground following the noon shooting.

Rockwell frequently appeared around the country leading counter-demonstrations during civil rights marches.

He often was accompanied at such demonstrations by members of his party dressed in uniforms patterned after those of German Storm Troopers of the Hitler era.

Rockwell also was a frequent speaker before college audiences. His appearances usually brought out pickets and hecklers and often produced controversy over whether he should be allowed to appear.

Other speeders fined are: Francinea Marshall, 317 Kramer, fined $19; Martha L. Howell, 635 Branum, fined $19, and Lanny D. Presley, Sikeston, fined $21.

Long Pooh-Poohs Eagleton's Entry Into Senate Race

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., poohpoohed the possibility of Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton opposing Long in next year's primary elections, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat said today.

The newspaper said Long commented in a telephone interview that he will seek another term in the Senate, "on my record and the record of the Democratic party."

Long added, "As far as I know Tom is running for lieutenant governor, and I'm supporting him for that office."

But Eagleton, testing political sentiment in southwest Missouri Thursday, said:

"If I receive the same kind of support in the next two or three weeks that I have been getting, I will run."

He referred to "adverse publicity which Senator Long has received in recent months," and said that was a factor in his decision to consider the race.

However, Eagleton said he would not engage in "any castigation of Senator Long."

MRS. HANNAH REEVES (left), Canalou, greets her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Camden, Tenn., who came to visit after a separation of 52 years.

Sisters Reunite After 52-Year Separation

By CAROL MILLER

CANALOU -- "I wouldn't have known her if we'd met on the street," said Mrs. Hannah Reeves, of her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, Camden, Tenn., when Mrs. Crowell came for a visit.

The reason? They hadn't seen each other for 52 years. The last time the two were together was when Mrs. Reeves and her husband, Clead, left Camden for Canalou in July of 1915.

Most of the Reeves family lived near Canalou, and Reeves was out of work. When his brother wrote that there was plenty of work in Canalou, he and his wife decided to move. He found work in the stave mill and later turned to farming.

Their oldest son, Don, was only three weeks old when the Reeves left Tennessee.

At first the two sisters corresponded, but near the end of World War I, they lost contact. Mrs. Reeves said that her letters were returned uncalled for so she stopped writing.

Unknown to Mrs. Reeves, Mrs. Crowell had moved and later married Ben Crowell in Waverly, Tenn. After that she lived in several Tennessee communities while Mrs. Reeves stayed in Canalou except for two years she lived on South Kingshighway in Sikeston.

Mrs. Reeves, 76, heard about her sister, Mrs. Crowell, 72, occasionally from people passing through Canalou or from friends who also had relatives in Tennessee.

For years there was silence. Mrs. Reeves did not believe that her sister was dead but she could not be sure. Last week a cousin called her brother in Poplar Bluff, B. H. Sims and said that Mrs. Crowell was coming for a visit.

"She later wrote B. H. when she would be there, but she came early and surprised him even more," said Mrs. Reeves.

"Then my sister-in-law called me and said that Hattie would be over," Mrs. Reeves said. "She's my only living sister.

We were a family of six -- besides the two of us there were two other sisters and two brothers.

Mrs. Crowell plans to stay in Canalou until Sunday and then return to her brother's home in Poplar Bluff where she will remain until Tuesday.

"We aren't planning anything particular other than that, "Mrs. Reeves said. "I aim to just sit around and talk to her."

Mrs. Reeves says that she might return Mrs. Crowell's visit if one of her children decides to travel to Tennessee but she does not like to travel by herself.

She has five chances to make that visit with one of her children --Mrs. Rena Poe, 444 Smith Street; Mrs. Bertie Hoskins, North City, Ill.; Raymond Reeves, Benton; Don Reeves, Alexandria, Ind.; and Mrs. Mary Louise Vaughn, Canalou.

Mrs. Crowell wants to come back before another 52 years passes if her health is good. The main reason that the reunion has not taken place earlier is because of her ill health and she believed Mrs. Reeves might be dead.

"We always got along as children even when I teased her and called her little sis," laughed Mrs. Reeves.

"I JUST AIM to sit around and talk to her," said Mrs. Hannah Reeves (center). Mrs. Reeves is enjoying the conversation of her sister, Mrs. Hattie Crowell, who she thought might be dead, and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Louise Vaughn, Canalou.

Caruthersville Bridge Snagged

ST. LOUIS (AP)— An informal conference has apparently failed to resolve differences which threaten to stall construction of a proposed $14 million Mississippi River bridge near Caruthersville, Mo.

Representatives of barge interests, highway department officials from Missouri and Tennessee, residents of the Caruthersville area and federal officials met Thursday in St. Louis.

A spokesman for the Mississippi River Valley Association said little was accomplished. Discussions are expected to continue.

The meeting was called by MVA after an official said a lack of communication was hampering attempts to resolve differences.

The principal issue is over the length of the bridge spans. Barge interests have requested longer spans to provide navigation room while going under the bridge. Highway engineers point out that longer spans would mean a more expensive bridge — $1.2 million more.

The four-lane bridge would be located seven miles downstream from Caruthersville at Boothspoint, Tenn., and would link Caruthersville and Interstate 55 in Missouri with Dyersburg, Tenn.

A trip from Caruthersville to Dyersburg now entails a drive to Memphis, Tenn., or Cairo, Ill., where the nearest bridges are located, or a ferry trip.

The executive vice president of the MVA, E. Michael Cassady, said a protruding bank on the Tennessee shore just below the proposed bridge site will make navigation difficult. Cassady said the longer span is needed to give towboat pilots room to maneuver around the Tennessee bank.

Executives Endorse Income Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — One hundred thirteen executives of major banks, transportation and industrial corporations endorse the idea of an income tax increase.

Their telegram to the House Ways and Means Committee Thursday did not specify any tax level and said signers were free to disagree with particulars of President Johnson's proposals.

Johnson has asked for a 10 per cent surcharge on existing individual and corporate income taxes.

The businessmen's statement also insisted on reduced civilian and military spending "to the maximum degree that is consistent with the nation's security and economic soundness."

Rains Flood Homes Near Nation's Capital

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Floodwaters caused by torrential rains forced the evacuation of several families in the Washington, D.C., suburb of Alexandria, Va., today and caused major traffic tieups in the area.

The northern Virginia suburbs of Washington were drenched with from 7 to 8 inches of rain in 48 hours. Four Mile Run reached a depth of 17 feet in Alexandria, overflowing its banks by 3 feet.

The heavy rains caused major traffic tieups on Interstate 95 also known as Shirley Highway, just south of Washington, and on other highways in North Arlington.

Heavy and prolonged rains have driven many rivers and streams over their banks from Georgia to the Virginias.

The rain moved northward into southern New England today, tapering off or ending in most areas farther south.

The New York City area and parts of New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania had 1 inch or more of rain in 6 hours.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Encouraged by almost ideal weather there appears to be a revival of interest in fairs along with a waning appetite for summer television programs, usually frothy and light and frequently repeats.

People aren't spending the time in front of the boob tubes they once did.

Interest began to subside once before but it was revived temporarily by increased dosage of color television. By now most viewers have become well aware that color alone won't save a poor television show.

Most gray haired people, who grew up in the 1930s, still regard the state fair with awe, either as an out-of-reach form of entertainment or a once in a lifetime event.

The late Phil Stong captured much of this magic in his book "State Fair", which twice has been made into a moving picture.

The state fair evoked wide-eyed wonder and excitement. It was a curious blend of bucolic festivities and bright carnival lights, a delight for people still close to the farm and unsated by televised entertainment.

Happily the state fair has survived and even prospered. The Missouri State Fair at Sedalia now in progress is attracting excellent patronage.

The 114th annual Ohio State Fair in Columbus opened this week admist $1.5 million worth of fairground improvements.

Iowa expects a half million visitors at the 10-day state fair which closes Sunday, pushing attendance to the level of 30 years ago.

Benefitting from a revival of interest in outdoor spectator entertainment was this year's edition of the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo. The weather was just what the Jaycees ordered.

Less reliance on television may be a good omen for the Community Concert series in Sikeston.

State fair managers have found that by catering to the city folk a bit more they can again draw the crowds of yesteryear.

Bob Hope, Perry Como, Hugh Downs and score of other top entertainers are as familiar a sight to fairgoers as are quarter horses and Hereford cows -- or for that matter the not so gently spiked mince meat that Actor Donald Meek savored in the first "State Fair" movie.

In this sense television has proved a boon to fairs as the presence of Actor Robert Conrad and Country Music Singer Molly Bee proved at the Sikeston rodeo.

The DuQuoin state fair across the Mississippi river in Illinois has an enviable reputation for attracting talent that would be a credit to Los Vegas, Broadway or Miami Beach.

Many county fairs have disappeared along with the butter churn and the windmill.

Some still abound. Interestingly enough they have a nostalgic appeal to the city dweller.

The National Conference for New Politics will open a seven-day meeting in Chicago on Tuesday (Aug. 29) to plan strategy for the 1968 elections. The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be the keynote speaker on Aug. 31.

SO LONG as the Johnson administration treats the war in Viet Nam as a kind of huge police action, it will continue to expose itself to the kind of criticism that could scarcely be tolerated in a declared war. That fact becomes more apparent as a blanket movement of the New Left prepares a program for next year's elections.

Michael J. Wood, field coordinator for the National Conference for New Politics (NCNP), on July 8 said that "Johnson in 1968 is the real issue that will bring 'the movement' together in Chicago and in the campaign." The Chicago reference was to a meeting of some 2,000 peace, civil rights, and new left student organization leaders.

Invitations to the meeting at the end of August were issued to a widely varied band of organizations on the left side of the political spectrum. The common denominator seems to be distaste for the war in Viet Nam. Wood, former staff member of the National Student Association who disclosed the subsidies from the Central Intelligence Agency, said President Johnson "symbolizes the corruption and immorality of the American policy in Viet Nam."

MOST OF THOSE INVOLVED in the Chicago conference will be young people, although advance proposals have linked the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., the 38-year-old keynoter, and Dr. Benjamin Spock, the 64-year-old pediatrician, as possible candidates on a third party ticket in 1968. Dr. King on April 25 said he would not accept a third party nomination, but Dr. Spock on July 17 said that he would run if asked.

Wood said on July 8 that the "old left" organizations like the Communist Party would not be invited to Chicago because they had become "too conservative." The New left seems to have little taste for ideology.

Writing in another contest, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover observes: "To equate the New Left with a political party or a tightly disciplined organization is to miss its true identify. It is not an organization. It does not have a constitution, bylaws, or an official membership.

"Rather the New Left is a MOOD, a PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE, a WELTANSCHAUUNG, a way of looking at SELF, COUNTRY, and the UNIVERSE."

CO-CHAIRMEN of the NCNP are State Rep. Julian Bond of Georgia, twice refused his seat in the George House because of his opposition to the Viet Nam war, and Simon Casady, who was ousted as president of the California Democratic Council in 1966 after bitterly criticizing President Johnson.

The New Left has suggested that a third party might run favorite son candidates -- like Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., in New York-- to attempt to take away key state electoral votes next year from President Johnson. The third party idea is contemplated also in a 2,400-word memorandum being circulated by Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., vice chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Among "dump Johnson" proposals by Rauh are a draft of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) for the Presidential nomination and a fight in the Democratic Convention for an anti-war platform plank. Among some Democrats, Viet Nam policy is almost as unpopular as it is with the New Left.

At last, standards for tires that permit all of us to know what we're buying!

Oh, you've known all along? Un-huh, sure you have - but what's the difference between a four-ply and a six-ply tire? Why are different pressures recommended for different driving conditions: Are you sure you've never worried about your point of contact with the road - the four tires underneath you? And, are you "dead certain" you understand what the tire salesman told you?

If not, better find out - or you may be "dead certain" of a blowout or something worse happening to you.

The job of knowing what's riding on your rims - besides yourself - has been made easier because the Federal Trade Commission has put out a new "Guide for Tire Advertising and Labeling." It became effective in February, 1967. Among other things, the guide:

. Requires labels on tires that give you essential information about inflation pressures for various car weights. This may prevent you from buying a tire that's too weak to withstand the weight of your fully loaded vehicle.

. Requires a listing of recommended load distribution. Overloading your tires, of course, can result in nasty, even fatal, consequences.

Although the labels and information will help, nothing will replace your own care and maintenance of tires. Your vehicle's slim grip on the road, the size of four hands, deserves the very best of care. Here are some tips.

Tire manufacturers say the number one rule for tire safety is matching tire inflation to the load. Over-inflated tires wear seriously in the center; under-inflated tires buckle in the middle and wear on the edges. Either way, the amount of rubber you have in contact with the road is markedly decreased, increasing the chances of a skid.

Frequent inspection of your tires, checking for wear and proper inflation, is rule number two. Don't neglect wheel alignment and wheel balance. Improper alignment or balance can set up a dangerous wobble, increasing tire wear.

Taking care of your tires will increase their life - and help to preserve yours.

VITAL ACTIVITIES FOR FREEDOM

In addition to the light duties of enlisting and processing Youth Freedom Speakers in their area, the Board of Counselors for a YFS Chapter, composed of gifted men and women deeply interested in public affairs, can use their formal organization to supplement and perpetuate other freedom activities. It has been proved that working for freedom generates its own steam. Nearly all YFS Counselors will want to expand their pro-freedom activities.

A written or telephone petition of two-thirds of the members of the Board of Counselors can call an activity to the attention of the Executive Committee. This committee, upon finding that the activity is non-partisan, non-sectarian and vitally worthwhile, may decide that the YFS Chapter should participate.

The Counselors will be community-minded people, and if a project is locally non-controversial the Executive Committee may decide in its favor. National and state affairs are more critical. In participating in them, the Board may concern itself with highly important national affairs in the pattern of the Herbert Hoover Commission's work in planning a more efficient administration of governmental matters.

Participation in activities outside the normal YFS activities will actually enhance the goals and ideals of the YFS movement. Youth Freedom Speakers will become better known locally, and Freedom Speakers and what they speak for will gain in public esteem. The stature of Youth Freedom Speakers in the community and across the state and nation will rise. The ideals for which they strive will become widely known, and the cause of freedom will be advanced.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Lady Senator Deplores Females' Failure To Organize Women-Power and Take Leadership.

It may be a man's world, but Senator Margaret Chase Smith does very well proving to the contrary. It would be ungentlemanly of this column to describe her as a veteran Senator. But she is. And an effective one, too.

The lady from Maine, for example, is on the Senate Committee for Armed Services, Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee and, naturally, on the Appropriations Committee.

The other day I asked her if a woman can become President of the U.S. Here is her reply just as she wrote it for this column:

By Margaret Chase Smith
United States Senator from Maine

Washington, D.C.: -- "Where is the proper place of a woman?" is a question I have often been asked. It has been asked so many times in so many ways and by so many types of people that, of necessity, my answer has had to transcend the normal and understandable prejudice that a woman might have.

My answer is short and simple -- woman's proper place is everywhere. Individually, it is where the particular woman is happiest and best fitted. This may seem to be an oversimplification, but it is a conclusion of mine that has been repeatedly reassured by my experiences in meeting people all over the world.

I think that it is a well-accepted fact that the final responsibility for wars is that of the people themselves -- not of the leaders of nations. If we are ever to achieve permanent peace, it will stem from the will of the people themselves, rather than the genius of their leaders.

What do these observations have to do with the answer to what is the proper place of women? Simply this: America, the peace leader of the world, has granted the greatest opportunity to the women -- and America's peace leadership stems directly from the influence and participation of American women in shaping the decisions of this country.

The traditional belligerency of most nations is in inverse ratio to the degree of freedom and recognition that the particular nation grants to women. Wherever you find the woman's voice granted even an approach to parity with that of the man's you will find a more peaceful nation.

If there is any one proper role for women today it is that of alert and responsible citizens in the fullest sense of the word. Citizenship is without sex. It makes no distinction between the rights and responsibilities of men and women -- in America. Since the granting of suffrage to women, the only differential between men and women as citizens has been the availability and acceptance of leadership.

The question is where can women best serve. The answer is -- everywhere: (1) in the home as wives and mothers; (2) in organized civic, business and professional groups; (3) in industry and business, both management and labor; and (4) in government and politics.

Perhaps the most lasting and basic influence of women is in the Home. This might appear too obvious for mention. But it is often that we overlook the obvious. The fight for decent conditions in communities, for improvement in food, housing, school, health and recreational facilities must be led by the women of the Home -- the wives and the mothers.

Much, if not most, of the past leadership of women in this country has come through civic organizations. The basic ingredient for this successful performance record has been the banding of women together in organized groups to give greater voice and more specific objectives to the interests and efforts of individual women.

Women have provided leadership in industry and business. This has been heavily on the Management side for there is a dearth of women leaders in the ranks of labor. Labor unions need the balanced judgement of more women labor leaders.

Why is it that women have made such little progress in the field of politics which, ironically enough, was the very arena of their emanicipation -- the granting of suffrage? The answer lies greatly with the women themselves. In the first place, the meteoric rise of women in the business and professional fields stems greatly from the plain fact that women had the desire for participation and success in these fields. They had sufficient determination to translate that desire into results.

To a great extent, men have encouraged rather than opposed the participation of women in business and professions. Initially, women served their apprenticeship in secretarial jobs. The secretarial duties expanded into executive duties, and before the men realized it, they had come to rely so much upon their women assistants that they could not do without them and had to accept them in the executive field rather than let them go.

The shadings of development and promotion cannot be as subtle in politics for there is nothing subtle about being a candidate for political office. The old prejudice of men against women is given full warning for resistance. Immediately when a woman candidate announces, the male cry is that "public office" is no place for a woman or "the State is not quite ready for a woman in that office." When asked "Why?" the answer is invariably that "she can't hold her own with the men" or "she can't neglect her home duties for her public office duties."

Performances disprove the negative phrase of "no place for a woman." There are many examples of women officeholders who have more than held their own with men. All women in the Congress are outstanding members of most important Congressional Committees. There are plenty of examples of women public officials who have successfully maintained their homes and reared their children. A man legislator's division of his professional time as a lawyer oddly enough is never challenged.

Whether or not there is a future in politics for women depends upon the women themselves. If they have the sufficient desire and determination not only to hold public office but to organize politically and vote in blocks and elect qualified women candidates, then there is most definitely a future in politics for women. The inescapable fact is that they hold the control of the public offices with their majority voting power.

Will they exercise that power? I think they will if they are made to realize that they hold the power. Organized women's power has been forcefully proved, if the incentive is there.

Basically, the incentive and the attraction of more women in higher public office should stem from the fundamental fact that women are the governors of the home. They legislate the rules of the home; they execute and enforce the rules of the home and they interpret the rules of the home. The importance of their role as governors of the home is that the home is the most fundamental form of government. Our community governments are no more than a federation of individual home governments.

There has been too little of the home in the government and too much government in the home. The most obvious and natural way to reverse this trend is to put more of the home governors in the government -- and that means women.

That is why there is a definite and inescapable future in politics for women. It is only a question of time - only a matter of how long the men oppose women holding public office and, more important, how long the women themselves are guilty of such political inertia as not to overcome the opposition of the men.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

WASHINGTON -- There has been a lot of oratory lately about whether the taxpyaers are spending too much or too little to help the big cities. The House made its attitude clear by refusing to spend $40 million over three years to exterminate rats and the diseases they spread.

In this connection, it is worth examining what congress has appropriated to prevent farm diseases which can also be passed on to people. These are beneficial programs which should be continued but should also be balanced by equal aid for the cities.

Because the old men who run congress come chiefly from rural areas, however, the battle against farm diseases gets appropriations and the proposals to fight city diseases do not.

Most of the powerful committee chairmen come from rural towns and do not understand big-city needs. Of the 16 senate committees, 13 are headed by senators from small towns. The agriculture committee, which takes a benevolent attitude toward rural problems, has 77-year-old Sen. Allen Ellender of Houma, La., as its chairman. The public welfare committee, which is supposed to concern itself with city problems, is headed by 73-year-old Sen. Lister Hill of Montgomery, Ala.

Of the 20 house chairmen, 16 come from small towns. The agriculture committee is chaired by 68-year-old Rep. W.R. Poage of Waco, Tex., and the public welfare committee is run by 66-year-old Rep. Carl Perkins of Hindman, Ky.

The money must come from the senate appropriations committee, whose chairman is 90-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden of Phoenix, Ariz., and the house appropriations committee, which is headed by 68-year-old Rep. George Manon of Lubbock, Tex.

FARM VS. SLUMS

Here how these aging, rural-minded leaders are spending the taxpayers' money to protect their own constituencies:

Bang's disease, which causes abortion in cows and hogs, can be passed on to people as undulant fever. The federal government pays a farmer up to $50 bonus to butcher a cow if it contracts bang's disease. He also collects the regular market price for the meat. In most states, cattle herds must be tested each year; the cows are either certified as bang's - free or they are slaughtered. The program costs the taxpayers $21.5 million a year, plus another $250,000 for research. This is important to the nation's health but no more important, say, than an annual inspection program to certify apartment houses as rat-free.

Weed control costs the taxpayers $26.9 million doled out to the states, state universities and research stations, another $2.7 million spent for experimentation. Still another $3.2 million goes to eliminate witchweed, a parasitic growth that destroys corn crops in some southern states. Water hyacinth control costs the taxpayers an additional $6.7 million a year to keep this weed out of southern rivers. Water hyacinths choke the channels and waterways of the south to a point that fish are unable to live and motorboats get their propellers fouled The grand total is close to $39 million, considerably more than the federal government spends to eliminate the weed of juvenile delinquency in the big cities.

Bovine tuberculosis, if transmitted to human beings, can cuase hunchbacks and other malformations. All cattle in the country must be tested once a year for TB, though the chief cost is borne by the cattle owners. However, the taxpayers put up $3.4 million each year for surveys and testing. The same amount would go a long way toward testing the nation's slum children for sickness.

The farm extension service draws $76.3 million annually from the treasury to help farm families with their production and marketing problems, home economics and family living, and the 4-H movement for farm youth. For example, the 4-H clubs -- "Head, hand, heart, and health" -- have been teaching better citizenship to farm boys and girls for a long time. Similar programs have been needed in the big cities. The home economics training, available to rural housewives, should also have been offered to slum women.

Yet another $2.3 million is spent by the government on improving the breeding strains of cattle, hogs, sheep and goats. Like the other farm programs, most of the cost is paid by city and suburban taxpayers. But the congressmen from the country, whose seniority has given them control of congress, appropriate the money for their constituents and neglect the teeming cities.

COLD WAR AT HOME

A great bureaucratic battle has been racing behind the scenes ever since President Johnson tried to merge the labor and commerce departments.

There were whisperings that still other shake-ups would follow. Suddenly, rival agencies began raiding one another's territory and stealing one another's functions.

The commerce department, through its alliances on Capitol Hill, successfully defended its borders against the labor department. But labor struck out in other directions. It started flanking movements to capture the job corps away from the office of economic opportunity and to grab the manpower - training functions from the department of health, education and welfare. Under fire from the anti - antipoverty guns, OEO is now fighting desperately to defend its territorial integrity against half a dozen departments.

The two newest bureaucratic kingdoms -- the department of housing and urban development and the department of transportation -- already have started battling over the urban mass transportation function (and the appropriations that go with them). Several other agencies have also revived ancient animosities and petty rivalries. Out of it is almost certain to come more reorganization.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Encouraged by almost ideal weather there appears to be a revival of interest in fairs along with a waning appetite for summer television programs, usually frothy and light and frequently repeats.

People aren't spending the time in front of the boob tubes they once did.

Interest began to subside once before but it was revived temporarily by increased dosage of color television. By now most viewers have become well aware that color alone won't save a poor television show.

Most gray haired people, who grew up in the 1930s, still regard the state fair with awe, either as an out-of-reach form of entertainment or a once in a lifetime event.

The late Phil Stong captured much of this magic in his book "State Fair", which twice has been made into a moving picture.

The state fair evoked wide-eyed wonder and excitement. It was a curious blend of bucolic festivities and bright carnival lights, a delight for people still close to the farm and unsated by televised entertainment.

Happily the state fair has survived and even prospered. The Missouri State Fair at Sedalia now in progress is attracting excellent patronage.

The 114th annual Ohio State Fair in Columbus opened this week admist $1.5 million worth of fairground improvements.

Iowa expects a half million visitors at the 10-day state fair which closes Sunday, pushing attendance to the level of 30 years ago.

Benefitting from a revival of interest in outdoor spectator entertainment was this year's edition of the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo. The weather was just what the Jaycees ordered.

Less reliance on television may be a good omen for the Community Concert series in Sikeston.

State fair managers have found that by catering to the city folk a bit more they can again draw the crowds of yesteryear.

Bob Hope, Perry Como, Hugh Downs and score of other top entertainers are as familiar a sight to fairgoers as are quarter horses and Hereford cows -- or for that matter the not so gently spiked mince meat that Actor Donald Meek savored in the first "State Fair" movie.

In this sense television has proved a boon to fairs as the presence of Actor Robert Conrad and Country Music Singer Molly Bee proved at the Sikeston rodeo.

The DuQuoin state fair across the Mississippi river in Illinois has an enviable reputation for attracting talent that would be a credit to Los Vegas, Broadway or Miami Beach.

Many county fairs have disappeared along with the butter churn and the windmill.

Some still abound. Interestingly enough they have a nostalgic appeal to the city dweller.

The National Conference for New Politics will open a seven-day meeting in Chicago on Tuesday (Aug. 29) to plan strategy for the 1968 elections. The Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., will be the keynote speaker on Aug. 31.

SO LONG as the Johnson administration treats the war in Viet Nam as a kind of huge police action, it will continue to expose itself to the kind of criticism that could scarcely be tolerated in a declared war. That fact becomes more apparent as a blanket movement of the New Left prepares a program for next year's elections.

Michael J. Wood, field coordinator for the National Conference for New Politics (NCNP), on July 8 said that "Johnson in 1968 is the real issue that will bring 'the movement' together in Chicago and in the campaign." The Chicago reference was to a meeting of some 2,000 peace, civil rights, and new left student organization leaders.

Invitations to the meeting at the end of August were issued to a widely varied band of organizations on the left side of the political spectrum. The common denominator seems to be distaste for the war in Viet Nam. Wood, former staff member of the National Student Association who disclosed the subsidies from the Central Intelligence Agency, said President Johnson "symbolizes the corruption and immorality of the American policy in Viet Nam."

MOST OF THOSE INVOLVED in the Chicago conference will be young people, although advance proposals have linked the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., the 38-year-old keynoter, and Dr. Benjamin Spock, the 64-year-old pediatrician, as possible candidates on a third party ticket in 1968. Dr. King on April 25 said he would not accept a third party nomination, but Dr. Spock on July 17 said that he would run if asked.

Wood said on July 8 that the "old left" organizations like the Communist Party would not be invited to Chicago because they had become "too conservative." The New left seems to have little taste for ideology.

Writing in another contest, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover observes: "To equate the New Left with a political party or a tightly disciplined organization is to miss its true identify. It is not an organization. It does not have a constitution, bylaws, or an official membership.

"Rather the New Left is a MOOD, a PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE, a WELTANSCHAUUNG, a way of looking at SELF, COUNTRY, and the UNIVERSE."

CO-CHAIRMEN of the NCNP are State Rep. Julian Bond of Georgia, twice refused his seat in the George House because of his opposition to the Viet Nam war, and Simon Casady, who was ousted as president of the California Democratic Council in 1966 after bitterly criticizing President Johnson.

The New Left has suggested that a third party might run favorite son candidates -- like Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., in New York-- to attempt to take away key state electoral votes next year from President Johnson. The third party idea is contemplated also in a 2,400-word memorandum being circulated by Joseph L. Rauh, Jr., vice chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

Among "dump Johnson" proposals by Rauh are a draft of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) for the Presidential nomination and a fight in the Democratic Convention for an anti-war platform plank. Among some Democrats, Viet Nam policy is almost as unpopular as it is with the New Left.

At last, standards for tires that permit all of us to know what we're buying!

Oh, you've known all along? Un-huh, sure you have - but what's the difference between a four-ply and a six-ply tire? Why are different pressures recommended for different driving conditions: Are you sure you've never worried about your point of contact with the road - the four tires underneath you? And, are you "dead certain" you understand what the tire salesman told you?

If not, better find out - or you may be "dead certain" of a blowout or something worse happening to you.

The job of knowing what's riding on your rims - besides yourself - has been made easier because the Federal Trade Commission has put out a new "Guide for Tire Advertising and Labeling." It became effective in February, 1967. Among other things, the guide:

. Requires labels on tires that give you essential information about inflation pressures for various car weights. This may prevent you from buying a tire that's too weak to withstand the weight of your fully loaded vehicle.

. Requires a listing of recommended load distribution. Overloading your tires, of course, can result in nasty, even fatal, consequences.

Although the labels and information will help, nothing will replace your own care and maintenance of tires. Your vehicle's slim grip on the road, the size of four hands, deserves the very best of care. Here are some tips.

Tire manufacturers say the number one rule for tire safety is matching tire inflation to the load. Over-inflated tires wear seriously in the center; under-inflated tires buckle in the middle and wear on the edges. Either way, the amount of rubber you have in contact with the road is markedly decreased, increasing the chances of a skid.

Frequent inspection of your tires, checking for wear and proper inflation, is rule number two. Don't neglect wheel alignment and wheel balance. Improper alignment or balance can set up a dangerous wobble, increasing tire wear.

Taking care of your tires will increase their life - and help to preserve yours.

VITAL ACTIVITIES FOR FREEDOM

In addition to the light duties of enlisting and processing Youth Freedom Speakers in their area, the Board of Counselors for a YFS Chapter, composed of gifted men and women deeply interested in public affairs, can use their formal organization to supplement and perpetuate other freedom activities. It has been proved that working for freedom generates its own steam. Nearly all YFS Counselors will want to expand their pro-freedom activities.

A written or telephone petition of two-thirds of the members of the Board of Counselors can call an activity to the attention of the Executive Committee. This committee, upon finding that the activity is non-partisan, non-sectarian and vitally worthwhile, may decide that the YFS Chapter should participate.

The Counselors will be community-minded people, and if a project is locally non-controversial the Executive Committee may decide in its favor. National and state affairs are more critical. In participating in them, the Board may concern itself with highly important national affairs in the pattern of the Herbert Hoover Commission's work in planning a more efficient administration of governmental matters.

Participation in activities outside the normal YFS activities will actually enhance the goals and ideals of the YFS movement. Youth Freedom Speakers will become better known locally, and Freedom Speakers and what they speak for will gain in public esteem. The stature of Youth Freedom Speakers in the community and across the state and nation will rise. The ideals for which they strive will become widely known, and the cause of freedom will be advanced.

Inside Labor

Lady Senator Deplores Females' Failure To Organize Women-Power and Take Leadership.

It may be a man's world, but Senator Margaret Chase Smith does very well proving to the contrary. It would be ungentlemanly of this column to describe her as a veteran Senator. But she is. And an effective one, too.

The lady from Maine, for example, is on the Senate Committee for Armed Services, Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee and, naturally, on the Appropriations Committee.

The other day I asked her if a woman can become President of the U.S. Here is her reply just as she wrote it for this column:

By Margaret Chase Smith
United States Senator from Maine

Washington, D.C.: -- "Where is the proper place of a woman?" is a question I have often been asked. It has been asked so many times in so many ways and by so many types of people that, of necessity, my answer has had to transcend the normal and understandable prejudice that a woman might have.

My answer is short and simple -- woman's proper place is everywhere. Individually, it is where the particular woman is happiest and best fitted. This may seem to be an oversimplification, but it is a conclusion of mine that has been repeatedly reassured by my experiences in meeting people all over the world.

I think that it is a well-accepted fact that the final responsibility for wars is that of the people themselves -- not of the leaders of nations. If we are ever to achieve permanent peace, it will stem from the will of the people themselves, rather than the genius of their leaders.

What do these observations have to do with the answer to what is the proper place of women? Simply this: America, the peace leader of the world, has granted the greatest opportunity to the women -- and America's peace leadership stems directly from the influence and participation of American women in shaping the decisions of this country.

The traditional belligerency of most nations is in inverse ratio to the degree of freedom and recognition that the particular nation grants to women. Wherever you find the woman's voice granted even an approach to parity with that of the man's you will find a more peaceful nation.

If there is any one proper role for women today it is that of alert and responsible citizens in the fullest sense of the word. Citizenship is without sex. It makes no distinction between the rights and responsibilities of men and women -- in America. Since the granting of suffrage to women, the only differential between men and women as citizens has been the availability and acceptance of leadership.

The question is where can women best serve. The answer is -- everywhere: (1) in the home as wives and mothers; (2) in organized civic, business and professional groups; (3) in industry and business, both management and labor; and (4) in government and politics.

Perhaps the most lasting and basic influence of women is in the Home. This might appear too obvious for mention. But it is often that we overlook the obvious. The fight for decent conditions in communities, for improvement in food, housing, school, health and recreational facilities must be led by the women of the Home -- the wives and the mothers.

Much, if not most, of the past leadership of women in this country has come through civic organizations. The basic ingredient for this successful performance record has been the banding of women together in organized groups to give greater voice and more specific objectives to the interests and efforts of individual women.

Women have provided leadership in industry and business. This has been heavily on the Management side for there is a dearth of women leaders in the ranks of labor. Labor unions need the balanced judgement of more women labor leaders.

Why is it that women have made such little progress in the field of politics which, ironically enough, was the very arena of their emanicipation -- the granting of suffrage? The answer lies greatly with the women themselves. In the first place, the meteoric rise of women in the business and professional fields stems greatly from the plain fact that women had the desire for participation and success in these fields. They had sufficient determination to translate that desire into results.

To a great extent, men have encouraged rather than opposed the participation of women in business and professions. Initially, women served their apprenticeship in secretarial jobs. The secretarial duties expanded into executive duties, and before the men realized it, they had come to rely so much upon their women assistants that they could not do without them and had to accept them in the executive field rather than let them go.

The shadings of development and promotion cannot be as subtle in politics for there is nothing subtle about being a candidate for political office. The old prejudice of men against women is given full warning for resistance. Immediately when a woman candidate announces, the male cry is that "public office" is no place for a woman or "the State is not quite ready for a woman in that office." When asked "Why?" the answer is invariably that "she can't hold her own with the men" or "she can't neglect her home duties for her public office duties."

Performances disprove the negative phrase of "no place for a woman." There are many examples of women officeholders who have more than held their own with men. All women in the Congress are outstanding members of most important Congressional Committees. There are plenty of examples of women public officials who have successfully maintained their homes and reared their children. A man legislator's division of his professional time as a lawyer oddly enough is never challenged.

Whether or not there is a future in politics for women depends upon the women themselves. If they have the sufficient desire and determination not only to hold public office but to organize politically and vote in blocks and elect qualified women candidates, then there is most definitely a future in politics for women. The inescapable fact is that they hold the control of the public offices with their majority voting power.

Will they exercise that power? I think they will if they are made to realize that they hold the power. Organized women's power has been forcefully proved, if the incentive is there.

Basically, the incentive and the attraction of more women in higher public office should stem from the fundamental fact that women are the governors of the home. They legislate the rules of the home; they execute and enforce the rules of the home and they interpret the rules of the home. The importance of their role as governors of the home is that the home is the most fundamental form of government. Our community governments are no more than a federation of individual home governments.

There has been too little of the home in the government and too much government in the home. The most obvious and natural way to reverse this trend is to put more of the home governors in the government -- and that means women.

That is why there is a definite and inescapable future in politics for women. It is only a question of time - only a matter of how long the men oppose women holding public office and, more important, how long the women themselves are guilty of such political inertia as not to overcome the opposition of the men.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

WASHINGTON -- There has been a lot of oratory lately about whether the taxpyaers are spending too much or too little to help the big cities. The House made its attitude clear by refusing to spend $40 million over three years to exterminate rats and the diseases they spread.

In this connection, it is worth examining what congress has appropriated to prevent farm diseases which can also be passed on to people. These are beneficial programs which should be continued but should also be balanced by equal aid for the cities.

Because the old men who run congress come chiefly from rural areas, however, the battle against farm diseases gets appropriations and the proposals to fight city diseases do not.

Most of the powerful committee chairmen come from rural towns and do not understand big-city needs. Of the 16 senate committees, 13 are headed by senators from small towns. The agriculture committee, which takes a benevolent attitude toward rural problems, has 77-year-old Sen. Allen Ellender of Houma, La., as its chairman. The public welfare committee, which is supposed to concern itself with city problems, is headed by 73-year-old Sen. Lister Hill of Montgomery, Ala.

Of the 20 house chairmen, 16 come from small towns. The agriculture committee is chaired by 68-year-old Rep. W.R. Poage of Waco, Tex., and the public welfare committee is run by 66-year-old Rep. Carl Perkins of Hindman, Ky.

The money must come from the senate appropriations committee, whose chairman is 90-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden of Phoenix, Ariz., and the house appropriations committee, which is headed by 68-year-old Rep. George Manon of Lubbock, Tex.

FARM VS. SLUMS

Here how these aging, rural-minded leaders are spending the taxpayers' money to protect their own constituencies:

Bang's disease, which causes abortion in cows and hogs, can be passed on to people as undulant fever. The federal government pays a farmer up to $50 bonus to butcher a cow if it contracts bang's disease. He also collects the regular market price for the meat. In most states, cattle herds must be tested each year; the cows are either certified as bang's - free or they are slaughtered. The program costs the taxpayers $21.5 million a year, plus another $250,000 for research. This is important to the nation's health but no more important, say, than an annual inspection program to certify apartment houses as rat-free.

Weed control costs the taxpayers $26.9 million doled out to the states, state universities and research stations, another $2.7 million spent for experimentation. Still another $3.2 million goes to eliminate witch-weed, a parasitic growth that destroys corn crops in some southern states. Water hyacinth control costs the taxpayers an additional $6.7 million a year to keep this weed out of southern rivers. Water hyacinths choke the channels and waterways of the south to a point that fish are unable to live and motorboats get their propellers fouled The grand total is close to $39 million, considerably more than the federal government spends to eliminate the weed of juvenile delinquency in the big cities.

Bovine tuberculosis, if transmitted to human beings, can cuase hunchbacks and other malformations. All cattle in the country must be tested once a year for TB, though the chief cost is borne by the cattle owners. However, the taxpayers put up $3.4 million each year for surveys and testing. The same amount would go a long way toward testing the nation's slum children for sickness.

The farm extension service draws $76.3 million annually from the treasury to help farm families with their production and marketing problems, home economics and family living, and the 4-H movement for farm youth. For example, the 4-H clubs -- "Head, hand, heart, and health" -- have been teaching better citizenship to farm boys and girls for a long time. Similar programs have been needed in the big cities. The home economics training, available to rural housewives, should also have been offered to slum women.

Yet another $2.3 million is spent by the government on improving the breeding strains of cattle, hogs, sheep and goats. Like the other farm programs, most of the cost is paid by city and suburban taxpayers. But the congressmen from the country, whose seniority has given them control of congress, appropriate the money for their constituents and neglect the teeming cities.

COLD WAR AT HOME

A great bureaucratic battle has been racing behind the scenes ever since President Johnson tried to merge the labor and commerce departments.

There were whisperings that still other shake-ups would follow. Suddenly, rival agencies began raiding one another's territory and stealing one another's functions.

The commerce department, through its alliances on Capitol Hill, successfully defended its borders against the labor department. But labor struck out in other directions. It started flanking movements to capture the job corps away from the office of economic opportunity and to grab the manpower - training functions from the department of health, education and welfare. Under fire from the anti - antipoverty guns, OEO is now fighting desperately to defend its territorial integrity against half a dozen departments.

The two newest bureaucratic kingdoms -- the department of housing and urban development and the department of transportation -- already have started battling over the urban mass transportation function (and the appropriations that go with them). Several other agencies have also revived ancient animosities and petty rivalries. Out of it is almost certain to come more reorganization.

Wilma Belk Marries Kenneth O. Bartlett

CHARLESTON -- Miss Wilma Jean Belk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bly V. Belk, became the bride of Kenneth O'Neal Bartlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Bartlett, Sunday, at 2 p.m. at New Bethel Baptist church. The Rev. Homer Stallings officiated at the double ring ceremony.

White and yellow gladioli formed a background for the wedding, and baskets of yellow daisies were on the piano and organ. The couple knelt on white satin cushions for the benediction.

Mrs. Marilyn Glenn served as organist and accompanied Buddy Duke, who sand "I Love You Truly" and for the benediction, "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Betty Shoaf, Illmo, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Diane Lenger, Cape Girardeau, and Miss Julia Barlett, sister of the bridegroom, of Charleston.

They wore yellow floor-length dresses of peau de soie with empire waistlines. The bodices and short, bell sleeves were lace. Their headdresses were pillboxes of yellow peau de soie and net. They carried bouquet of yellow daisies.

The bride made her wedding gown and veil. The floor-length dress was quite peau de soie, featuring an empire waistline and bodice with long sleeves of peau de soie covered with lace. A train of peau de soie covered with lace was attached at the shoulders. Her fingertip veil was attached to a pillbox of peau de soie covered with lace. She carried a white orchid on a white Bible, a gift from the groom.

Earl Caid of Charleston was best man and groomsmen were Sonny Burcks and David Belk of Charleston.

Mrs. Belk, mother of the bride, wore a light blue afternoon dress with three-quarter length sleeves, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Bartlett, the groom's mother, wore a deep rose print two-piece costume suit with black patent leather accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The bride was graduated from Charleston high school in 1963 and Office Training School in 1964. She has been employed at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau for over three years.

Bartlett is a graduate of Annisston high school, class of 1963, and is employed in Maryland Heights. The couple live in a new mobile home in Prince Charles Park at St. Charles.

A reception was held in the church educational building. Misses Phyllis Evans and Linda O'Neal served cake and punch. Miss Paula Noisworthy officiated at the guest book. Ushers were James Belk, brother of the bride, and John Moxley, brother-in-law of the bride, from Fayette.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ellis Cathey

Brenda Kay Stewart Pledges Vows With John Ellis Cathey

BENTON -- Miss Brenda Kay Stewart and John Ellis Cathey of Charleston were married at 6 p.m. Saturday in St. Denis church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stewart of Benton and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cathey, 207 Locust, Charleston.

The Rev. Fr. Francis Donovan officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Sister M. Angelica, the girls choir and the congregation provided wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Stewart wore a street-length empire style gown of lace and peau de soie. The neckline and bell-shaped sleeves were scalloped.

She wore a small veil and carried a bouquet of posies.

Miss Sharon Dennis of Benton was maid of honor. Miss Jane Stewart of Benton, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid. They wore mint green dotted swiss and whipped cream street-length dresses. Lace accented the sleeves and hemline. Cabbage clusters of green held their nose-tip veils.

Tommy Butler of Charleston was best man. Groomsman was Dennis Butler, Charleston.

The bride's mother wore a peach colored dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception and buffet luncheon was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was covered with a white cloth. Cake, punch and green mints were served.

For a short wedding trip, the new Mrs. Cathey changed to an empire styled green, orange and white sleeveless dress. She wore white accessories.

The couple lives at 610 Cypress, Charleston. Mrs. Cathey is employed by the Sikeston Daily Standard. Her husband is an employe of the highway department.

If you would have a happy family life, remember two things: in matters of principle, stand like a rock; in matters of taste, swim with the current.

Miss Frankum Honored at Bridal Party

Miss Sherry Frankum was honored at a miscellaneous shower on Sunday in the community room of the Security National Bank. Hostesses were Miss Johnalee Campbell, Miss Dixie Campbell, Miss Pat Lewis, and Miss Nancy Lewis.

Upon her arrival Miss Frankum was presented a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's chosen colors, of pink and white, were used in the decorations. The refreshment table was overlaid with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink and white pompons. Cupcakes, punch, and nuts were served.

Edgar J. St. Clair

St. Clair Will Conduct Revival At Parma

PARMA -- The First Baptist church is planning a revival meeting Monday through Sept. 8. Services will begin at 8 p.m. each evening.

The Rev. Edgar J. St. Clair, pastor of the Lindenwood Baptist church, St. Louis, will be the evangelist for the 12-day meeting. The Rev. Mr. St. Clair is well known in this area, having been pastor of the Second (Air Base) Baptist Church, Malden, and of the First Baptist church, Campbell. He is a graduate of Arkansas State University, Jonesboro, and Southern Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

Roger Campbell, Oran, will be the song leader during the series of meetings. Campbell also is well known in this area. He and his wife are natives of Parma.

A special feature of the revival, according to the pastor, the Rev. Gayford Lowrance, will be a recognition of some of the different organizations of the church at various times during the meeting. The leaders of these organizations will be asked to give a brief testimony on the functions of their particular group in its relationship to the total church program.

The organizations and the leaders that will be recognized are: the Sunday School, Orville Coffey, superintendent; the Training Union, Mrs. Mary Harchous, director; the Women's Missionary Union, Mrs. Chlora Gilmer, vice president; Baptist Men's work, Doyle Crow, president; the Girls Auxiliary to the WMU, Mrs. Mary Jo Goforth, leader; the Sunbeam Band, Mrs. Clara Bagby, leader. Present plans also include a youth night emphasis for Sept. 2.

A plant strives to survive much as do animals and people. Many have means by which to protect themselves. The rose has protective thorns, the thistle has sharp penetrating prickles and the cactus has strong, sharp spines. Other plants have chemical weapons such as sumac, nettle and poison ivy.

It is said that without the thorns on the Cherokee rose it would have long ago disappeared because they taste so good to the grazing animals — the discouragement of the thorns has saved them.

Cards Claim Pitching Duel As Hughes Has Four-Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fans of the St. Louis Cardinals find it almost unbelieveable that their team has built what appears to be an insurmountable lead in the National League pennant chase.

In fact, it's no longer a race or a chase except for second place. The Cards lead runner up Cincinnati by 11½ games following a 2-0 shutout of San Francisco Thursday night and a 4-3, ten inning loss by the Reds to the Dodgers.

Only two and one-half games seperate Cincinnati, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

Thursday night was typical: The Cards Dick Hughes and the Giants Gaylor Perry almost matched pitch for pitch through eight scoreless innings. Perry limited the Cards to two hits, but was in occasional trouble because of seven walks.

Then came the ninth. Tim McCarer singled, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Bob Tolan's pinch single. Hughes, followed with another single to drive in Julian Javier who got aboard on an intentional walk.

Perry gave up a total of five hits in suffering his fifth straight loss to the Cards. Hughes was touched for four hits in posting his 13th victory. He has lost only four.

The Cards move down the coast for a twi-night doubleheader with the Dodgers in Los Angeles. Al Jackson and Larry Jaster will open for St. Louis, Bill Singer and Jim Brewer for the Dodgers.

Billy McCool hesitated and the Cincinnati Reds were lost.

McCool, working in relief in the 10th inning against Los Angeles Thursday night, waited a moment too long before deciding what to do with Jim Lefebvre's sacrifice bunt and the Reds wound up on the short end of a 4-3 score.

Gary Nolan was working on a three-hitter and leading 3-0 going into the ninth inning against the Dodgers. But three straight hits by Lefebvre, Al Ferrara and Wes Parker followed by two errors tied the score for Los Angeles.

An inning later, Lou Johnson opened with a double. Lefebvre bunted and McCool fielded the ball, looked towards third, hesitated, and threw to first. But Lefebvre beat the play.

An intentional walk to Ferrara loaded the bases and after Parker popped out, Bob Bailey singled Johnson home with the winning run.

In the only other National League games played Thursday. Houston edged Atlanta 5-4 in 10 innings. Pittsburgh's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

The Reds nicked Dodger starter Don Sutton for a pair of first inning runs and added another in the third. With Nolan breezing, the margin looked safe, and until the ninth, it was.

But Lefebvre opened with a single and Ferrara doubled. Parker's hit brought one run across and Lee Mays high throw on the relay allowed another to score. Then Tony Perez booted a grounder as Parker carried the tying run across.

Doug Rader drove in three runs with three hits and a sacrifice fly for Houston but the hero was Sonny Jackson, whose 10th inning single scored Ron Brand with the winning run.

Brand had been hit by a Jay Ritchie pitch with two out and raced to third on Julio Gotay's double. Ramon Hernandez relieved for the Braves and Jackson singled the winning run home.

St. Louis Cardinals May Not Be Without Johnson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Army spokesman says quarterback Charlie Johnson may be able to play for the St. Louis Cardinals. Now the Cardinals have to figure out what to do with Johnson.

Johnson himself said his biggest problem, even if he could play, would be his timing.

"After a long layoff I could lose a lot of finesse and timing," Johnson said at Ft. Sill, Okla. The main thing to do to stay in St. Louis in good condition.

If Johnson can't stay in good condition and if his timing is off, then Coach Charley Winner might end up benching Johnson in favor of second-year quarterback Jim Hart.

The Washington Star said Thursday Johnson, 28, was found physically unfit to lead troops in combat. The newspaper said Johnson will be assigned to the National Space Administration's research center in Virginia. The Star said he would work civilian hours and should be available for all the Cardinals' games.

However, an Army spokesman at Ft. Sill denied that Johnson was found physically unsuitable. But he did say Johnson would be eligible for week-end passes during his nine-week stay at Ft. Sill. Johnson would be allowed to travel 500 miles from Ft. Sill on the passes. St. Louis is 450 air miles from the installation.

The spokesman added that when St. Louis plays outside the 500-mile limit, Johnson could probably get special permission to play with the team.

Johnson, a seven-year National Football League veteran, was called up for active duty Aug. 11 as a lieutenant.

William Bidwill, part owner of theO Cardinals, said Johnson would probably get in touch with club officials to discuss the situation.

"We have discussed the possibility that this might happen," Bidwill said, "but right now I have no word about the situation."

In the Swan Lake zone only one Canada goose a day can be taken through October and two the rest of the season.

Football Rules Meetings Set For Cape, Dexter

Dexter and Cape Girardeau have been designated by the Missouri State High School Activities Association as sites for 1967 football rules interpretation meetings.

The meetings will be conducted by Ben Bidwell of Poplar Bluff.

The program of rules meetings is one phase of a program of the MSHSAA to improve officiating.

Football officials are required to attend one of the 21 statewide meetings in order to renew their license.

Both meetings are scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. with Dexter's set for August 31 and Cape's Sept. 5.

The Cape meeting will be held at the Southeast Missouri State College gymnasium. The high school Gym at Dexter will be the meeting place.

Cards-Steelers Clash At Nashville Saturday

NASHVILLE,--- With their first pre-season victory tucked safely away, and with some fine performances at home to go along with it, the Football Cardinals will make their third start here Saturday night against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Kickoff at Vanderbilt University's Dudley Field is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Head Coach Charley Winner said he was pleased with the team's performance after the 9-5 victory over the Colts before 34,054 fans at Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

"I thought Jim Hart made fine progress at quarterback," the coach commented. "We moved the ball pretty well most of the time, being stopped by some unfortunate penalties and mistakes, but our ball control was good.

"Our pass protection was outstanding. With one of the best defenses in the league to handle, our line kept Jim Hart from being knocked down even once.

"And the defense was excellent. It had a great goal line stand in the fourth quarter, of course, but it also kept Baltimore, which has a high-scoring reputation, from scoring a touchdown.

The Cardinals also pulled the unusual maneuver of giving up a deliberate safety in exchange for field position. With less that five minutes to play and the Cards ahead, 9-3, Baltimore had a first down on the Big Red eight. The Cardinals took the ball away on the one and, after three plays produced only five yards, Joe Randall went back to the end zone to punt.

He dropped to a knee, however, giving the Colts two points and the Cardinals a chance for a free kick from their own 20, gaining 14 yards and a non-rushed kick in exchange for the two points.

The strategy paid off, too, when Larry Wilson tackled pass-catching Jim Detwiler and the ball bounced into the arms of Dave Meggysey, giving the Cardinals possession with only 48 seconds to play.

The always-tough Steelers have dropped both their pre-season games, 31-20 to Green Bay and 20-17 to New Orleans, but will have their fine young quarterback, Bill Nelsen, on display, along with hard-running Earl Gros, acquired from Philadelphia in an off-season trade.

A year ago, the Big Red and the Steelers split their two games, with Pittsburgh gaining a 31-9 verdict and the Cardinals winning, 6-3. The home team won on both occasions.

With only a short time to work for the Saturday encounter, the Big Red probably will go with a similar lineup to the one that faced the Colts. With mandatory cut-down to 49 players coming on Monday, however, it appears that almost everyone will get a chance to see action.

After the Saturday game, the Cardinals will return to Lake Forest for their last week of training camp, climaxing with the annual Soldier Field game against the Bears, Sept. 1. The club will return to St. Louis over the Labor Day weekend to prepare for its final pre-season test, against the Detroit Lions on Sept. 8 for the St. Louis Symphony Society. The regular season opens at home against the New York Giants on Sept. 17.

Commissioner To Take Action

NEW YORK (AP)— Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert, promising "appropriate action at a later date," has stepped into the squabble between the Kansas City Athletics and their volatile owner, Charles O. Finley.

Eckert acknowledged Thursday that he had received a request from the Major League Players Association that he hold a hearing on the dispute which has resulted in the firing of Alvin Dark as Athletics' manager and the release of first baseman Ken Harrelson.

Eckert said, "I am gathering appropriate data on the subject and will take further appropriate action at a later date."

The letter was sent by Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association.

The Athletics, in the meantime, returned home to Kansas City Thursday and were met at the airport by about 1,000 fans, many carrying signs criticizing Finley and backing the players.

The confrontation arose last week when Finley suspended pitcher Lew Krausse for a drinking incident on a plane. The players released a statement criticizing Finley and, in the aftermath, Dark was fired and Harrelson was released.

Krausse was later reinstated and Finley's demand that the players retract their statement was refused.

Cards Claim Pitching Duel As Hughes Has Four-Hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fans of the St. Louis Cardinals find it almost unbelieveable that their team has built what appears to be an insurmountable lead in the National League pennant chase.

In fact, it's no longer a race or a chase except for second place. The Cards lead runner up Cincinnati by 11½ games following a 2-0 shutout of San Francisco Thursday night and a 4-3, ten inning loss by the Reds to the Dodgers.

Only two and one-half games seperate Cincinnati, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco and Philadelphia.

Thursday night was typical: The Cards Dick Hughes and the Giants Gaylor Perry almost matched pitch for pitch through eight scoreless innings.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Army spokesman says quarterback Charlie Johnson may be able to play for the St. Louis Cardinals. Now the Cardinals have to figure out what to do with Johnson.

Johnson himself said his biggest problem, even if he could play, would be his timing.

"After a long layoff I could lose a lot of finesse and timing," Johnson said at Ft. Sill, Okla. The main thing to do to stay in St. Louis in good condition.

If Johnson can't stay in good condition and if his timing is off, then Coach Charley Winner might end up benching Johnson in favor of second-year quarterback Jim Hart.

The Washington Star said Thursday Johnson, 28, was found physically unfit to lead troops in combat. The newspaper said Johnson will be assigned to the National Space Administration's research center in Virginia. The Star said he would work civilian hours and should be available for all the Cardinals' games.

However, an Army spokesman at Ft. Sill denied that Johnson was found physically unsuitable. But he did say Johnson would be eligible for week-end passes during his nine-week stay at Ft. Sill. Johnson would be allowed to travel 500 miles from Ft. Sill on the passes. St. Louis is 450 air miles from the installation.

The spokesman added that when St. Louis plays outside the 500-mile limit, Johnson could probably get special permission to play with the team.

Johnson, a seven-year National Football League veteran, was called up for active duty Aug. 11 as a lieutenant.

William Bidwill, part owner of the0 Cardinals, said Johnson would probably get in touch with club officials to discuss the situation.

"We have discussed the possibility that this might happen," Bidwill said, "but right now I have no word about the situation."

In the Swan Lake zone only one Canada goose a day can be taken through October and two the rest of the season.

Football Rules Meetings Set For Cape, Dexter

Dexter and Cape Girardeau have been designated by the Missouri State High School Activities Association as sites for 1967 football rules interpretation meetings.

The meetings will be conducted by Ben Bidwell of Poplar Bluff.

The program of rules meetings is one phase of a program of the MSHSAA to improve officiating.

Football officials are required to attend one of the 21 statewide meetings in order to renew their license.

Both meetings are scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. with Dexter's set for August 31 and Cape's Sept. 5.

The Cape meeting will be held at the Southeast Missouri State College gymnasium. The high school Gym at Dexter will be the meeting place.

Cards-Steelers Clash At Nashville Saturday

NASHVILLE,--- With their first pre-season victory tucked safely away, and with some fine performances at home to go along with it, the Football Cardinals will make their third start here Saturday night against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Kickoff at Vanderbilt University's Dudley Field is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Head Coach Charley Winner said he was pleased with the team's performance after the 9-5 victory over the Colts before 34,054 fans at Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

"I thought Jim Hart made fine progress at quarterback," the coach commented. "We moved the ball pretty well most of the time, being stopped by some unfortunate penalties and mistakes, but our ball control was good.

"Our pass protection was outstanding. With one of the best defenses in the league to handle, our line kept Jim Hart from being knocked down even once.

"And the defense was excellent. It had a great goal line stand in the fourth quarter, of course, but it also kept Baltimore, which has a high-scoring reputation, from scoring a touchdown.

The Cardinals also pulled the unusual maneuver of giving up a deliberate safety in exchange for field position. With less that five minutes to play and the Cards ahead, 9-3, Baltimore had a first down on the Big Red eight. The Cardinals took the ball away on the one and, after three plays produced only five yards, Joe Randall went back to the end zone to punt.

He dropped to a knee, however, giving the Colts two points and the Cardinals a chance for a free kick from their own 20, gaining 14 yards and a non-rushed kick in exchange for the two points.

The strategy paid off, too, when Larry Wilson tackled pass-catching Jim Detwiler and the ball bounced into the arms of Dave Meggysey, giving the Cardinals possession with only 48 seconds to play.

The always-tough Steelers have dropped both their pre-season games, 31-20 to Green Bay and 20-17 to New Orleans, but will have their fine young quarterback, Bill Nelsen, on display, along with hard-running Earl Gros, acquired from Philadelphia in an off-season trade.

A year ago, the Big Red and the Steelers split their two games, with Pittsburgh gaining a 31-9 verdict and the Cardinals winning, 6-3. The home team won on both occasions.

With only a short time to work for the Saturday encounter, the Big Red probably will go with a similar lineup to the one that faced the Colts. With mandatory cut-down to 49 players coming on Monday, however, it appears that almost everyone will get a chance to see action.

After the Saturday game, the Cardinals will return to Lake Forest for their last week of training camp, climaxing with the annual Soldier Field game against the Bears, Sept. 1. The club will return to St. Louis over the Labor Day weekend to prepare for its final pre-season test, against the Detroit Lions on Sept. 8 for the St. Louis Symphony Society. The regular season opens at home against the New York Giants on Sept. 17.

RESULTS-SCHEDULE-ATTENDANCE

Aug. 12 -- 14-23 vs New Orleans at Shreveport (28,500)

Aug. 21 -- 9-5 vs Baltimore at St. Louis (34,500)

Aug. 26 -- Pittsburgh at Nashville (8:00 p.m. CDT)

Sept. 1 -- Chicago at Soldier Field (8:00 p.m. CDT)

Sept. 8 -- Detroit at St. Louis (8:30 p.m. CDT)

Commissioner To Take Action

NEW YORK (AP)— Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert, promising "appropriate action at a later date," has stepped into the squabble between the Kansas City Athletics and their volatile owner, Charles O. Finley.

Eckert acknowledged Thursday that he had received a request from the Major League Players Association that he hold a hearing on the dispute which has resulted in the firing of Alvin Dark as Athletics' manager and the release of first baseman Ken Harrelson.

Eckert said, "I am gathering appropriate data on the subject and will take further appropriate action at a later date."

The letter was sent by Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association.

The Athletics, in the meantime, returned home to Kansas City Thursday and were met at the airport by about 1,000 fans, many carrying signs criticizing Finley and backing the players.

The confrontation arose last week when Finley suspended pitcher Lew Krausse for a drinking incident on a plane. The players released a statement criticizing Finley and, in the aftermath, Dark was fired and Harrelson was released.

Krausse was later reinstated and Finley's demand that the players retract their statement was refused.

Missourians Speak out for Ethics Rules

WASHINGTON (AP)— Three Missourians were among seven House members who addressed the new House Ethics Committee Wednesday to urge adoption of rules on disclosure of income and assets of congressmen and candidates, campaign spending and use of federal funds.

It was the first of two days of hearings.

All seven urged the committee to recommend that it be given power to monitor the rules.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D.Mo., proposed that congressmen and their wives and minor children as well as candidates and staff members file annual statements of income and holdings. He said the Ethics Committee should keep these secret unless it brings public charges against the member.

Bolling urged that candidates be required to report all primary and election campaign expenditures in their behalf, and that persons spending money without written authorization be subject to criminal penalties.

Bolling would require annual statements of all expenditures of federal funds by officers, members and employes of the House, and a statement showing that each staff member does the job for which he was hired.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., said each member should disclose any business in which he or an employe holds a financial interest or serves as director or adviser and identify any financial interests held by the member or his wife exceeding a certain minimum value, such as $5,000.

Curtis also asked an independent audit of congressional books.

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., asked the committee to draft a broad code covering nepotism, conflict of interest and campaign finance.

Cape Officers Use Chemical Tool to Subdue

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Law enforcement officers in Cape Girardeau began carrying a device which may eventually replace the nightstick.

The new weapon is called "Chemical Mace." It is in six-inch black containers carried in holsters alongside pistols. The aerosol bombs are capable of 50 one-second bursts accurate up to 20 feet.

According to Lt. Col. K. K. Johnson, highway patrol assistant superintendent, "It is ideal for bringing unruly prisoners quickly under control and without injury."

Highway patrolmen throughout the state, including about 60 men in Southeast Missouri's Troop E area, have been equipped with the aerosol bombs.

The chemical is sprayed in a stream toward the victim. When it reaches the skin a vapor forms, reacting with oils and fatty compounds that affect nerve endings in contact with the skin. The immediate reaction is loss of balance and a stunned victim.

It makes the person helpless for 15 to 20 minutes with no ill effects.

Cool, Wet Weather Will Continue into September

PORTAGEVILLE-- The trend for below normal temperatures and above normal rainfall that has provided most of the summer is expected to persist through the middle of September.

Centers of high pressure systems moving southward out of Canada will be following a path across the Northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Great Lakes. Tracks of several expected low pressure disturbances will cross Missouri.

While this combination favors opportunities for showers, amounts of rain will depend upon timing. If one cool spell follows closely upon another, chances are good for light and spotty showers since moisture content of the air will be limited. Should warm, moist southerly winds return to the Bootheel between cool outbreaks more general showers and thunderstorms are expected with potential for heavy downpours. The five-day outlook will provide an excellent key to precipitation probabilities for farmers planning field work through mid-September.

Below normal temperatures will continue to slow development of crops that are already well behind schedule this season. Susceptibility of both cotton and soybeans to bollworms will be prolonged. Spray schedules should be linked to weather trends to avoid wash-off by rains or excess drift by winds. Keep in mind that winds tend to increase with the approach of cold fronts. Northerly winds in the cool air behind the front will generally be too brisk for good contr rig or aerial plication for at least a day or t

Corn harvest is about ready to start in some sections of the Bootheel and the pace will increase during the period through mid-September. Here, again, farmers will want to take maximum advantage of dry periods between rains to avoid delay due to wet soils or high grain moisture. Low relative humidity and brisk winds in the flow following passage of cold fronts will accelerate drying.

Most cotton won't be ready for harvest during this period. Some early-planted cotton that survived the cool, wet spring may start the harvest season off, however. In any event, bottom defoliation is likely to be employed on this crop. Cotton defoliation recommendations published in the University of Missouri Guide series point out that rain within 4 to 6 hours after application of chemicals does not reduce effectiveness. However, leaf drop is slowed when the daily minimum temperature drops below 60 degrees. Defoliation is less complete, too, under cool weather conditions.

ESSA Weather Bureau records based upon data collected at Sikeston from 1931 to 1960 suggest that chances for nighttime temperatures falling below 60 degrees are less than 50% until the 11th of September. However, for Septembers with below normal temperatures, a 50-50 chance occurs about the 7th of the month. Temperatures forecasts can help the farmer make the most effective use of defoliants. The five day outlook can help you to choose the period most likely to meet temperature and rainfall requirements for most efficient defoliation. This will be a difficult problem with late maturing cotton this season. Prospects for adequate rainfall and cool temperatures are encouraging as far as setting soybeans is concerned. Many fields showed deficient moisture in soils during the second week of August. Timing and extent of rains will be of interest to farmers contemplating irrigation during the next few weeks. If plants are showing serious stress, however, don't rely too heavily upon scattered shower situations to solve your problem. Extension Directors usually begin alerting farmers to prepare for pasture and alfalfa seeding about this time of year. With uncertainty about soil moisture conditions and with late harvest likely to cut into normal schedules you might want to take advantage of dry weather to take up slack where possible. Normal rainfall for the period mid-August through mid-September for the Bootheel as a whole is 3.30 inches. Normals for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau, 3.73 inches; Dexter, 3.59 inches; Morehouse, 3.28 inches; Parma, 3.33 inches; Sikeston, 3.36 inches; Caruthersville, 3.04 inches; Doniphan, 3.57 inches; New Madrid, 3.26 inches; and Poplar Bluff, 3.29 inches.

Short term averages for other cities are: Advance, 2.99 inches; Bloomfield, 2.87 inches; Clearwater Dam, 2.92 inches; Kennett, 2.91 inches; Portageville, 2.94 inches; Qulin, 2.34 inches; Bernie, 2.78 inches; Charleston, 2.67 inches; Deering, 2.35 inches; Malden, 2.42 inches:

Cape Doctor Brothers Called

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The stepped-up call to service in the war in Vietnam will take two brother Cape Girardeau doctors, the third and fourth from this immediate area directed into the armed services.

Dr. Raymond A. Ritter Jr. and Dr. Carl F. Ritter have received their orders. The former will arrive Sunday in Munich, Germany, to serve as an army orthopedic surgeon.

Dr. Carl F. Ritter, who has been serving his internship at Parkland Hospital in Dallas, has been ordered to report to Luke Air Force Base near Phoenix, Ariz.

Both are captains and are graduates of the Washington University school of medicine in St. Louis. Their father is a Cape Girardeau physician and surgeon.

The other two doctors called are J. Marshall Jung of Illmo, and Wendall K. Stewart of Cape Girardeau. They have not yet reported for duty.

Dr. Stewart is a neuropsychiatrist and Dr. Jung a general practicioner, the only doctor in Illmo. Both will enter the Navy. Both have established practices.

Boundaries Set For ASC Electrons In New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- W. R. Phillips Jr., chairman of the New Madrid County agricultural stabilization and conservation committee, designated the boundaries of each community within the county where elections of ASC community committees will be held Sept. 19. The elections will be by the meeting method and will begin at 8 p.m.

Boundaries of the communities where elctions will be held are townships of the county -- Anderson, Big Prairie, Como, Hough, LaFont, LeSieur, Lewis, New Madrid, Portage, St. John and West.

The chairman reminded farmers that the elctions will choose three committeemen and two alternates for each community. The chairman, vice chairman, and third regular member of the elected ASC committee will also serve as delegates to the county convention to be held soon thereafter, where farmers will be elected to fill vacancies on the ASC county committee. The alternate committeemen will serve as alternate delegates to the convention.

Farmers eligible to cast ballots in the community election will be all those who are eligible to participate in one or more of the national farm programs which the committeemen help to administer locally. The farmer may be an owner, tenant, or sharecropper. Persons not of legal voting age who are in charge of the farming operations on an entire farm are also eligible to vote in the elections. Eligibility to vote -- or to hold office as a committeeman -- is not restricted by reason of race, color, creed, or national origin.

Paper Mill to Begin Building At Wickliffe, Ky.

WICKLIFFE, Ky. -- Initial phase of construction of the $80 million Westvaco paper and pulp mill is scheduled to begin Monday.

A company spokesman said that equipment was being moved into the site by McDade Construction Co., Fulton, Ky.

Dirt excavation and filling will be the first order of business. The huge paper mill is scheduled for completion in early 1970. More than 1,000 construction workers are expected to be employed at peak of construction.

WHY NOT SAY IT?

Everyone was pleased with the playing of the blind young man who had been engaged for the position of organist at the large church on the corner. His playing thrilled them, for he was a splendid musician. Because he was blind, he could not see his audience; and he could not observe their reaction to his playing.

As the people listened, enchanted, they whispered about the beauty of his harmonies and the uplifting influence of his symphonies.

At first he played as one sure of himself. There was no hesitation in his touch. The great organ pealed forth splendid paeans of praise and cadences of majestic sweetness and power. Triumph sang in every note.

But as the young man played Sunday after Sunday to this great unseen audience, the former triumphant strains of voluntaries and recessionals gradually gave place to more delicate, sorrowful improvisations and plaintive minor fugues.

Then one Sunday it was announced after the service that the young man would be replaced by another musician.

A lady who had thoroughly enjoyed all of his music went to him and said very earnestly, "I am sorry you will not play for us longer. Many times I have had the urge to tell you what inspiration I have received through your playing. I do thank you for it."

Missourians Speak out for Ethics Rules

WASHINGTON (AP)— Three Missourians were among seven House members who addressed the new House Ethics Committee Wednesday to urge adoption of rules on disclosure of income and assets of congressmen and candidates, campaign spending and use of federal funds.

It was the first of two days of hearings.

All seven urged the committee to recommend that it be given power to monitor the rules.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., proposed that congressmen and their wives and minor children as well as candidates and staff members file annual statements of income and holdings. He said the Ethics Committee should keep these secret unless it brings public charges against the member.

Bolling urged that candidates be required to report all primary and election campaign expenditures in their behalf, and that persons spending money without written authorization be subject to criminal penalties.

Bolling would require annual statements of all expenditures of federal funds by officers, members and employes of the House, and a statement showing that each staff member does the job for which he was hired.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., said each member should disclose any business in which he or an employe holds a financial interest or serves as director or adviser and identify any financial interests held by the member or his wife exceeding a certain minimum value, such as $5,000.

Curtis also asked an independent audit of congressional books.

Rep. Durward G. Hall, R-Mo., asked the committee to draft a broad code covering nepotism, conflict of interest and campaign finance.

Cape Officers Use Chemical Tool to Subdue

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Law enforcement officers in Cape Girardeau began carrying a device which may eventually replace the nightstick.

The new weapon is called "Chemical Mace." It is in six-inch black containers carried in holsters alongside pistols. The aerosol bombs are capable of 50 one-second bursts accurate up to 20 feet.

According to Lt. Col. K. K. Johnson, highway patrol assistant superintendent, "It is ideal for bringing unruly prisoners quickly under control and without injury."

Highway patrolmen throughout the state, including about 60 men in Southeast Missouri's Troop E area, have been equipped with the aerosol bombs.

The chemical is sprayed in a stream toward the victim. When it reaches the skin a vapor forms, reacting with oils and fatty compounds that affect nerve endings in contact with the skin. The immediate reaction is loss of balance and a stunned victim.

It makes the person helpless for 15 to 20 minutes with no ill effects.

Cool, Wet Weather Will Continue into September

PORTAGEVILLE-- The trend for below normal temperatures and above normal rainfall that has provided most of the summer is expected to persist through the middle of September.

Centers of high pressure systems moving southward out of Canada will be following a path across the Northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Great Lakes. Tracks of several expected low pressure disturbances will cross Missouri.

While this combination favors opportunities for showers, amounts of rain will depend upon timing. If one cool spell follows closely upon another, chances are good for light and spotty showers since moisture content of the air will be limited. Should warm, moist southerly winds return to the Bootheel between cool outbreaks more general showers and thunderstorms are expected with potential for heavy downpours. The five-day outlook will provide an excellent key to precipitation probabilities for farmers planning field work through mid-September.

Below normal temperatures will continue to slow development of crops that are already well behind schedule this season. Susceptibility of both cotton and soybeans to bollworms will be prolonged. Spray schedules should be linked to weather trends to avoid wash-off by rains or excess drift by winds. Keep in mind that winds tend to increase with the approach of cold fronts. Northerly winds in the cool air behind the front will general' be too brisk for good contr either by ground rig or aerial plication for at least a day or t

Corn harvest is about ready to start in some sections of the Bootheel and the pace will increase during the period through mid-September. Here, again, farmers will want to take maximum advantage of dry periods between rains to avoid delay due to wet soils or high grain moisture. Low relative humidity and brisk winds in the flow following passage of cold fronts will accelerate drying.

Most cotton won't be ready for harvest during this period. Some early-planted cotton that survived the cool, wet spring may start the harvest season off, however. In any event, bottom defoliation is likely to be employed on this crop. Cotton defoliation recommendations published in the University of Missouri Guide series point out that rain within 4 to 6 hours after application of chemicals does not reduce effectiveness. However, leaf drop is slowed when the daily minimum temperature drops below 60 degrees. Defoliation is less complete, too, under cool weather conditions.

ESSA Weather Bureau records based upon data collected at Sikeston from 1931 to 1960 suggest that chances for nighttime temperatures falling below 60 degrees are less than 50% until the 11th of September. However, for Septembers with below normal temperatures, a 50-50 chance occurs about the 7th of the month. Temperatures forecasts can help the farmer make the most effective use of defoliants. The five day outlook can help you to choose the period most likely to meet temperature and rainfall requirements for most efficient defoliation. This will be a difficult problem with late maturing cotton this season. Prospects for adequate rainfall and cool temperatures are encouraging as far as setting soybeans is concerned. Many fields showed deficient moisture in soils during the second week of August. Timing and extent of rains will be of interest to farmers contemplating irrigation during the next few weeks. If plants are showing serious stress, however, don't rely too heavily upon scattered shower situations to solve your problem. Extension Directors usually begin alerting farmers to prepare for pasture and alfalfa seeding about this time of year. With uncertainty about soil moisture conditions and with late harvest likely to cut into normal schedules you might want to take advantage of dry weather to take up slack where possible. Normal rainfall for the period mid-August through mid-September for the Bootheel as a whole is 3.30 inches. Normals for individual cities are: Cape Girardeau, 3.73 inches; Dexter, 3.59 inches; Morehouse, 3.28 inches; Parma, 3.33 inches; Sikeston, 3.36 inches; Caruthersville, 3.04 inches; Doniphan, 3.57 inches; New Madrid, 3.26 inches; and Poplar Bluff, 3.29 inches.

Short term averages for other cities are; Advance, 2.99 inches; Bloomfield, 2.87 inches; Clearwater Dam, 2.92 inches; Kennett, 2.91 inches; Portageville, 2.94 inches; Qulin, 2.34 inches; Bernie, 2.78 inches; Charleston, 2.67 inches; Deering, 2.35 inches; Malden, 2.42 inches.

Cape Doctor Brothers Called

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The stepped-up call to service in the war in Vietnam will take two brother Cape Girardeau doctors, the third and fourth from this immediate area directed into the armed services.

Dr. Raymond A. Ritter Jr. and Dr. Carl F. Ritter have received their orders. The former will arrive Sunday in Munich, Germany, to serve as an army orthopedic surgeon.

Dr. Carl F. Ritter, who has been serving his internship at Parkland Hospital in Dallas, has been ordered to report to Luke Air Force Base near Phoenix, Ariz.

Both are captains and are graduates of the Washington University school of medicine in St. Louis. Their father is a Cape Girardeau physician and surgeon.

The other two doctors called are J. Marshall Jung of Illmo, and Wendall K. Stewart of Cape Girardeau. They have not yet reported for duty.

Dr. Stewart is a neuropsychiatrist and Dr. Jung a general practicioner, the only doctor in Illmo. Both will enter the Navy. Both have established practices.

Boundaries Set For ASC Electrons In New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- W. R. Phillips Jr., chairman of the New Madrid County agricultural stabilization and conservation committee, designated the boundaries of each community within the county where elections of ASC community committees will be held Sept. 19. The elections will be by the meeting method and will begin at 8 p.m.

Boundaries of the communities where elctions will be held are townships of the county -- Anderson, Big Prairie, Como, Hough, LaFont, LeSieur, Lewis, New Madrid, Portage, St. John and West.

The chairman reminded farmers that the elctions will choose three committeemen and two alternates for each community. The chairman, vice chairman, and third regular member of the elected ASC committee will also serve as delegates to the county convention to be held soon thereafter, where farmers will be elected to fill vacancies on the ASC county committee. The alternate committeemen will serve as alternate delegates to the convention.

Farmers eligible to cast ballots in the community election will be all those who are eligible to participate in one or more of the national farm programs which the committeemen help to administer locally. The farmer may be an owner, tenant, or sharecropper. Persons not of legal voting age who are in charge of the farming operations on an entire farm are also eligible to vote in the elections. Eligibility to vote -- or to hold office as a committeeman -- is not restricted by reason of race, color, creed, or national origin.

Major activities administered under the supervision of ASC committees in New Madrid County include Agricultural Conservation Program, Feed Grains (acreage diversion), Wheat Certificate Program, Upland Cotton (acreage diversion), and Price-Support Loans and Purchases.

DuQuoin State Fair Will Open Saturday

DU QUOIN, Ill. — If early activity is any indication, the 45th annual Du Quoin State Fair, which opens Saturday and runs through Labor Day, is certain to be "bigger and better" than ever before, just as its originator, W. R. Hayes, predicted many years ago.

With his 31-year-old grandson, W. R. (Bill) Hayes II, now heading the operation, the exposition has retained all of the popular features of former fairs, has added a few new attractions and may be experimenting this year with even more in order to make next year's product greater yet.

Principal feature is the world-famed Hambletonian, the Kentucky Derby of harness racing, which involves the finest three-year-old trotters in the tradition-rich classic. A comparatively large field of 15 or more may be entered in the $125,000-plus race scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 30.

While the Hambletonian highlights five days of Grand Circuit harness racing at Du Quoin, several other important — and rich — events are set for the second and fourth days of the Monday-through-Friday schedule.

United States Auto Club-sponsored championship auto races are key daytime attractions for the Labor Day weekend with twin 50-mile midget races set for Saturday, a 100-mile late-model stock car feature Sunday, and a 100-mile championship car event Labor Day.

Providing entertainment on the Fair's various night stage shows will be such stars as Louis Armstrong, Eddy Arnold, the Modernaires, Hines, Hines and Dad, the Tokyo Happy Coats, Johnny Cash, Little Jimmy Dickens and many others.

Grand Ole Opry stars lead off Saturday night when Cash and his troupe are featured along with Conway Twitty and Little Jimmy Dickens. The Sunday night show includes Billy Grammer, former Benton resident, LeRoy Van Dyke, Porter Wagoner and the Wagon Masters and Stonewall Jackson among its cast.

Supplementing the grandstand shows are livestock, farm and home contests with more than $65,000 in prize money available exhibits ranging from the practical telephone and farm implement variety to a swimming pool, concessions stands of all types, and the gigantic Olson Shows' midway which has been a beehive since Tuesday.

Teen A Go Go, a popular teenage spot, also is set for another 10-night stand starting Saturday and will be in operation Sunday afternoon (Aug. 27) as well when 10 combos will compete in a battle of the bands.

"We're ready and feel we have assembled the makings of one of the finest expositions ever staged here," said Fair President Bill Hayes. "Response from the public has been good also and now we're just hoping for favorable weather."

And, admission at the main gate and parking is free throughout the operation.

Election Observers Take Heat off LBJ

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has bowed to pressure but found a way to take some of the load off his own shoulders after listening to 24 days of new criticism about the way things are going in South Vietnam.

Johnson, with an instinct for the middle road, Wednesday night named a 20-man delegation of prominent citizens to go to Vietnam and observe the election. They will not be supervisors. They will not make a formal report.

But they apparently will be free to say what they think individually when they return here after the election Sept. 3. Since they probably won't all agree, the chances of a continued dispute here look pretty good.

The new load of criticism began to hit Johnson July 31. There had been increasing growling about Johnson's handling of the war, particularly by Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

On July 31 he introduced a resolution — the Senate hasn't acted on it yet and perhaps never will — that would greatly reduce a President's power in foreign affairs.

It would require joint approval by Congress and the President to seal any national commitment abroad. This already is required if the President wants to make a treaty. But a President can do a lot of things abroad without a treaty.

So the Fulbright idea would tie a President's hands far more than ever before.

Then on Aug. 10, 21 House Republicans called on its Foreign Affairs Committee to modify the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, which both houses approved in 1964. It pretty much gives the President a blank check on how he wants to stop Communist aggression in Vietnam.

On that same day 57 House Democrats called on Johnson to warn the ruling military regime in South Vietnam that unless it allows a fair presidential election there this country may do some rethinking about helping South Vietnam.

This followed reports from Saigon that Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, running for vice president on the same ticket with Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, now head of state and running for president, had said the military junta was already making plans to retain power after the election no matter who won.

And that same day, Aug. 10, the other 10 presidential candidates opposing Thieu announced they would refuse to campaign unless assured by Thieu and Ky there would be an end to "harassment."

This was enough for some of the Senators growing ever more unhappy about the war. So on Aug. 11 a bunch of them — led by New York's two Senators, Robert F. Kennedy, Democrat, and Jacob K. Javits, Republican — began calling the upcoming elections a fraud, a farce, and a charade.

But that same day, the Thieu-Ky government invited Congress to send observers to Vietnam to insure the elections were free and open to scrutiny by all.

The Senate didn't want any part of that and rejected the invitation. Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he saw no reason why Congress should involve itself. And Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said just about the same thing.

Five days later, Aug. 16, Johnson tried to soothe the senatorial fears by saying he already had told Thieu and Ky it was vital to keep the elections on the up and up and he said they promised to support the election outcome.

But that didn't soothe Javits who the next day proposed, although the Senate wasn't willing to send anyone to Vietnam to see how things really were, that the elections be postponed a month to give the civilian candidates a "real chance." But this suggestion was ignored on all sides.

Johnson held a news conference Aug. 18 and, in effect, suggested "patience, please" and then challenged Congress to repeal the Gulf of Tonkin resolution if it didn't like what he was doing.

Ky, taking extraordinary action, sent Congress itself a letter Tuesday pledging he and Thieu would abide by the election outcome, no matter who won.

And late Wednesday Johnson announced he was sending the delegation of citizens, including some senators, to Vietnam as observers. Now if the elections turn out sour, nobody can say Johnson was hiding anything.

This ought to silence his critics for a while but, as nobody knows better than Johnson, probably not for long.

Ruling Exempts Police Reports

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP)— A ruling by the St. Louis County Counselor's Office that police reports must be considered privileged information may affect news reporting and lawyers.

The Counselor's office ruled that the reports are work products instead of public documents. County Police Superintendent Raymond W. Hensley requested the opinion several months ago.

The author of the opinion, John F. Nangle, a special assistant county counselor, said a 1964 Missouri Supreme Court decision exempted police reports from the requirements of a statute enacted by the legislature in 1961.

The law provides that: "except as otherwise provided by law, all state, county and municipal records kept pursuant to statute or ordinance shall at all reasonable times be open for personal inspection by any citizen of Missouri, and those in charge of the records cannot refuse the privilege to any citizen."

Hensley said Wednesday he would probably set guidelines for the press and the general public regarding inspection of police reports.

CREDIT AND INTEREST RATES

Homer J. Livingston
Chairman of the Board
The First National Bank of Chicago

The demand for credit, like the money markets and the over-all economy, will continue to be greatly influenced by the U. S. military effort in Vietnam. Defense related expenditures have increased almost $25 billion in the past two years, a rise of nearly 50 per cent. Most of this enormous increase in the federal buying of goods and services occurred at a time when the economic resources of the nation -- labor, plant, and equipment -- were virtually fully employed. The impact of this development is familiar to all. As many anticipated, certain imbalances resulted, including an excessive rate of inventory accumulation and a substantial rise in capital spending, both of which have been undergoing some correction in the past one half year or so. In similar fashion, credit demands soared, and interest rates, which reached a peak last August-September, traced a generally downward trend until recently with the exception of yields on long-term obligations.

These adjustments in the private sector of the economy, although they have been largely obscured by the persistent rise in government expenditures, have been aided by the reversal in credit policy which the monetary authorities on November 22 described as "a modest but overt step toward ease." As a consequence of the resulting increase in the reserves made available to the banking system, bank loans and investments since then have expanded at an estimated seasonally adjusted annual rate of about 14 per cent.

The yield on long-term obligations was the notable exception to the declining pattern of rates. This reflects in large measure the continued record volume of new corporate bond issues as managements have sought to rebuild liquidty which had declined for almost six years. The recent growth in corporate time deposits and the strong demand for U. S. Treasury bills, as evidenced by the relatively low yields, indicate that corporate liquidity is being rebuilt.

Consumer credit demands may increase. Also, the continued rise in federal government outlays, together with the persistent growth in expenditures by state and local governments, points to a substantial demand for funds from the public sector. As the present structure of long-term rates is considerably above the statutory 4 1/4 per cent interest ceiling on federal government bonds, the increase in federal debt will have to be financed by short- and intermediate-term obligations.

This aggregate demand for funds is likely to tax the supply available despite the blow of corporate cash, substantial additions to personal savings, and some further expansion in bank credit. As a consequence, short-term interest rates are likely to be under growing upward pressure in the next six months. The present strong and sizable demand for long-term money makes unlikely any significant easing in long-term rates during this period.

SBA Will Open Portageville Office

KENNETT - The Small Business Administration is establishing a temporary office at Portageville, and assigning a loan officer from the St. Louis regional office to explain and receive applications for the emergency assistance program available through the SBA to small businesses suffering economic distress as a result of damages to farm crops in the Missouri Delta area.

The office at the City Hall will open Monday and operate through Wednesday. Office hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the three-day period. Future operations will depend upon the needs and interest expressed by small businesses in the seven county area of Butler, Dunklin, Scott, Mississippi, Pemiscot, New Madrid and Stoddard counties.

Arrangements for the temporary SBA office to serve the Delta Area were made by the Portageville office of the Missouri Farmers Association. MFA requested that the office be set up to eliminate inconveniences and misunderstandings being experienced by people going into the St. Louis office of SBA.

All counties in the Missouri Delta Area have been designated as being in an emergency area by the United States Department of Agriculture. This emergency designation makes cotton ginners and other agriculturally orientated businesses that have sustained substantial economic injury as a result of damages to crops in the area eligible for emergency (disaster) loans from SBA.

The basic requirements for an emergency SBA loan are to be in an area designated as an emergency area, and to be able to show a reasonable probability of repayment. A loan will not be declined simply for lack of collateral. Moreover, SBA will give consideration to the character of the applicant and to evidence showing a reasonable prospect that the loan will be repaid. The maximum maturity is 20 years. The interest rate on SBA's share of a loan made jointly with a bank, or on a direct SBA loan, is 3 per cent. A loan cannot be made just to substitute for an existing loan.

Persons in the Missouri Delta Area interested in the program in any way are urged to meet with the SBA loan officer at Portageville.

IF THE FOUR-DAY work week becomes a reality, people will find out how little they knew about the week-end guest menance!

DuQuoin State Fair Will Open Saturday

DU QUOIN, Ill. — If early activity is any indication, the 45th annual Du Quoin State Fair, which opens Saturday and runs through Labor Day, is certain to be "bigger and better" than ever before, just as its originator, W. R. Hayes, predicted many years ago.

With his 31-year-old grandson, W. R. (Bill) Hayes II, now heading the operation, the exposition has retained all of the popular features of former fairs, has added a few new attractions and may be experimenting this year with even more in order to make next year's product greater yet.

Principal feature is the world-famed Hambletonian, the Kentucky Derby of harness racing, which involves the finest three-year-old trotters in the tradition-rich classic. A comparatively large field of 15 or more may be entered in the $125,000-plus race scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 30.

Contrary to popular belief, the horseless carriage's arch rival—

the horse—led the way for America's roads. At Bellefontaine, Ohio, 1892, city officials substituted 10 ft. strips of concrete at hitching rails to replace macadam that was torn up by pawing horses. This very first strip of concrete paving lasted until 1950. Yet it wasn't until 1909 that the first concrete mile was built. Early road building equipment including chisel plows, scrapers, fresnos, wagons, graders and steam rollers are among the 30,000 historical items that are on display at the Harold Warp Pioneer Village in south central Nebraska.

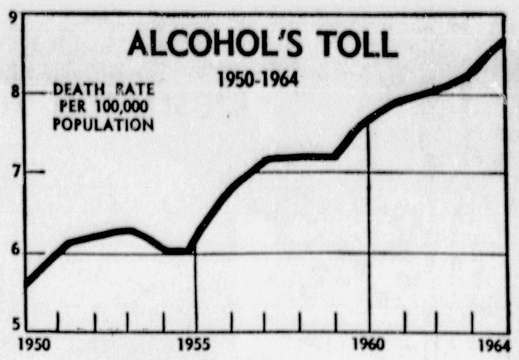
Contrary to popular belief, the horseless carriage's arch rival—

the horse—led the way for America's roads. At Bellefontaine, Ohio, 1892, city officials substituted 10 ft. strips of concrete at hitching rails to replace macadam that was torn up by pawing horses. This very first strip of concrete paving lasted until 1950. Yet it wasn't until 1909 that the first concrete mile was built. Early road building equipment including chisel plows, scrapers, fresnos, wagons, graders and steam rollers are among the 30,000 historical items that are on display at the Harold Warp Pioneer Village in south central Nebraska.

SEA-LEVEL CANAL is the key proposal in the package agreement with Panama announced by President Johnson. Site was not disclosed. A survey of possible routes being conducted by the Pacific Interoceanic Canal Study Association is expected to be completed by 1970. Interest most recently has centered on three possible Panamanian routes. Canals through Colombia and Nicaragua also have been considered.



Alcoholism, long considered a social and moral problem, is increasingly a health problem. The death rate from alcoholic disorders, shown for all persons 20 and older in the United States, has risen steadily in recent years.

INDIAN CHIEF whose profile millions of Americans carried in their pockets for a half-century is dead at the age of 102. Chief John Big Tree of the Seneca Indian Tribe died on the Onandaga, N.Y. reservation. In 1913, artist John Frazer used the chief as the model for the well known Indian head, or buffalo, nickel, which was minted until 1938. The chief is shown at left in a 1963 photo.

Religious Pageant Stage Set

This country's biggest religious festival may be seen annually on a grassy hill at Palmyra, N.Y. A cast of 450 members of the Mormon church from across the nation tells the story of the sect in an outdoor amphitheater, beginning at dusk from July 24-29.

THE PAGEANT depicts the rise and fall of an ancient American civilization and the resurrection of Christ on this continent, according to the "Book of Mormon." Scenes include human sacrifice by an ancient people before their conversion to Christianity, as shown above.

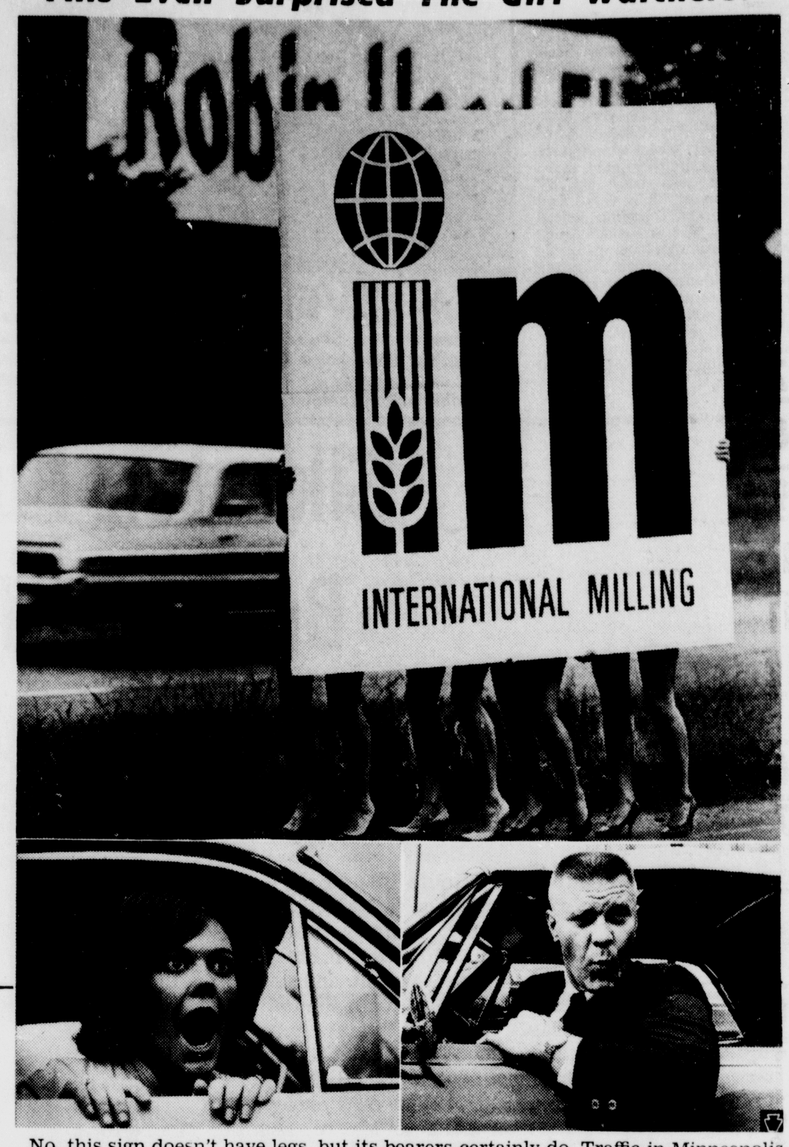
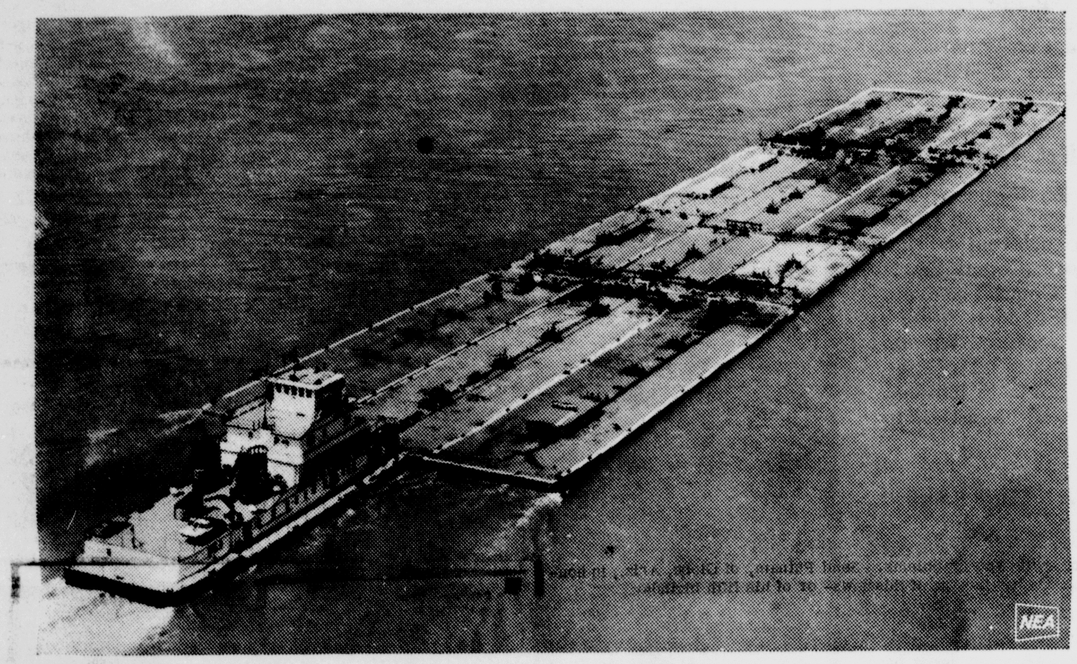
This Even Surprised The Girl Watchers!

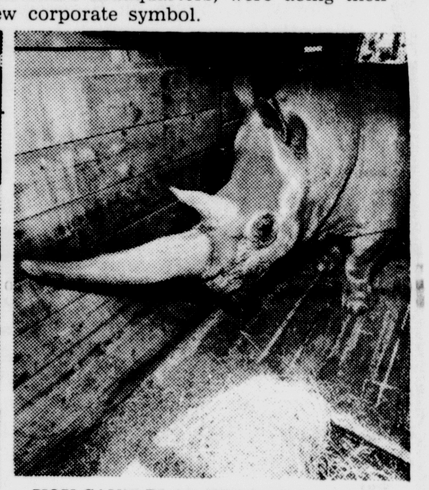


No, this sign doesn't have legs, but its bearers certainly do. Traffic in Minneapolis was disrupted recently when startled drivers saw this huge 7-foot square sign being carried by four mini-skirted office girls to the International Milling grain elevator. The girls, secretaries at International's headquarters, were doing their part to help promote their company's new corporate symbol.



ONE OF THE LARGEST liquid cargoes in river history is shown being pushed up the Mississippi River on a trip from Natchez, Miss., to Louisville, Ky., recently, hauling 277,413 barrels of crude oil for Ashland Oil & Refining Company. Decks of the 12 jumbo barges lashed together total the size of three football fields. The tug pushing it may look small, but it generates 5,000 h.p.

ROMEO AND JULIET take on a youthful look with Olivia Hussey, 15, and Leonard Whiting, 16, playing the star-crossed lovers in a forthcoming film. If it's authenticity director Franco Zerfirelli was seeking in casting the two, he's still a year late on Miss Hussey. Shakespeare's play, in describing Juliet, says ". . . she hath not seen the change of 14 years."



YOU CAN'T PLAY WITH GUS, someone had to tell two-year-old Karina Williams at the Port of Miami, Fla., after she peeked at the 3½-ton rhino in his shipping crate and wanted to climb in and play. Gus is en route to his new home, Lion Country Safari, a $3.3 million wild game preserve opening in Royal Palm Beach, Fla., in July. Over 150 wild animals will roam freely over the 640-acre simulated veldt.

Old Hands, New Purpose

Skills acquired over a lifetime, often wasted among the old, have been awakened to a new purpose in a Jewish rest home at Atlanta, Ga. Women residents spend Friday of each week baking "chollah," a braided bread eaten by Jewish families at dinner on the Sabbath.

Mrs. Rose Seligman greases pan of dough.

Success of the weekly baking is evident in the enthusiasm with which it is done. The sense of dependency and futility which so many rest home residents feel is eased by the feeling of usefulness among the ladies, who prepare the bread for their families outside. The bakers include Mrs. Kate Weinberg, 102, who bakes for her "boy," who is in his 80's. Some do the work at the table while sitting in wheel chairs. "Come Friday they're ready and anxious," says George Landsman, director of program and development. "It's like being at home again, baking on Fridays," chortles one of the ladies, while another says nothing, just sings and smiles as she braids the dough.

JAMBOREE of the Boy Scouts of America, to be held Aug. 1-9 at Farragut State Park in Idaho, will be the subject of a postal card issued Aug. 4. Estimates of attendance at the 12th annual Jamboree, first to be held in the United States, range from 14,000 to 20,000. The design of the six-cent air mail card is based on the Jamboree patch which shows the fleur-de-lis emblem of Scouting and Borah Peak, highest point in Idaho.

1966 Annual Report

ENVIRONMENTAL SANITATION

Environmental sanitation is sometimes called community house-keeping. You, as an individual, can protect your family's health by proper cleaning, good plumbing, refrigeration of your food, etc. while on your property; but once you step outside your door, you alone, can do very little to keep health hazards from attacking.

Our complex society prevents us, as individuals, to independently insure the safety of our water supply, milk supply, food, lodging, or any other of a number of public health related items. As individuals, we neither have the time or money to independently pursue such activities. Yet, if our society is to exist, the quality of our foods, water, and other health services must be insured to preserve our own survival.

Since we can not do this as individuals, we have learned that we can do it as a group -- a community -- and we accomplish it by using tax pennies to establish a health department. For all practical purposes, we hire trained individuals to do this job for us.

These hired experts have found that such controls can be achieved through an instrument known as regulations. In the development of regulations, government must apply indicated scientific findings toward the solution of practical problems. In evaluating the scientific approach to the problem, scientists are thorough, and, therefore, provide ideal answers toward the solution of a specific problem.

Yet government, much as it would like to endorse all the ideal measures, must seek practical methods to problems, in order to permit society to live in reasonable comfort and reasonable security, and still attain reasonable compliance.

This transition of the scientific ideal to reasonable accomplishment becomes known as a regulation. For all practical purposes, regulations then become standards acceptable by society. Regulations, then, are nothing more than a bridge between science and government.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

You will glorify God by your obedience in acknowledging the gospel of Christ, and by the generosity of your contribution. (II Corinthians 9:13, RSV)

PRAYER: Lord God, who hast given us so much of Thy love and grace, who hast bestowed abundantly Thy gifts to meet our needs, teach us to be cheerful and generous givers of self and substance. In the spirit of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Salvation Army Finds Following In Hippieland

NEW YORK (AP) — Offering free coffee and sympathetic understanding, the Salvation Army has invaded the stronghold of the hippie and the teeny-bopper from a Greenwich Village cafe called The Answer.

"They think the army's a real groove and a beautiful thing," says Ed Herzberg, a 23-year-old soldier to the hippies who helps run the storefront cafe on Macdougal Street near Bleecker Street.

Since it opened three weeks ago, The Answer has become a popular gathering place for young people— generally between 14 and 22— and its narrow interior fills quickly each night.

An oversize brooding portrait of Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, looks down from one wall and flower generation graffiti are painted on the opposite side.

For entertainment there is a hi-fi set and sometimes singers use the tiny stage at the back of the room. There are chess sets, books, and always a friendly soldier to listen.

"We make no bones about the fact that we're Christians. Christ is the answer," Capt. Brian J. F. Gueroa, 24, who runs The Answer. But, he added, "it's a subtle ministry. There's no hard sell."

Viewpoints Clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hugh Carey said during a House debate on birth control and foreign aid that he doesn't oppose family planning— it was impossible, he said, to have his 14 children "without the most exquisite planning."

Every time a baby is born in India, the New York Democrat added, it is evidence of God's hope for the human race.

"I hope this doesn't mean," said Rep. Charles S. Joelson, D-N.J., "that each time a baby is killed in Vietnam this shows God's despair for mankind."

Ann Landers

When Parents Fail, Teachers Are Called

Dear Ann Landers: When does "minding one's own business" cease to be a virtue and begin to be an act of cowardice?

This morning I heard a youngster crying in front of my house. I looked out to see a little neighbor child surrounded by four jeering children. The boy was wearing a diaper over his trousers and had a cardboard sign around his neck which read, "I am seven years old and I still wet my bed."

I was furious and went outside and began to remove the sign and the diaper. My husband stopped me and said, "It is none of your business."

I know the child's mother. She is a divorcee and as nutty as a fruitcake. Her oldest boy plays centerfield with his thumb in his mouth. A middle child, a girl, has a nervous eye tick and stutters. Now this little fellow is being tortured because he wets the bed.

Should I try to help these kids by talking to them? Or should I plead with the deranged mother to get some help for herself and her children? -- NO NAME PLEASE

Dear N. N. P.: Pleading with deranged people is useless. Your best bet is to have a talk with the teachers in whose classes these unfortunate children will be next fall. Surely they will recognize evidence of a tragic home life. Your information and interest should encourage the teachers to investigate and see that appropriate steps are taken to save these kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter wants to go steady. I see nothing wrong with it since the boy is a very nice lad and comes from a good family.

My husband is against it. He says it is ridiculous to allow a 13-year-old girl to accept a boy's friendship ring and go only with him. I understand from friends that going steady does not mean what it did in our day. They claim it is the "in" thing and that most kids outgrow it.

We have been having some fairly heated discussion on this subject since my husband and I are divided. The line-up is not two against two. Our 17-year-old son sides with his father. What do you say? -- PARK RIDGE

Dear Park: I just tipped the balance. It's 3 to 2, and I'm with your husband and your son. Not only am I against 13-year-olds going steady, I am against 13-year-olds going. Period.

What's your big hurry to get this little chick grown up? I don't know what your friends mean when they say going steady doesn't mean what it did in our day. The basic idea is the same -- "everybody else, hands off." This is a poor approach even for 16- and 17-year-olds. If you came to me for support, Madame, you rattled the wrong cage.

Confidential to Hate The Stuff: Leave it alone, Stupid. Of course he wants to drink with him. What does he have to lose? He's already a drunk. Furthermore, booze is one of the best known devices to break down a girl's resistance.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, answers some of the most frequently asked questions about weddings. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35¢ in coin.

If You Were the Judge

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

Ball Club Owner Not Responsible for Fights

During a crucial baseball game, Dugan ducked as a pitch orbited past his head. The next pitch was equally threatening.

"If he hits me," Dugan warned the umpire, "he'd better kill me. 'Cause if he doesn't, I'm gonna kill him!"

When the next offering sent Dugan sprawling into the dirt, he grabbed his bat and flung it at the apologizing pitcher-- and the melee was on. When it was over, Dugan sued the owner of the opposing ball club for a broken nose, compliments of the opposing catcher.

"Since his catcher clobbered me," Dugan told the judge, "he should be held responsible."

"Nothing doing," was the owner's answer. "I hired him to be a baseball player and not a pugilist. If he gets into a fight, it's his problem and not mine."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the ball club owner pay?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that an employer is responsible for the acts of his employees only while they are acting within the scope of their employment; that fighting is not part of a baseball player's job.

(Based upon a 1958 Tennessee Court of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

A husband is responsible for his wife's necessaries, which include food, shelter, clothing and other items such as radios, false teeth and even perhaps caviar if the husband happens to be wealthy.

Care for Cuban Exiles Costly

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — U.S. taxpayers are paying more than $1 million each week to help a seemingly endless stream of Cuban refugees start life anew in this country.

Total expenditures in the program have climbed to hundreds of millions of dollars, officials say.

A Cuban Refugee Center spokesman called it "one of the finest investments in humanitarianism." He said the migration is the most extended in U.S. history.

The number of Cuban exiles who have reached the United States since Fidel Castro's takeover in 1959 is estimated at nearly 400,000. About half live in Miami, the rest are scattered throughout the United States.

Some 80,000 Cubans have arrived by daily airlift established Dec. 1, 1965. Two planeloads of refugees come each weekday. Each flight costs U.S. taxpayers $850.

And thousands of Cubans have sneaked out of their country by boat and headed across "death corridor," as exiles call the waters between the Communist island and Florida. The Coast Guard reported it has rescued 13,450 refugees in these straits. The number rescued ranged from nine in 1959 to 5,730 in 1965.

This year's appropriations for the refugee center, operated by the Health, Education and Welfare Department, total $51 million. This compares with $1 million daily the Soviet Union reportedly spends to maintain the regime from which the refugees flee. Since its establishment in 1961, refugee center expenditures are estimated at $300 million. In addition, the refugee situation has meant expenditure of other millions by the Coast Guard, Immigration Service, customs, law-enforcement bodies and other agencies. Maintenance of a State Department Cuban affairs office here costs $60,000 annually.

Viewpoints Clash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hugh Carey said during a House debate on birth control and foreign aid that he doesn't oppose family planning—it was impossible, he said, to have his 14 children "without the most exquisite planning."

Every time a baby is born in India, the New York Democrat added, it is evidence of God's hope for the human race.

"I hope this doesn't mean," said Rep. Charles S. Joelson, D-N.J., "that each time a baby is killed in Vietnam this shows God's despair for mankind."

When Parents Fail, Teachers Are Called

Dear Ann Landers: When does "minding one's own business" cease to be a virtue and begin to be an act of cowardice?

This morning I heard a youngster crying in front of my house. I looked out to see a little neighbor child surrounded by four jeering children. The boy was wearing a diaper over his trousers and had a cardboard sign around his neck which read, "I am seven years old and I still wet my bed."

I was furious and went outside and began to remove the sign and the diaper. My husband stopped me and said, "It is none of your business."

I know the child's mother. She is a divorcee and as nutty as a fruitcake. Her oldest boy plays centerfield with his thumb in his mouth. A middle child, a girl, has a nervous eye tick and stutters. Now this little fellow is being tortured because he wets the bed.

Should I try to help these kids by talking to them? Or should I plead with the deranged mother to get some help for herself and her children? -- NO NAME PLEASE

Dear N. N. P.: Pleading with deranged people is useless. Your best bet is to have a talk with the teachers in whose classes these unfortunate children will be next fall. Surely they will recognize evidence of a tragic home life. Your information and interest should encourage the teachers to investigate and see that appropriate steps are taken to save these kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter wants to go steady. I see nothing wrong with it since the boy is a very nice lad and comes from a good family.

My husband is against it. He says it is ridiculous to allow a 13-year-old girl to accept a boy's friendship ring and go only with him. I understand from friends that going steady does not mean what it did in our day. They claim it is the "in" thing and that most kids outgrow it.

We have been having some fairly heated discussion on this subject since my husband and I are divided. The line-up is not two against two. Our 17-year-old son sides with his father. What do you say? -- PARK RIDGE

Dear Park: I just tipped the balance. It's 3 to 2, and I'm with your husband and your son. Not only am I against 13-year-olds going steady, I am against 13-year-olds going. Period.

What's your big hurry to get this little chick grown up? I don't know what your friends mean when they say going steady doesn't mean what it did in our day. The basic idea is the same -- "everybody else, hands off." This is a poor approach even for 16- and 17-year-olds. If you came to me for support, Madame, you rattled the wrong cage.

Confidential to Hate The Stuff: Leave it alone, Stupid. Of course he wants to drink with him. What does he have to lose? He's already a drunk. Furthermore, booze is one of the best known devices to break down a girl's resistance.

If You Were the Judge

By Jack Strauss, LL.B

Ball Club Owner Not Responsible for Fights

During a crucial baseball game, Dugan ducked as a pitch orbited past his head. The next pitch was equally threatening.

"If he hits me," Dugan warned the umpire, "he'd better kill me. 'Cause if he doesn't, I'm gonna kill him!"

When the next offering sent Dugan sprawling into the dirt, he grabbed his bat and flung it at the apologizing pitcher--and the melee was on. When it was over, Dugan sued the owner of the opposing ball club for a broken nose, compliments of the opposing catcher.

"Since his catcher clobbered me," Dugan told the judge, "he should be held responsible."

"Nothing doing," was the owner's answer. "I hired him to be a baseball player and not a pugilist. If he gets into a fight, it's his problem and not mine."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the ball club owner pay?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that an employer is responsible for the acts of his employees only while they are acting within the scope of their employment; that fighting is not part of a baseball player's job.

(Based upon a 1958 Tennessee Court of Appeals Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

A husband is responsible for his wife's necessaries, which include food, shelter, clothing and other items such as radios, false teeth and even perhaps caviar if the husband happens to be wealthy.

Care for Cuban Exiles Costly

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — U.S. taxpayers are paying more than $1 million each week to help a seemingly endless stream of Cuban refugees start life anew in this country.

Total expenditures in the program have climbed to hundreds of millions of dollars, officials say.

A Cuban Refugee Center spokesman called it "one of the finest investments in humanitarianism." He said the migration is the most extended in U.S. history.

The number of Cuban exiles who have reached the United States since Fidel Castro's takeover in 1959 is estimated at nearly 400,000. About half live in Miami, the rest are scattered throughout the United States.

Some 80,000 Cubans have arrived by daily airlift established Dec. 1, 1965. Two planeloads of refugees come each weekday. Each flight costs U.S. taxpayers $850.

And thousands of Cubans have sneaked out of their country by boat and headed across "death corridor," as exiles call the waters between the Communist island and Florida. The Coast Guard reported it has rescued 13,450 refugees in these straits. The number rescued ranged from nine in 1959 to 5,730 in 1965.

This year's appropriations for the refugee center, operated by the Health, Education and Welfare Department, total $51 million. This compares with $1 million daily the Soviet Union reportedly spends to maintain the regime from which the refugees flee. Since its establishment in 1961, refugee center expenditures are estimated at $300 million. In addition, the refugee situation has meant expenditure of other millions by the Coast Guard, Immigration Service, customs, law-enforcement bodies and other agencies. Maintenance of a State Department Cuban affairs office here costs $60,000 annually.

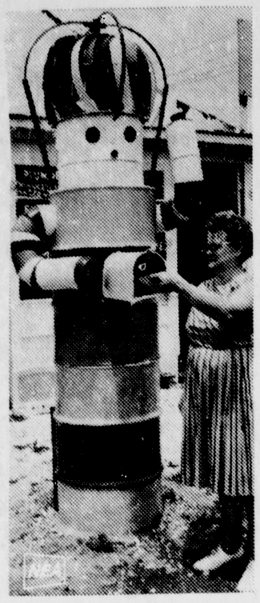
URBAN PLANNING is the subject of the design on a five-cent stamp to be issued in Washington, D. C., Oct. 2, during a meeting of urban experts concerned with all phases of city life in the year 2017. The vertical stamp depicts a bird's-eye view of a planned city. The city area is white, black and light blue, and surrounding area is dark blue.



THE IRON HAND of "Mr. Robot" holds the mail every day for Mrs. E. H. Setter of St. Petersburg, Fla. The barrel-bodied body with the stove-pipe arms and the ventilator head is also colorfully painted.

TEN COMMANDMENTS for buying a house

1. Know your broker's reputation.
2. Inspect the basement, attic, foundation, grounds, garage --not just the house.
3. Beware of any place that's offered "at a loss."
4. Compare with others at similar price.
5. Check condition of roof, pipes, heating plant
6. Check neighborhood, shopping, churches, transit.
7. If anyone tries to rush you. . . go slower.
8. Check the "upkeep" costs: taxes, utilities, etc.
9. Consider the advantages of a trade.
10. Buy your house at Nowell Real Estate.
(That will take care of the first 9 Commandments!

TEN COMMANDMENTS for buying a house

1. Know your broker's reputation.
2. Inspect the basement, attic, foundation, grounds, garage --not just the house.
3. Beware of any place that's offered "at a loss."
4. Compare with others at similar price.
5. Check condition of roof, pipes, heating plant
6. Check neighborhood, shopping, churches, transit.
7. If anyone tries to rush you. . . go slower.
8. Check the "upkeep" costs: taxes, utilities, etc.
9. Consider the advantages of a trade.
10. Buy your house at Nowell Real Estate.
(That will take care of the first 9 Commandments!

Industrial Giant Henry Kaiser Dies

HONOLULU (AP)— Henry J. Kaiser— founder of a billion-dollar industrial empire spread over 40 countries— died in his sleep Thursday. He was 85.

Kaiser was at his oceanfront estate about 10 miles from Honolulu when he was stricken by a circulatory and heart condition.

At his side were his wife Alyce, whom he married after the death of his first wife in 1951; his son Edgar and Edgar's wife.

Kaiser was born May 9, 1882, at Sprout Brook, N.Y., one of four children of German immigrants. He started his career as a $1.50-a-week clerk in a Utica, N.Y., dry goods store after leaving school at 13 to help support his family.

Kaiser never longed for the "good old days." While celebrating his last birthday, the founder of the $2.7-billion complex said, "Yesterday is past . . . I always want to live this day to the fullest and to plunge into tomorrow's job."

There was almost nothing Kaiser did not have a hand in: giant dams such as Hoover, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Shasta; famed Liberty ships of World War II; the familiar Jeep; the Kaiser health centers; cement; aluminum; steel; chemicals; aircraft and missile components and electronic equipment; radio and television stations; hotels; and the latest, a new community of Hawaii-Kai in Honolulu with projected population of 60,000.

Pink Kaiser cement trucks carry a slogan, "Find a need and fill it."

This Kaiser did— in Kaiser pink. He chose a coral-purple color as a Hawaiian trademark, putting it on speedboats, catamarans, outrigger canoes, jeeps and even his clothing.

"Pink makes you feel good," he said.

About the only venture in which Kaiser didn't achieve the success he sought was in making cars. For 10 years, 750,000 Kaisers, Kaiser-Frazers and Henry Js rolled off the assembly lines. But competition was too stiff. Kaiser withdrew to concentrate on the Jeep— utility vehicles of all times.

Henry Kaiser's success began in Lake Placid, N.Y., where he worked for nothing in a photographic shop on condition that if he doubled business he would get a half interest. The business tripled, he became a partner at 22, bought it out a year later and added three stores in Florida and Nassau.

But the West held dreams of which his life was to be made.

He moved to Spokane, Wash., in 1906 and went to work at a hardware firm for $7 a week. In 1912 he began managing road-paving contracts.

In 1914, at the age of 32, Henry J. Kaiser Co. Ltd., was formed at Vancouver, B.C., and the first job was two miles of road paving in the Canadian city.

Kaiser made his entry into California by jumping off a train which slowed down at Redding to drop off the mail. He won a bid for a 30-mile road between Red Bluff and Redding and in 1921 set up headquarters in one room in Oakland.

Headquarters is still in Oakland— but in the 28-story Kaiser Center.

A 200-mile, 500-bridge highway project in Cuba in 1927 pointed the way for bigger things. The young contractor visualized the joint venture concept which evolved into partnerships and associations of contractors for giant projects.

One such combine called Six Companies, Inc., with Henry Kaiser as executive committee chairman, built Hoover Dam on a bid of $48,890,000 and finished it in four years, two years ahead of schedule.

Shasta Dam marked the beginning of Kaiser's industrial activity. His group lost the $36 million construction contract by $263,000. Although he had no plant, he submitted a bid on cement at 29 cents a barrel under that of a cement combine. He won the $7.7 million contract, built a cement plant at Permanente, Calif., and launched Kaiser Cement and Gypsum Corp.

At the peak, Kaiser and his associates operated 58 shipways at seven yards.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

The current National Educational Television network (NET) 60-minute show of H.L. Hunt resulted from several hours of shooting during a six-day period about December 1, 1965. Charles M. Conner, 7575 Bellaire Boulevard, Houston, Tex., had scripted and was co-directing the show with James Bauer of Houston University. The discussions shown between Hunt and office personnel were daily routine, not staged nor rehearsed in any way. The same was true of footage made at the Hunt home, except raising the Flag and placing the car in which Hunt began driving downtown.

Hunt would enlarge on answers he made 21 months ago, but has no desire to withdraw any statements. James Fleming replaced able and constructive Conner as interviewer. Specialists Littell and Baker, who were not present when the show was made and could not be questioned, freely gave their opinion of Hunt.

Constructively,
H.L. Hunt

Viet Candidate Says Enough Troops on Hand

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese civilian candidate declared today that enough U.S. troops are fighting the war and no more should be sent. He said better use should be made of South Vietnamese troops.

The statement was made at a news conference called by Dr. Phan Khac Suu, speaker of South Vietnam's Constituent Assembly and one of the few presidential candidates with a widespread following, and his running mate, Dr. Phan Quang Dan.

The news conference was called specifically for the foreign press. English-speaking Dan fielded the questions, with Suu nodding agreement at his side.

"There are enough troops here, but we must make better use of them, particularly the South Vietnamese troops," Dan said.

"Too many American and allied troops have overpowered the South Vietnamese army. They are tempted to just sit on the sidewalk and watch you fight the war."

There are some 457,000 American troops in South Vietnam and the number is expected to reach half a million within a few months.

Noting that there are about a million South Vietnamese and allied soldiers in the country, Dan said: "There is no need to escalate the shooting war. Let's escalate everything else, the social war, and let the Vietnamese assume the main burden as they must."

Dan also warned of an "atmosphere of suspicion" that the military candidates— Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu for president and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for vice president— would rig the elections.

Dan said, however, that so far the election campaign has been the freest ever held in South Vietnam.

Saigon officials have announced that more than 600 persons from 41 nations will be on hand to observe the election Sept. 3 in which the voters will choose a Senate as well as a president and vice iresident.

There are 528 foreign news correspondents accredited to South Vietnam, and 80 others plan to be on hand for the balloting.

President Johnson is sending 20 prominent Americans here next week as observers and 48 are coming from other countries.

South Vietnam's militant Buddhists are planning demonstrations against Thieu and Ky if they win as they are expected to do, Vietnamese intelligence sources reported Thursday.

Consultant to Study Juvenile Facilities

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)- Raymond L. Manella, consultant in the division of juvenile delinquency with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will begin an inspection and study of juvenile custodial facilities in Missouri the first week in September and report his findings to the governor's citizens committee on crime and delinquency.

The study will begin with the facilities operated by the state at Boonville and Chillicothe and will also include other juvenile facilities operated by counties and municipalities.

The appointment was announced Thursday by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, chairman of the governor's committee.

Manella has experience in Juvenile work in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland in addition to serving the federal government as a consultant in the field.

Council Gets Dexter Audit

DEXTER -- Two representatives of the auditing firm of Day-Spitzmiller and Sisk were present at the Monday night session of the city council to present its audit of the city's records to the aldermen and Mayor Willis Conner.

A brief rundown of the various sections of the audit was made and the auditing committee, composed of Lehman Godwin, Joe Weber and Sherman Boone was asked to meet with the firm concerning next year's audit and possible changes in form.

The fee for the audit, $985, was allotted for payment.

Mrs. Frances Strickland, president of the park board, appeared before the council with a bill for $31,634, for work on the swimming pool, which was granted by the board and payment authorized.

A house in Hickory Hills that has been foreclosed by FHA, had a water bill for 12 months that was "over two years old and needs to be removed from the books", according to Mayor Willis Conner. The bill was abated by the council.

A plumbing license was granted to Clinton Wooldridge during the session.

Blacktopping on Poplar Street between Stoddard and Vine was approved by the council and passed by ordinance.

A new policeman, Lonnie Mason, was approved by the board. Mason is formerly from Frisco, Mayor Conner reported.

Two bids were opened for the printing of water books for the city for two years with the low bid of $410.50 being submitted by Quality Printing Company which was accepted by the council.

Unmowed lots in the city were called to the board's attention, with the City attorney, Paul McGhee, directed to write letters to the property owners requesting that they be mowed.

Tax bills for further street work were approved by ordinance and payment of $13,264.45 to Delta Aspalt for paving was approved.

Fourth To Get Color TV

BERLIN (AP) — Color television came today to West Germany— the fourth country in the world to have it, the first in continental Europe.

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt pressed a button at the opening ceremony of the 25th Great German Radio Exhibition and, presto, there was color.

On hundreds of television sets in the many exhibition displays and hundreds of others in store windows around West Berlin and West Germany, Brandt's face went from video gray to suntanned flesh color.

A wave of pink-custumed ballerinas then twirled across the screens in a Strauss waltz.

The color quality was excellent and the separation sharp, a tribute to the West German colour system, which has borrowed and learned from the American system.

West Germany thus joined the United States, Japan and Great Britain in the color television club. Other West European countries soon are to follow.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

The current National Educational Television network (NET) 60-minute show of H. L. Hunt resulted from several hours of shooting during a six-day period about December 1, 1965. Charles M. Conner, 7575 Bellaire Boulevard, Houston, Tex., had scripted and was co-directing the show with James Bauer of Houston University. The discussions shown between Hunt and office personnel were daily routine, not staged nor rehearsed in any way. The same was true of footage made at the Hunt home, except raising the Flag and placing the car in which Hunt began driving downtown.

Hunt would enlarge on answers he made 21 months ago, but has no desire to withdraw any statements. James Fleming replaced able and constructive Conner as interviewer. Specialists Littell and Baker, who were not present when the show was made and could not be questioned, freely gave their opinion of Hunt.

Constructively,
H. L. Hunt

Viet Candidate Says Enough Troops on Hand

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese civilian candidate declared today that enough U.S. troops are fighting the war and no more should be sent. He said better use should be made of South Vietnamese troops.

The statement was made at a news conference called by Dr. Phan Khac Suu, speaker of South Vietnam's Constituent Assembly and one of the few presidential candidates with a widespread following, and his running mate, Dr. Phan Quang Dan.

The news conference was called specifically for the foreign press. English-speaking Dan fielded the questions, with Suu nodding agreement at his side.

"There are enough troops here, but we must make better use of them, particularly the South Vietnamese troops," Dan said.

"Too many American and allied troops have overpowered the South Vietnamese army. They are tempted to just sit on the sidewalk and watch you fight the war."

There are some 457,000 American troops in South Vietnam and the number is expected to reach half a million within a few months.

Noting that there are about a million South Vietnamese and allied soldiers in the country, Dan said: "There is no need to escalate the shooting war. Let's escalate everything else, the social war, and let the Vietnamese assume the main burden as they must."

Dan also warned of an "atmosphere of suspicion" that the military candidates— Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu for president and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for vice president— would rig the elections.

Dan said, however, that so far the election campaign has been the freest ever held in South Vietnam.

Saigon officials have announced that more than 600 persons from 41 nations will be on hand to observe the election Sept. 3 in which the voters will choose a Senate as well as a president and vice iresident.

There are 528 foreign news correspondents accredited to South Vietnam, and 80 others plan to be on hand for the balloting.

President Johnson is sending 20 prominent Americans here next week as observers and 48 are coming from other countries.

South Vietnam's militant Buddhists are planning demonstrations against Thieu and Ky if they win as they are expected to do, Vietnamese intelligence sources reported Thursday.

Consultant to Study Juvenile Facilities

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)- Raymond L. Manella, consultant in the division of juvenile delinquency with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will begin an inspection and study of juvenile custodial facilities in Missouri the first week in September and report his findings to the governor's citizens committee on crime and delinquency.

The study will begin with the facilities operated by the state at Boonville and Chillicothe and will also include other juvenile facilities operated by counties and municipalities.

The appointment was announced Thursday by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, chairman of the governor's committee.

Manella has experience in Juvenile work in Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland in addition to serving the federal government as a consultant in the field.

Council Gets Dexter Audit

DEXTER -- Two representatives of the auditing firm of Day-Spitzmiller and Sisk were present at the Monday night session of the city council to present its audit of the city's records to the aldermen and Mayor Willis Conner.

A brief rundown of the various sections of the audit was made and the auditing committee, composed of Lehman Godwin, Joe Weber and Sherman Boone was asked to meet with the firm concerning next year's audit and possible changes in form.

The fee for the audit, $985, was allotted for payment.

Mrs. Frances Strickland, president of the park board, appeared before the council with a bill for $31,634, for work on the swimming pool, which was granted by the board and payment authorized.

A house in Hickory Hills that has been foreclosed by FHA, had a water bill for 12 months that was "over two years old and needs to be removed from the books", according to Mayor Willis Conner. The bill was abated by the council.

A plumbing license was granted to Clinton Wooldridge during the session.

Blacktopping on Poplar Street between Stoddard and Vine was approved by the council and passed by ordinance.

A new policeman, Lonnie Mason, was approved by the board. Mason is formerly from Frisco, Mayor Conner reported.

Two bids were opened for the printing of water books for the city for two years with the low bid of $410.50 being submitted by Quality Printing Company which was accepted by the council.

Unmowed lots in the city were called to the board's attention, with the City attorney, Paul McGhee, directed to write letters to the property owners requesting that they be mowed.

Tax bills for further street work were approved by ordinance and payment of $13,264.45 to Delta Aspalt for paving was approved.

Fourth To Get Color TV

BERLIN (AP) — Color television came today to West Germany— the fourth country in the world to have it, the first in continental Europe.

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt pressed a button at the opening ceremony of the 25th Great German Radio Exhibition and, presto, there was color.

On hundreds of television sets in the many exhibition displays and hundreds of others in store windows around West Berlin and West Germany, Brandt's face went from video gray to suntanned flesh color.

A wave of pink-custumed ballerinas then twirled across the screens in a Strauss waltz.

The color quality was excellent and the separation sharp, a tribute to the West German colour system, which has borrowed and learned from the American system.

West Germany thus joined the United States, Japan and Great Britain in the color television club. Other West European countries soon are to follow.

DON'T YOU READ BEFORE YOU BUY?

Because, no matter what the purchase, don't you want to get the facts? What does it cost? Where's it made? What's the best brand? How much will I need? How long will it last? And whom should I see? Like yourself, most of your customers look to print advertising for answers, when they're really ready to buy. They look to newspapers and magazines, to booklets and brochures. Because print advertising lets people read and re-read, study and clip, save and show, linger and compare—as much and as many times as they wish. That's the beauty of print. When people look for your product in print, will it be there? Your competitor's will. Print makes sense, because print makes sales.

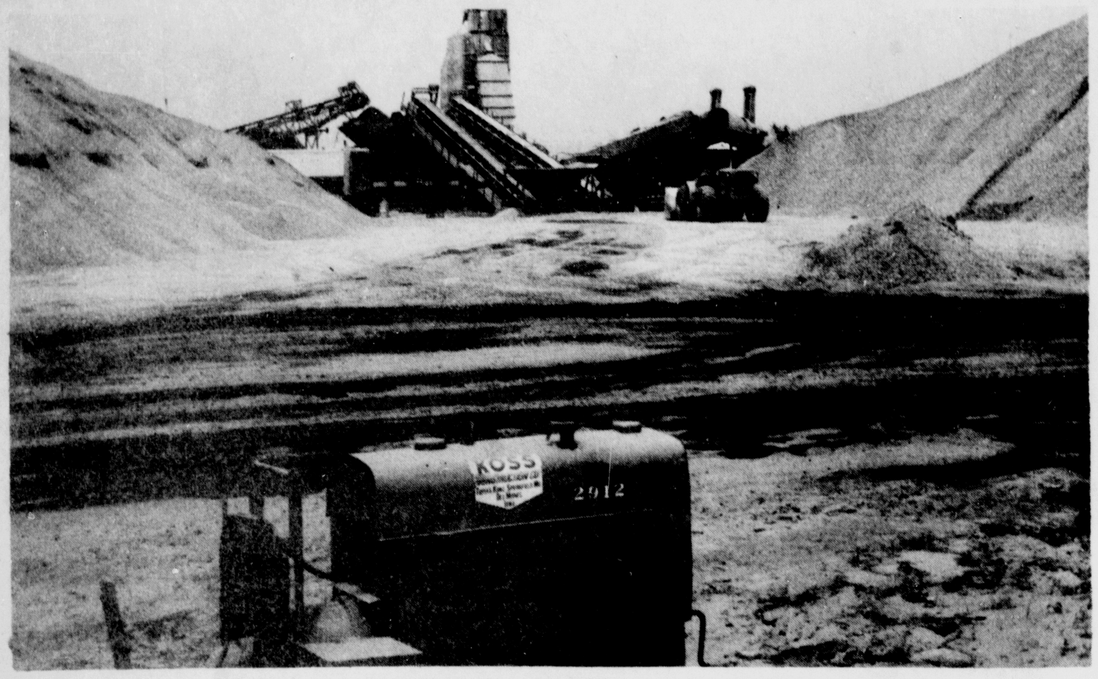
Giant Mixing Bowl Gushes Concrete for I-55



A chat pile surrounded by a mobile concrete mixing base unit near Marston. The materials are used in paving Interstate 55.

By Leo Schade

MARSTON --- Every highway paving job must have a base operation to make, move and spread concrete.

The success of the highway paving job on Interstate 55, by the Koss Construction Company, Springfield, from New Madrid south near Steele, depends on such a base.

Trucks operate from it both north and south.

The operation involves thousands of pounds of equipment, which can be dismantled and moved to another point after pavement has been laid in an area of 10 or more miles.

North of Marston two-lane pavement is being laid south to a point below Conran on the south-bound lane.

When this is completed, the north lane will be paved to the connecting link north of Marston near the rest stop projects.

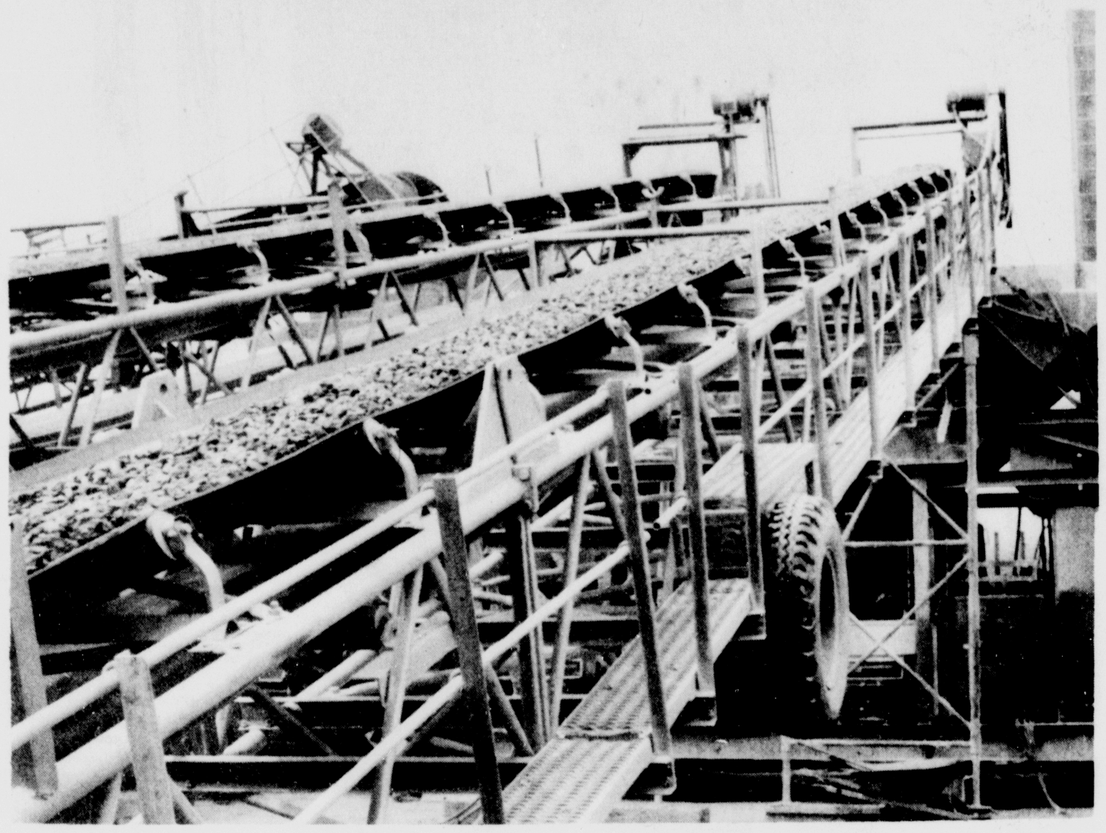
A highway crew laying pavement at the rest stops should be completed this week.

Inspector of a huge paving unit is Jerry Young, New Madrid, Clarence Graves, Springfield, is in charge of loading mixers and sending trucks to paving sites. Each carrying five yards of concrete.

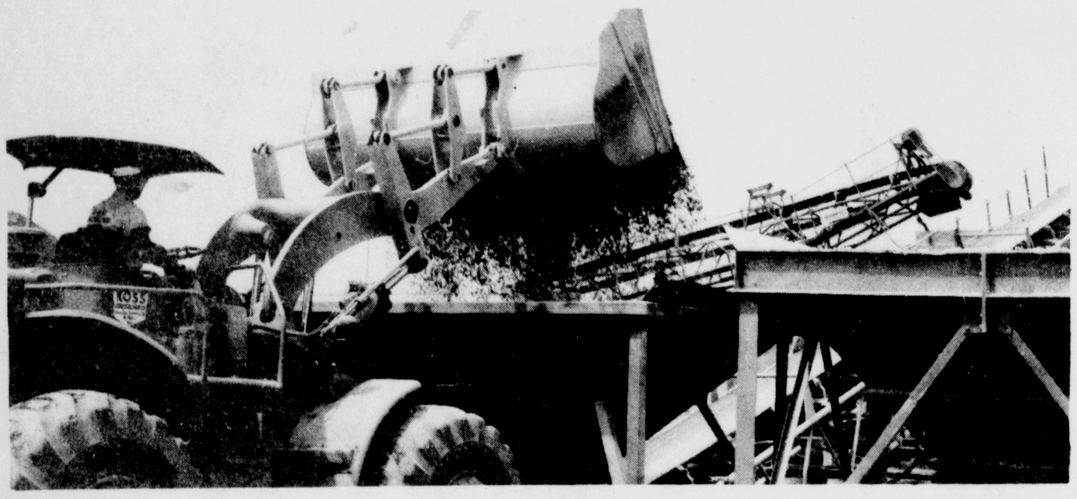
In one day the base plant can put out enough concrete to lay from two to three thousand feet of 20-foot pavement.

The concrete making stockpile soon will disappear. When all paving is completed in this area the mobile unit will be dismantled and taken to the intersection of route K and highway 162, one-fourth mile east of Portageville. From that base it will complete the paving contract three miles south of Portageville.

The present operation may be finished in two weeks if weather permits.



. CONVEYOR BELT sends a stream of gravel to mixing bins. Two conveyors are used for gravel. A third carries sand and cement into the bins all for paving Interstate 55.



Gravel pours endlessly from a huge pile into a hopper to be sent on a conveyor belt to a bin. It becomes part of Interstate 55.

Red Chinese Who Praise Mao Today May Curse Him Tomorrow

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States has a big stake in the outcome of Red China's upheaval, experts agree. When it comes to choosing sides, the specialists are frustrated. There seems nothing to do but wait, watch and wonder.

A poll of men who have spent much of their lives studying China produces a chilling mystery despite a large measure of agreement on some points. China, the specialists say, has not yet felt the full, painful impact of its titanic inner struggle and probably will not for another year or two. The danger will become more acute when the hangover sets in. Much will depend upon who has the upper hand.

The upheaval has virtually destroyed the Chinese Communist party structure as it existed some years ago. It has jolted the government structure, severely damaged the educational system, badly hurt industrial and agricultural production prospects, damaged China's foreign trade and foreign exchange position, and interfered with the progress of science probably in all fields except nuclear weapon technology. A year of incessant turmoil also has radically changed the pattern of global politics. China has increasingly isolated herself within a ring of apprehension.

These views were brought out in discussions with scholars at the 27th Congress of Orientalists at the University of Michigan this month. They agree in general that it is dangerous to predict about China. There may never be a clear line between victor and vanquished in the great proletarian cultural revolution. Indeed, it is difficult for students to speak in clearly defined terms of one side or the other winning the struggle.

On the surface, it would seem to be a gigantic struggle between two distinct factions: one headed by Defense Minister Lin Piao with the support and blessing of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the other headed by President Liu Shao-chi, backed by sivnificant elements in the party and government bureaucracies.

That is the surface. Underneath it seems much more: a struggle to determine China's future for years to come. It is a struggle for a whole generation whence must come leaders to fashion that future.

Prospects for the United States could be unpleasant either way.

Those in China fighting the excesses of the cultural revolution are regarded as moderates who might simmer China down and turn her toward construction. But scholars agree China probably would still call herself Communist. At the same time it could mean a sort of reconciliation with Moscow, however fragile. That would give communism the opportunity once more to claim a united world front, which Americans hardly would welcome.

On the other hand, dangers inherent in a clear-cut Mao-Lin victory also would be unpleasant, perhaps even more so. The Maoists seem intent upon a future of constant revolution, "people's war" and forcible expansion of their ideology. The pressures could lead to dismemberment of China—perhaps a breakaway by non-Chinese northern areas.

A standoff, too, would present some peril. One possibility which arouses worry among the specialists is that a regime struggling to retain its power might seek diversions. This could mean pressure on neighbors or even inventing an attack on China by a "foreign devil" from the direction of Southeast Asia as a means of unifying the country. Many seem to think, however, that China, despite its fledgling nuclear arsenal, would be careful about challenging the might of the United States.

The specialists displayed shock and amazement at the extent to which the Red Chinese demonstrated what could be done with the human mind among a people noted for individuality and intelligence. The chanting by rote and the fanatical excesses in the name of "Chairman Mao's thinking" are done by people under 30 brought up under total domination by an authoritarian regime and isolated from the outside world. The specialists wonder how long the fever pitch can last. Perhaps some of those adoring Mao today may curse their idol tomorrow.

Middle East Will Never Be Same Again

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — You can't visit Israel after her great military triumph without feeling that the Middle East will never be the same again.

The impression comes not alone from the devastating blow this nation of 2½ million struck against the Arab enemies, but also from the vital, determined society evolving in this 19-year-old country.

A new generation born on Israeli soil is coming forward to take the place of tired immigrants. These are the Sabras, named after the fruit of the cactus, apparently to denote a tough, prickly exterior and a warm, soft heart. They are eager and confident and this is the only home they know.

Gen. Moshe Dayan, defense minister, and Labor Minister Yigal Allon are the only Sabras in the present Israeli Cabinet. Both look like possibilities for the post of premier.

The top army officers and many of the soldiers are Sabras. They are prominent in Israel's advanced scientific community, in industry, the trade union movement, the theater and the arts.

More than 40 per cent of Israel's population was born in the country.

This is a different kind of Jew, robust, toughened on the Israeli kibbutzim and trained to defend his homeland with modern weapons. When the fighting is over he returns to his desk, his farm or his machine to build Israel.

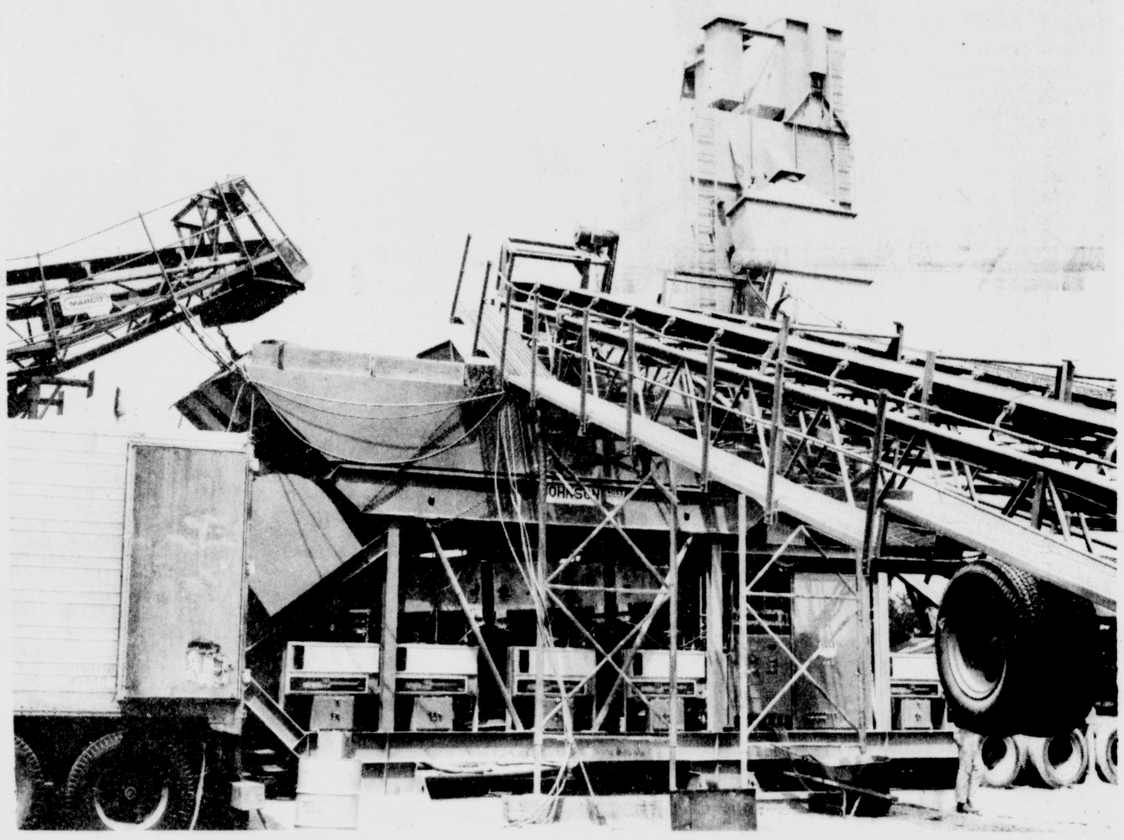
Although they refuse at present even to consider peace with Israel, the Arab countries, by the magnitude of their defeat and the strategic advantages they have surrendered, must eventually negotiate or fight again.

The Israelis view their victory as an opportunity to achieve some measure of the security they have lacked on their frontiers with four Arab states.

There is no intention here to keep Israeli troops permanently entrenched in the sandbanks along the Suez Canal. But there is also no intention to return to the prewar situation in which Israel was excluded from use of the canal, in violation of international agreements, according to the Israeli view.

In its conquest of Jerusalem, Israel is adamant. The city has been unified, Israel has promised that the holy places will be protected and respected under the supervision of the churches involved, and there is no intention to restore the barbed wire and bunkers which once separated Arab and Jew.

Israelis express no doubt that they can live at peace with the 70,000 Arabs in the city despite a one-day strike by merchants recently and the distribution of pamphlets urging noncooperation with Israeli authorities. The city already is operating as a unit, they say, and the army and police are prepared to keep it that way.



Gravel, sand and cement are fed into separate bins, weighed and placed in hoppers and made ready for mixing into concrete for Interstate 55.

Two Teenagers Cast in Romeo, Juliet R oles

ROME (AP) — Romeo recently turned 17 and speaks cockney. Juliet is 15 and addicted to mini-skirts and the Beatles. Both are somewhat frightened about the future.

Shakespearian directors have long been intrigued with casting the star-crossed lovers as the teen-agers they were supposed to have been. They had been dissuaded by the fact that such youthful performers would doubtless lack the skill to polish the lustre of the language.

Now comes Franco Zeffirelli, the audacious Florentine to whom nothing seems impossible—the man who directed the Burtons in "Taming of the Shrew."

He abandoned the modern tradition of playing "Romeo and Juliet" with adult and sometimes middle-aged leads. He returned to the original conception—and as it was done in the musicalized version in "West Side Story"—of two teen-agers caught in an adult world of hate and strife. The new Romeo and Juliet were enjoying a few days' rest while the Montagues and Capulets battled under the Roman sun at Cinecitta studios.

I found Romeo, Leonard Whiting of London, at a luxurious villa where several of the British actors are staying near the studio. He was wearing a full-length Arab robe, a gift from Zeffirelli.

Whiting is a slender 5 feet 8, with a straight, thin nose and limp-lidded blue eyes. His dark-brown hair is a bit shorter than hippie-length.

"I did 'The Tempest' and one of the tragedies when I was in school," he said, "but otherwise I didn't have much contact with Shakespeare. I think kids get Shakespeare too early and they feel it is being shoved down their throats. I didn't like Shakespeare much before, but I'm beginning to like it now. I find it's not outdated. It's life."

Whiting started acting at 12 as the Artful Dodger in the London run of "Oliver!" He later played Jimmy the Dip in Disney's "The Legend of Young Dick Turpin." He was appearing in Laurence Olivier's "Love for Love" for the National Theater when he heard of auditions for "Romeo and Juliet."

What happens next?

"I guess I'll go back to my same life in London," he said. "I live with my parents (father is a store manager, mother a factory worker) and I'll continue to. I don't know what I can do after playing Romeo. I'm too young for most parts."

Juliet — English-Argentine Olivia Hussey — was staying at a stylish new Rome hotel after returning from costume fittings in Florence. She has a tiny, sad face and dark-brown hair that streams to her waist.

She is even more experienced than her co-star, having appeared for two years in the London play, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" (starring Vanessa Redgrave) and in two films, including "The Battle of the Villa Florita" with Maureen O'Hara and Rossano Brazzi.

"Oh, we had some Shakespeare in school — 'Macbeth,' 'Much Ado about Nothing' — but I always missed the classes," she said. Olivia too is getting accustomed to the poetic dialogue. She is also trying to adjust to all the attention she has been accorded. One of her recent experiences was being photographed by Lord Snowden.

Veterans' Benefits Greater Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill greatly increasing a long list of benefits for veterans, including those who have served in Vietnam, has been sent President Johnson by the Senate.

The bill's final provisions, said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., its floor manager, go far beyond the administration's budget requests. But he said he is confident the President will sign it.

— Pension increases for two million veterans and their widows amounting to 5.4 per cent for most recipients, with hikes up to 8.5 per cent to widows in the lowest income categories.

— Vietnam veterans would receive the same levels of benefits as veterans of other conflicts.

— Educational allowances for veterans qualifying under the "Cold War" G. I. Bill would be raised and several categories of training would be added.

Because of a delay in bringing up the bill, the soonest it could go into effect is Oct. 1. Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he believes the delay was caused by the administration's desire to save some $25 million, about the cost of one month's benefits.

Under the bill veterans can complete their high school education at the full benefit rate. It also would bring on-the-job, on-the-farm and flight training under the law for the first time.

After Tallulah Bankhead saw the movie based on Tennessee Williams' Orpheus Descending, she told Williams, "Darling, how awful for you. They've absolutely ruined your perfectly dreadful play."

More than 40 per cent of Israel's population was born in the country.

This is a different kind of Jew, robust, toughened on the Israeli kibbutzim and trained to defend his homeland with modern weapons. When the fighting is over he returns to his desk, his farm or his machine to build Israel.

Although they refuse at present even to consider peace with Israel, the Arab countries, by the magnitude of their defeat and the strategic advantages they have surrendered, must eventually negotiate or fight again.

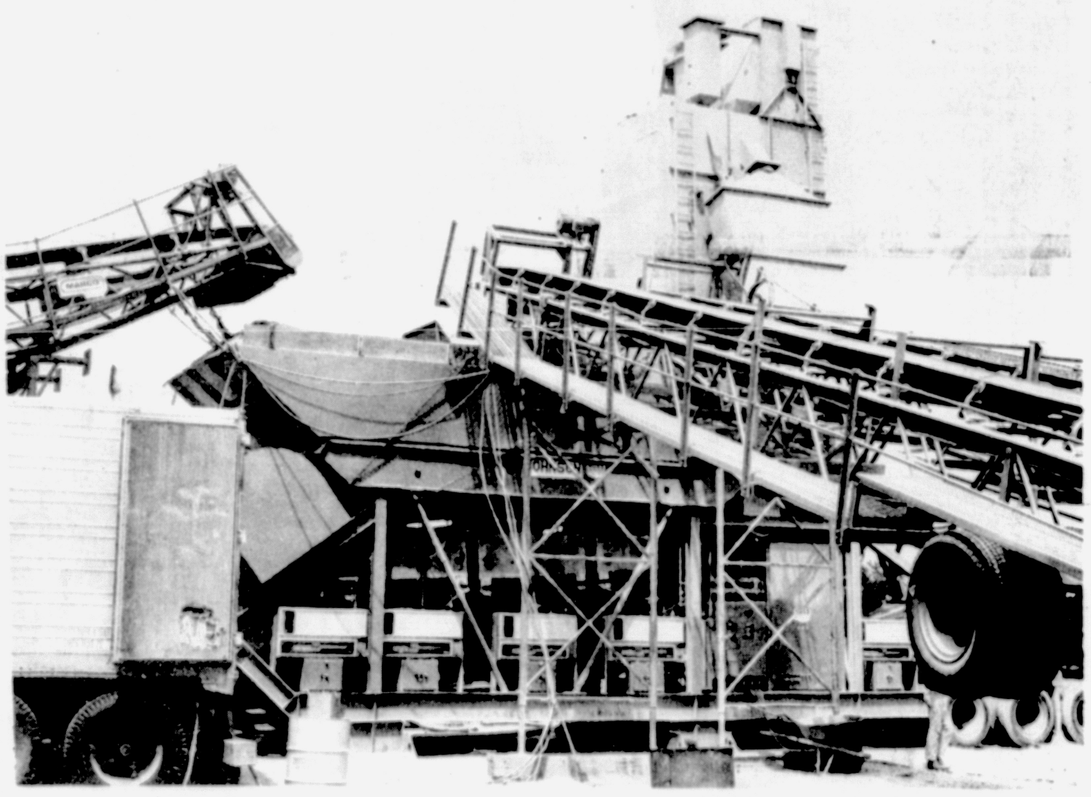
The Israelis view their victory as an opportunity to achieve some measure of the security they have lacked on their frontiers with four Arab states.

There is no intention here to keep Israeli troops permanently entrenched in the sandbanks along the Suez Canal. But there is also no intention to return to the prewar situation in which Israel was excluded from use of the canal, in violation of international agreements, according to the Israeli view.

In its conquest of Jerusalem, Israel is adamant. The city has been unified, Israel has promised that the holy places will be protected and respected under the supervision of the churches involved, and there is no intention to restore the barbed wire and bunkers which once separated Arab and Jew.

Israelis express no doubt that they can live at peace with the 70,000 Arabs in the city despite a one-day strike by merchants recently and the distribution of pamphlets urging noncooperation with Israeli authorities. The city already is operating as a unit, they say, and the army and police are prepared to keep it that way.

After Tallulah Bankhead saw the movie based on Tennessee Williams' Orpheus Descending, she told Williams, "Darling, how awful for you. They've absolutely ruined your perfectly dreadful play."



Gravel, sand and cement are fed into separate bins, weighed and placed in hoppers and made ready for mixing into concrete for Interstate 55.

Red Chinese Who Praise Mao Today May Curse Him Tomorrow

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States has a big stake in the outcome of Red China's upheaval, experts agree. When it comes to choosing sides, the specialists are frustrated. There seems nothing to do but wait, watch and wonder.

A poll of men who have spent much of their lives studying China produces a chilling mystery despite a large measure of agreement on some points. China, the specialists say, has not yet felt the full, painful impact of its titanic inner struggle and probably will not for another year or two. The danger will become more acute when the hangover sets in. Much will depend upon who has the upper hand.

The upheaval has virtually destroyed the Chinese Communist party structure as it existed some years ago. It has jolted the government structure, severely damaged the educational system, badly hurt industrial and agricultural production prospects, damaged China's foreign trade and foreign exchange position, and interfered with the progress of science probably in all fields except nuclear weapon technology. A year of incessant turmoil also has radically changed the pattern of global politics. China has increasingly isolated herself within a ring of apprehension.

These views were brought out in discussions with scholars at the 27th Congress of Orientalists at the University of Michigan this month. They agree in general that it is dangerous to predict about China. There may never be a clear line between victor and vanquished in the great proletarian cultural revolution. Indeed, it is difficult for students to speak in clearly defined terms of one side or the other winning the struggle.

On the surface, it would seem to be a gigantic struggle between two distinct factions: one headed by Defense Minister Lin Piao with the support and blessing of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, the other headed by President Liu Shao-chi, backed by sivnificant elements in the party and government bureaucracies.

That is the surface. Underneath it seems much more: a struggle to determine China's future for years to come. It is a struggle for a whole generation whence must come leaders to fashion that future.

Prospects for the United States could be unpleasant either way.

Those in China fighting the excesses of the cultural revolution are regarded as moderates who might simmer China down and turn her toward construction. But scholars agree China probably would still call herself Communist. At the same time it could mean a sort of reconciliation with Moscow, however fragile. That would give communism the opportunity once more to claim a united world front, which Americans hardly would welcome.

On the other hand, dangers inherent in a clear-cut Mao-Lin victory also would be unpleasant, perhaps even more so. The Maoists seem intent upon a future of constant revolution, "people's war" and forcible expansion of their ideology. The pressures could lead to dismemberment of China—perhaps a breakaway by non-Chinese northern areas.

A standoff, too, would present some peril. One possibility which arouses worry among the specialists is that a regime struggling to retain its power might seek diversions. This could mean pressure on neighbors or even inventing an attack on China by a "foreign devil" from the direction of Southeast Asia as a means of unifying the country. Many seem to think, however, that China, despite its fledgling nuclear arsenal, would be careful about challenging the might of the United States.

The specialists displayed shock and amazement at the extent to which the Red Chinese demonstrated what could be done with the human mind among a people noted for individuality and intelligence. The chanting by rote and the fanatical excesses in the name of "Chairman Mao's thinking" are done by people under 30 brought up under total domination by an authoritarian regime and isolated from the outside world. The specialists wonder how long the fever pitch can last. Perhaps some of those adoring Mao today may curse their idol tomorrow.

Two Teenagers Cast in Romeo, Juliet Roles

ROME (AP) — Romeo recently turned 17 and speaks cockney. Juliet is 15 and addicted to mini-skirts and the Beatles. Both are somewhat frightened about the future.

Shakespearian directors have long been intrigued with casting the star-crossed lovers as the teen-agers they were supposed to have been. They had been dissuaded by the fact that such youthful performers would doubtless lack the skill to polish the lustre of the language.

Now comes Franco Zeffirelli, the audacious Florentine to whom nothing seems impossible—the man who directed the Burtons in "Taming of the Shrew."

He abandoned the modern tradition of playing "Romeo and Juliet" with adult and sometimes middle-aged leads. He returned to the original conception—and as it was done in the musicalized version in "West Side Story"—of two teen-agers caught in an adult world of hate and strife. The new Romeo and Juliet were enjoying a few days' rest while the Montagues and Capulets battled under the Roman sun at Cinecitta studios.

I found Romeo, Leonard Whiting of London, at a luxurious villa where several of the British actors are staying near the studio. He was wearing a full-length Arab robe, a gift from Zeffirelli.

Whiting is a slender 5 feet 8, with a straight, thin nose and limp-lidded blue eyes. His dark-brown hair is a bit shorter than hippie-length.

"I did 'The Tempest' and one of the tragedies when I was in school," he said, "but otherwise I didn't have much contact with Shakespeare. I think kids get Shakespeare too early and they feel it is being shoved down their throats. I didn't like Shakespeare much before, but I'm beginning to like it now. I find it's not outdated. It's life."

Whiting started acting at 12 as the Artful Dodger in the London run of "Oliver!" He later played Jimmy the Dip in Disney's "The Legend of Young Dick Turpin." He was appearing in Laurence Olivier's "Love for Love" for the National Theater when he heard of auditions for "Romeo and Juliet."

What happens next?

"I guess I'll go back to my same life in London," he said. "I live with my parents (father is a store manager, mother a factory worker) and I'll continue to. I don't know what I can do after playing Romeo. I'm too young for most parts."

Juliet — English-Argentine Olivia Hussey — was staying at a stylish new Rome hotel after returning from costume fittings in Florence. She has a tiny, sad face and dark-brown hair that streams to her waist.

She is even more experienced than her co-star, having appeared for two years in the London play, "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" (starring Vanessa Redgrave) and in two films, including "The Battle of the Villa Fiorita" with Maureen O'Hara and Rossano Brazzi.

"Oh, we had some Shakespeare in school — 'Macbeth,' 'Much Ado about Nothing' — but I always missed the classes," she said. Olivia too is getting accustomed to the poetic dialogue. She is also trying to adjust to all the attention she has been accorded. One of her recent experiences was being photographed by Lord Snowden.

Veterans' Benefits Greater Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill greatly increasing a long list of benefits for veterans, including those who have served in Vietnam, has been sent President Johnson by the Senate.

The bill's final provisions, said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., its floor manager, go far beyond the administration's budget requests. But he said he is confident the President will sign it.

— Pension increases for two million veterans and their widows amounting to 5.4 per cent for most recipients, with hikes up to 8.5 per cent to widows in the lowest income categories.

— Vietnam veterans would receive the same levels of benefits as veterans of other conflicts.

— Educational allowances for veterans qualifying under the "Cold War" G. I. Bill would be raised and several categories of training would be added.

Because of a delay in bringing up the bill, the soonest it could go into effect is Oct. 1. Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he believes the delay was caused by the administration's desire to save some $25 million, about the cost of one month's benefits.

Under the bill veterans can complete their high school education at the full benefit rate. It also would bring on-the-job, on-the-farm and flight training under the law for the first time.

SUDDENLY IT WAS LAST SUMMER

For the children, the gloom began to build. The realization that school was almost upon them came as a shock. The last time they'd looked at the calendar it was June, with unlimited time stretching before them. And now, in what seemed like the blink of an eye, the season was over.

There were all sorts of projects left undone. The tree house was still without a roof. The front fender of the bicycle still rubbed against the tire. The plan for an all-day canoe trip remained unaccomplished. It had seemed that there was plenty of time for such things. No hurry. Tomorrow would do. If not tomorrow, then the day after.

But now all this was changed. There was nothing to do but cram as much into the waning days of vacation as possible. But not matter how fast the children ran, the hours sped faster and the rendezvous with unwelcome knowledge loomed closer. And once it becomes necessary to count the days of leisure, their purpose is largely spoiled.

The phenomenon occurs every year as August ends and September begins--this feeling that summer has slipped away. Even an adult, accustomed to measuring vacations by rigidly established rules of the calendar, could share a little in the regret at how short the long days of summer always are.
